PREFACE.

The object which has been kept in view in the preparation of this publication is the production of a volume, of convenient size, containing material likely to be of use in the interpretation of the Australian Constitution, and other material, relating to the Constitution, which is of historical interest or may be useful for reference purposes. Accordingly, there have been included, not only notes of the various Constitutional cases decided by the Courts since 1901, but some general notes containing information concerning the Constitution—such information, for instance, as details of the voting on the Constitution Bill in the various States (then colonies) prior to Federation, the names and terms of office of the various Governors-General and Administrations, the dates of the various sessions of the Parliament of the Commonwealth, particulars concerning the establishment of the various Departments of State of the Commonwealth, and concerning the changes of name and arrangement of those Departments, etc. Certain additional information, referred to hereunder, is given in the five Appendices.

In the Notes of Cases, an attempt has been made to connect the notes as closely as possible with the particular portion of the section of the Constitution to which each case relates. This has involved, in the case of certain sections divided into paragraphs or placita which have been frequently under review by the Courts, e.g., sections 51, 52, 73, 75 and 76, the interpolation of notes between the various placita. While the adoption of this system has had the disadvantage of causing certain sections to be spread over a number of pages—section fifty-one, for instance, covers, with its notes, twenty-seven pages—it is thought that the balance of convenience is in favour of the adoption of this system as making the notes more readily accessible. The cases included in the notes to each section or placitum have generally been arranged chronologically, the fact of an earlier case being expressly overruled by a later case being generally indicated by a brief note following the reference to the earlier case. The decisions on certain of the placita of section 51—e.g., (i) trade and commerce, (ii) taxation, and (xxxv) conciliation and arbitration—have been so numerous that it has been found necessary to arrange under sub-headings the notes of cases on those placita.

In the notes of cases, dicta, as well as actual decisions, have been included, the former being usually introduced by such words as "As to whether", or by the word "Per" followed by the name of the Justice or Judge. Where the name of a particular Justice or Judge is mentioned, the office held by him at the time of the decision or dictum is indicated, notwithstanding that he may subsequently have held a higher judicial office.

As a general rule, where a case has been the subject of an appeal, only the decision of the final Court of Appeal has been noted. An exception has been made where cases have been taken on appeal from the High Court to the Privy Council, both decisions in such cases being noted.

Certain supplementary notes of cases which relate to general principles of interpretation of the Constitution have been included at the end of the Constitution.

Perhaps one word of warning may be uttered with regard to the use of the notes of cases.

As will be seen from the supplementary notes of cases (pp. 107-110), the principle of implied prohibition, laid down by the High Court as originally constituted, was departed from by the High Court in 1920, in the Engineers' case. In that case the High Court expressly overruled certain cases, in which the principle of implied prohibition had been followed. The fact of these cases having been overruled is indicated in the notes on those cases; but other cases depending on the principle of implied prohibition were not expressly overruled. The notes on those other cases should therefore be read in the light of the principles of interpretation laid down in the Engineers' Case. This case was, later, referred to by Isaacs, J. (afterwards C.J.), in Ex parte Nelson (No. 1), (1928) 42 C.L.R. 209, at p. 228, as "our starting-point for constitutional interpretation".

In Appendix A have been included, for historical and reference purposes, the Federal Council of Australasia Act, 1885 (from which a number of the legislative powers of the Commonwealth have been copied), and such of the Acts of the Federal Council as are still in force. These Acts have been included for the reason that they are not now readily accessible elsewhere.

Appendix B contains the Acts passed by the State Parliaments referring powers to the Parliament of the Commonwealth. Under section 51 (xxxvii) of the Constitution the Parliament of the Commonwealth has power to legislate with respect to matters so referred. Some of the State Acts, it will be noted, are not at present in force.

Appendix C contains various agreements between the Commonwealth and the States relating to the public debts of the States. Under section 105A of the Constitution it is provided that every agreement with respect to the public debts of the States, which is made in pursuance of that section, is binding upon the Commonwealth and the States concerned, notwithstanding anything in the Commonwealth or State Constitutions or laws; and the Parliament of the Commonwealth is empowered to make laws for the carrying out by the parties thereto of any such agreement.

Appendix D contains copies of the fifty-two Bills for the alteration of the Constitution which have been introduced into the Parliament of the Commonwealth between 1901 and 1933 (inclusive). Of these, sixteen have been submitted to the electors, and three have been passed.

The footnotes to each Bill include the Parliamentary history of the Bill, and, in the case of those which have been submitted to the electors, details of the voting thereon.

Appendix E contains the Statute of Westminster, and the statutory provisions therein referred to. Although the Statute had not, at the date of the preparation of this volume, been adopted by the Commonwealth, the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth had announced (Hansard, 30th April, 1936, p.1042) that the Commonwealth Government intended to introduce into Parliament a Bill for its adoption. Notice of a motion for leave to introduce the Bill was given in the House of Representatives on 19th November, 1936.

The Table of Commonwealth legislation, contained on pages vii to xlvii inclusive, provides a ready means of reference to the legislation of the Commonwealth in relation to each provision of the Constitution with respect to which the Parliament has made laws. This table is taken from the Sessional Volumes of Commonwealth Acts.

References in this publication to "the date of the preparation of this volume" should be read as references to 1st July, 1936.

In conclusion, I desire to express appreciation of the courtesy of the proprietors of the various Law Reports in permitting the use, where possible, of the head-notes to cases appearing in Reports which have been cited.

GEO. S. KNOWLES.

TABLE OF COMMONWEALTH LEGISLATION PASSED FROM 1901 TO 1935
IN RELATION TO THE SEVERAL PROVISIONS OF THE CONSTITUTION

NOTE—This Table is designed to group, under the several provisions of the Constitution, the enactments of the Federal Parliament passed by virtue of or in relation to, these provisions.

Its object is to facilitate reference to all the Commonwealth legislation relating to any particular provision of the Constitution, so that it can be readily ascertained whether and to what extent the legislative power of the Commonwealth has been exercised in relation to that provision or to its subject matter, and (in the case of those provisions of the Constitution which are expressed to have effect until the Parliament otherwise provides) whether any other provision has been made.

The Table does not purport to be either authoritative or exhaustive. Enactments may incidentally derive support from or relate to other provisions of the Constitution than those with which they are primarily connected, but no attempt has been made to tabulate other than direct and obvious relations. For instance, almost every enactment made by virtue of a special legislative power may derive additional support from section 51 (xxxix), but the only enactments which have been tabulated under that provision are those in which the incidental mention appears to preponderate.

Short titles of Acts are in force in printed italics.

State Acts passed in pursuance of power conferred by certain sections of the Constitution are enumerated in footnotes.

(b) The Land Tax Assessment Act 1910-1934 comprises Act No. 22, 1910, as amended by Acts No. 12, 1911, No. 37, 1912, No. 29, 1914, No. 33, 1916, No. 29, 1921, No. 32, 1924, No. 50, 1926, No. 30, 1927, No. 34, 1928, No. 1, 1930, No. 8, 1930, No. 64, 1932, and No. 11, 1934.

(c) The Estate Duty Assessment Act 1914-1928 comprises Act No. 22, 1914, as amended by Acts No. 29, 1916, No. 34, 1922, and No. 17, 1928.

(d) The Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1934 comprises Act No. 37, 1922, as amended by Acts No. 27, 1923, No. 51, 1924, No. 28, 1925, No. 32, 1927, No. 46, 1928, No. 11, 1929, No. 50, 1930, No. 60, 1930, No. 23, 1931, No. 70, 1932, Nos. 17 and 40, 1933, and No. 18, 1934.

* This Act was, prior to the passing of the Statute Law Revision Act 1934 (No. 45 of 1934), cited as the Excise Procedure Act 1907. The Statute Law Revision Act 1934 provides that the Excise Procedure Act 1907, as amended by that Act, may be cited as the Bounties Procedure Act 1907. (See section 1 and First Schedule, Statute Law Revision Act 1934). The Excise Tariff 1906 (No. 16 of 1906) was declared by the High Court to be invalid, see judgment in the cases of The King v. Burner, and the Commonwealth v. McKay (Harvester cases), 6 C.L.R. 41. The decision also affected the validity of the Excise Procedure Act 1907 (No. 1 of 1906). The provisions of that Act have, however, since been made applicable to claims for bounties under the Sugar Bounty Act 1905-1912 (see section 9 of that Act), the Manufactures Encouragement Act 1903-1914 (see section 11), the Shale Oils Bounties Act 1910 (see section 6), the Bounties Act 1907-1912 (see section 6), the Wood Pulp and Rock Phosphate Bounties Act 1912-1917 (see section 7), the Iron Bounty Act 1914-1915 (see section 11), the Shale Oil Bounty Act 1917-1926 (see section 6), the Apple Bounty Act 1918 (see section 6), the Iron and Steel Bounty Act 1918-1921 (see section 10), the Iron and Steel Products Bounty Act 1922-1929 (see section 10), the Sulphur Bounty Act 1923 (see section 10), the Power Alcohol Bounty Act 1926 (see section 13), the Cotton Bounty Act 1926 (see section 10), the Wine Export Bounty Act 1930-1932 (see section 14), the Cotton Industries Bounty Act 1930-1932 (see section 14), the Flax and Linseed Bounties Act 1930-1931 (see section 14) and the Gold Bounty Act 1930-1931 (see section 18).

† Section 38 of the Land Tax Assessment Act 1910-1934 was held by the High Court to be invalid. See judgment of Griffith, C.J., in Waterhouse v. Deputy Commissioner of Land Tax for South Australia, 17 C.L.R. 685; 20 A.L.J.R. 155.

‡ The Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1934 was held to be invalid in so far as it purported to confer judicial power on the Board of Appeal. See British Imperial Oil Co. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, 35 C.L.R. 422; 31 A.L.J.R. 129. In view of the decision in this case, the Income Tax Assessment Act 1925 was passed. This Act created a Board of Review with somewhat different powers from those conferred upon the Board of Appeal. The validity of the provisions relating to the Board of Review was upheld by the High Court in the case of British Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, 38 C.L.R. 153; 32 A.L.J.R. 330, and, on appeal, by the Privy Council in the case of Shell Company of Australia Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, 1931 A.C. 376; 44 C.L.R. 630; 37 A.L.J.R. 1.

Question whether by reason of the fact that State courts have authority to entertain these cases, jurisdiction in many instances of Federal jurisdiction is thereby lost. If under which principle is it that in matters in which the State court is not authorized to give judgment, the Federal court is authorized to render judgment upon this fact concerning a State court's competence to give judgment in a particular case? Id. p. 20.

As to whether the expression "law of the land" is a legal term, see R v Bynae (1915) 141 F. 101 (Ct. App. Ont.).

As to the middle of the main title, I have been told by the American Library Association that it is not a good idea to put the word "The" in front of the title. The title is "A History of the United States" and the subtitle is "From the First Settlements to the Present Time".

(d) Held by the Supreme Court of New South Wales in Louise (Catherine) v. Superintendent of the Institution, that the inclusion in this section of the reference "but subject to the provisions of the Commonwealth Constitution" impliedly incorporated the common law as stated in S.S.A.

He'll not, that the nation has a right to know, with the law the law is the law, and the law is the law, and the law is the law.

Held by the High Court that the words "ships" whose part of commerce and whose part of destination are in the Commonwealth do not apply to ships owned by a Victorian company, which are registered in Melbourne and are engaged in trade between Melbourne and the neighbouring ports and Australia sometimes going to South Africa. Merrill v. The Gulf of Australasia 1911.

Held by the High Court (4 nos. of Justices, Brennan and Stirling JJ. dissenting) that apart from this section the jurisdiction conferred by s. 11 extends only to disputes as to the time and conditions of industrial operations carried on within the territorial limits of the Commonwealth, and therefore that the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration has no jurisdiction with regard to a dispute between parties in Australia.

PART II -- THE SENATE.

PART II
THE SENATE
The Senate

7. (The Senate shall be composed of senators for each State, directly chosen by the people of the State,) voting, until the Parliament otherwise provides,⁽¹⁾ as one electorate.⁽²⁾

But until the Parliament of the Commonwealth otherwise provides,⁽¹⁾ the Parliament of the State of Queensland, if that State be an Original State, may make laws dividing the State into divisions and determining the number of senators to be chosen for each division,⁽²⁾ and in the absence of such provision the State shall be one electorate.

(Until the Parliament otherwise provides⁽¹⁾ there shall be six senators for each Original State. The Parliament may make laws increasing or diminishing the number of senators for each State,⁽³⁾ but so that equal representation of the several Original States shall be maintained and that no Original State shall have less than six senators.)

(The senators shall be chosen for a term of six years, and the names of the senators chosen for each State shall be certified by the Governor to the Governor-General.)

GENERAL NOTES. (1) The Parliament had not, up to the date of the preparation of this volume otherwise provided.

(2) The Parliament of the State of Queensland had not, up to the date of the preparation of this volume, made any law in pursuance of this power.

(3) The Parliament had not, up to the date of the preparation of this volume, made any law in pursuance of this power.

NOTES ON CASES. (a) As to the provision for senators being directly chosen by the people of the State being a dominant provision, see London v. O'Leary, (1907), 5 C.L.R. 201, at pp. 200, 207, 212, 215, 14 A.L.J. 235, at pp. 234, 236, 7.

As to the Senate representing the several States as entities and equally, as parties that have entered into the federal compact as equals, see Boothby v. Commonwealth, (1913) 16 C.L.R. 215, at p. 227, 19 A.L.J. 251, at p. 253.

8. The qualification of electors of senators shall be in each State that which is prescribed by this Constitution, or by the Parliament,⁽¹⁾ as the qualification for electors of members of the House of Representatives; but in the choosing of senators each elector shall vote only once.

Qualification of electors

GENERAL NOTES. (1) For qualifications of electors of Senators at the date of the preparation of this volume, see Commonwealth Electoral Act 1918-1934 s. 50.

9.^(a) The Parliament of the Commonwealth may make laws prescribing the method of choosing senators,^(b) but so that the method shall be uniform for all the States. Subject to any such law, the Parliament of each State may make laws prescribing the method of choosing the senators for that State.⁽¹⁾

Times and places

The Parliament of a State may make laws for determining the times and places of elections of senators for the State.^{(1) (c)}

GENERAL NOTES. (1) For list of State Acts passed in pursuance of this power, see Table of Commonwealth Legislation, vol. 1, viii (footnote).

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to those provisions empowering that the doing of all things necessary for giving a State its representation in the Senate is entrusted to the State itself, see R v Governor of State of South Australia (1907) 4 C L R 1497, at pp 1507-8; 14 A L R 98 at p 100. (b) Held by the High Court that s. 129A (12) of the Commonwealth Electoral Act 1916-1926 which provides inter alia that every elector who fails to vote at an election without a valid and sufficient reason for such failure shall be guilty of an offence is a valid exercise of the power conferred on the Commonwealth Parliament by this section to make laws prescribing the method of choosing senators. Judd v McKean (1926) 38 C L R 380; 42 A L R 380.

(c) Held by the High Court that s. 14 of the Commonwealth Electoral (War time) Act 1917 which provides that on the day appointed as polling day for an election of the Senate or a general election of the House of Representatives, no referendum or vote of the electors of any State or part of a State shall be taken under the law of a State is not inconsistent with this section. R v Brisbane Licensing Court Ex parte Dunnell (1920) 28 C L R 21 at p 31; 26 A L R 10; at p 107.

Application of State laws

10 Until the Parliament otherwise provides,⁽¹⁾ but subject to this Constitution, the laws in force in each State, for the time being, relating to elections^(a) for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State shall, as nearly as practicable, apply to elections of senators for the State.^(b)

GENERAL NOTES. (1) The Parliament has otherwise provided by means of the Commonwealth Electoral Acts, the first of which was passed in 1902.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that a law purporting the signing of electoral tickets in newspapers at the time of the election is a law relating to elections. South v O'Halloran (1912) 15 C L R 160; 18 A L R 148.

(b) Held by the High Court that s. 11 of the Commonwealth Electoral (War time) Act 1917 which prohibits the holding under State law of a referendum or vote of the electors of any State or part of a State on the day appointed as polling day for an election of the Senate or a general election of the House of Representatives is a valid exercise of the power conferred on the Parliament of the Commonwealth by this section coupled with ss. 51 (XXXV) and (XXXIX). R v Brisbane Licensing Court Ex parte Dunnell (1920) 28 C L R 21 at p 31; 26 A L R 10.

Failure to choose senators

11 The Senate may proceed to the despatch of business, notwithstanding the failure⁽¹⁾ of any State to provide for its representation in the Senate.^(a)

GENERAL NOTES. (1) No cases of failure of any State to provide for its representation in the Senate had arisen up to the date of the preparation of this volume.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Concluding phrase of this section cited by High Court as suggesting prima facie that the doing of all things necessary for giving a State its representation in the Senate is entrusted to the State itself. See R v Governor of the State of South Australia (1907) 4 C L R 1497 at pp 1507-8; 14 A L R 98 at p 100.

Issue of writs

12. The Governor^(a) of any State may cause writs to be issued for elections of senators for the State. In case of the dissolution of the Senate the writs shall be issued within ten days from the proclamation of such dissolution.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that the Governor, in acting under this section, is acting in the capacity of the constitutional head of the State, and not as an officer of the Commonwealth.

within the meaning of s. 75 (v) of the Constitution, and that therefore a mandamus will not lie to him to compel him to do an act in his capacity of Governor. R v Governor of the State of South Australia, (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1497; 14 A.L.R. 98.

As to ss. 7 and 9 and this section being ample in themselves to provide by direct election for the filling of places of senators retiring at the expiration of their term notwithstanding any failure to comply strictly with the second paragraph of s. 13, see Vardon v O'Loughlin, (1907) 5 C.L.R. 201 at p. 215; 14 A.L.R. 53, at p. 237.

As to writs being issued under the authority of this section whenever the necessity arises, see Vardon v O'Loughlin, (1907) 5 C.L.R. 201, at p. 209; 14 A.L.R. 233 at p. 235.

13.⁽¹⁾ As soon as may be after the Senate first meets, and after each first meeting of the Senate following a dissolution thereof, the Senate shall divide the senators chosen for each State into two classes, as nearly equal in number as practicable; and the places of the senators of the first class shall become vacant at the expiration of the third year three years, and the places of those of the second class at the expiration of the sixth year six years, from the beginning of their term of service; and afterwards the places of senators shall become vacant at the expiration of six years from the beginning of their term of service.

Rotation of senators.
Altered by
No. 1, 1907, s. 2.

The election to fill vacant places shall be made in the year at the expiration of which within one year before the places are to become vacant.

For the purposes of this section the term of service of a senator shall be taken to begin on the first day of January July following the day of his election,^(a) except in the cases of the first election and of the election next after any dissolution of the Senate, when it shall be taken to begin on the first day of January July preceding the day of his election.

GENERAL NOTES. (1) The words printed in italics in this section are those which were omitted by Act No. 1, 1907, and the words printed in black type are those which were inserted by that Act.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court (prior to the alteration substituting "July" for "January") that this provision is not inconsistent with an election being held after the first day of January to fill vacancies which ought to have been filled at an election held before that day. R v Governor of the State of South Australia (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1497 at p. 1504; 14 A.L.R. 98 at p. 100.

As to the object of this section being for the purpose of fixing the term of service of Senators elected in ordinary and regular rotation, see Vardon v O'Loughlin (1907) 5 C.L.R. 201 at pp. 210, 211, 214-5; 14 A.L.R. 233, at pp. 235-7.

14. Whenever the number of senators for a State is increased or diminished,⁽¹⁾ the Parliament of the Commonwealth may make such provision for the vacating of the places of senators for the State as it deems necessary to maintain regularity in the rotation.

Further provision for rotation

GENERAL NOTES. (1) The number of Senators for a State had not, up to the date of the preparation of this volume, been increased or diminished.

15.^(a) If the place of a senator becomes vacant before the expiration of his term of service, the Houses of Parliament of the State for which he was chosen shall, sitting and voting together, choose a person to hold the place until the expiration of the term, or until the election of a successor as hereinafter provided, whichever first happens. But if the Houses of Parliament of the State are not in session at the time when the vacancy is notified, the Governor of the State, with the advice of the Executive Council thereof, may appoint a person to hold the place until the expiration of fourteen days after the beginning of the next session of the Parliament of the State, or until the election of a successor, whichever first happens.

At the next general election of members of the House of Representatives, or at the next election of senators for the State, whichever first happens, a successor shall, if the term has not then expired, be chosen to hold the place from the date of his election until the expiration of the term.

The name of any senator so chosen or appointed shall be certified by the Governor of the State to the Governor-General.

NOTES ON CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that this section applies only in case of an abnormal ending of the term of service of a Senator: London v. O'Connell (1907) 5 C L R 201, at pp. 206-208, 210-16; 14 A L J R 255, at pp. 244-8. See also R v. Governor of the State of South Australia, (1907) 4 C L R 1497, at pp. 1507-1510; 14 A L J R 95, at pp. 100-1.

19.^(a) A senator may, by writing addressed to the President, or to the Governor-General if there is no President or if the President is absent from the Commonwealth, resign his place, which thereupon shall become vacant.

NOTES OF CASES — (a) Discussion as to the possible effect of a resignation under this section after a petition had been lodged against the return of the person resigning and an appointment had been made under s. 15 as to a casual vacancy. Vardon v O'Loughlin, (1907) 5 C.L.R. 201, at p. 208; 11 A.L.R. 293, at p. 236.

40 49 Held by the High Court that that portion of s. 4 of the Air Navigation Act 1920 (1920) which purports to give the Governor-General power to make regulations for the purpose of providing for the control of air navigation generally throughout the Commonwealth is invalid. R v Burgess; Ex parte Henry (Judgment delivered 19th November 1936)

As to whether, when interstate trade and union trade are so intermingled that it is practically essential to control all of them as one subject matter, the Commonwealth Parliament has power to deal with intra state trade as well as with interstate trade.

As to the power of the Commissioner under this plan to affect the operations of State Government, see Attorney-General of New South Wales v Collector of Customs for New South Wales, (1908) 5 C.L.R. 818, 14 A.L.J. 516. (This case overruled the decision of the Full Court of the Supreme Court of New South Wales in Attorney-General of New South Wales v Collector of Customs for New South Wales (1903) 3 S.R. N.S.W. 115.)

Reference to States in this phrasing cited in support of the view that when the Constitution means that the powers conferred on the Parliament of the Commonwealth shall not be applied to State operations, the Constitution expressly says so. Minihut Service Guild of Australasia v Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association (No. 9) (1920) 38 C.L.R. 130 at p 151, 27 A.L.J. 161 at p 164.

Generally as to the application of Commonwealth Acts to State operations, see Supplementary Notes.

(vii) Effect of s. 92 on this placitum.

(viii) Effect of this placitum when read with s. 98

Held by the High Court that the powers contained in this paragraph are not enlarged by s. 98 of the Constitution. Owners of SS. Kaituma v. Federal (1910) 11 C.L.R. 489, 17 A.L.J. 410.

Held by the High Court (1911) 12 C.L.R. 101 by Porter and Rich, JJ., Griffith, C.J., and Barton, J. dissenting) that the placitum coupled with s. 98 confers upon the Commonwealth Parliament power to regulate the navigation and shipping so far as concerns inter-State traffic, and in particular to regulate the receipt, storage and distribution of those engaged in carrying on that traffic by means of ships. Held therefore by the same Judges that the Seamen's Compensation Act 1911 is a valid exercise of the legislative power of the Commonwealth Parliament. Australian Steamships Limited v. Macdonald (1914) 19 C.L.R. 235, 21 A.L.J. 47.

Held by the High Court that the effect of s. 91 (1) and s. 98 of the Constitution is to endow the Parliament not with a substantive power to deal with navigation and shipping at large, but only with power to deal with that subject in so far as it is relevant to interstate and foreign trade and commerce. Held therefore that the provisions of the Seamen's Compensation Act 1911 do not exceed the powers conferred by the Constitution, and that the regulations made thereunder as to the manning of and communication on ships, and the extent to which they purport to prescribe rules of conduct to be observed in respect of ships engaged in the domestic trade and commerce of a State are beyond the power of the Parliament of the Commonwealth and are to that extent invalid. Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Co. Ltd v. Attorney-General for the Commonwealth (1921) 29 C.L.R. 357, 27 A.L.J. 32.

As to whether interstate vessels may be used for the purposes of interstate or foreign trade, although it may carry goods only between ports in two or more States, see Attorney-General v. Hunter River Steamship Co. Ltd (1909) 10 C.L.R. 101, 11 C.L.R. 101, 12 A.L.J. 30, 27 A.L.R. 73 at p. 178.

As to whether this placitum coupled with s. 98 extends the operation of the Colonial Laws Validity Act on laws made by the Commonwealth Parliament with respect to navigation and shipping and commerce, see Commonwealth v. Commonwealth (1911) 12 C.L.R. 101, 13 C.L.R. 101, 14 A.L.J. 30, 27 A.L.R. 73 at p. 178.

As to whether this placitum coupled with s. 98 empowers the Parliament of the Commonwealth to confer jurisdiction on the High Court in inter-State disputes, see Attorney-General v. Hunter River Steamship Co. Ltd (1909) 10 C.L.R. 101, 11 C.L.R. 101, 12 A.L.J. 30, 27 A.L.R. 73 at p. 178.

As to whether s. 47 of the Maritime Commerce Act 1904 enables the Parliament of the Commonwealth to alter the nature of the jurisdiction exercised by any Commonwealth Court so as to affect the division of powers which the Constitution makes between Commonwealth and State, see R v. Turner, Ex parte Marine Board of Harbours, etc. (1927) 39 C.L.R. 411, at pp. 431-7, 442-1, 152-4, 154-1, 174 at p. 177, 181-2, 184-5.

(i) Taxation general

Per Griffith, C.J. The taxation provided for in this placitum is federal taxation for federal purposes. Municipal Council of Sydney v. Commonwealth (1904) 1 C.L.R. 208, at p. 232, 10 A.L.J. (C.N.) 29 at p. 30.

As to the application to the States of this exercise of the power of taxation, see Attorney-General v. New South Wales v. Collector of Customs for New South Wales (1908) 5 C.L.R. 818, 14 A.L.J. 516.

Nature and limits of the taxation power conferred upon the Commonwealth Parliament by this placitum discussed by High Court. R v. Barger, Commonwealth v. McKay (1908) 6 C.L.R. 41, 14 A.L.J. 374.

Effect of the reservation of powers to the States upon the power conferred by this placitum discussed by High Court. R v. Barger, Commonwealth v. McKay (1908) 6 C.L.R. 41, 14 A.L.J. 374.

As to whether the power of the Commonwealth to make laws with respect to taxation is wider than the United States power to lay and collect taxes, see Attorney-General v. New South Wales v. Brewery Employees' Union of New South Wales (1908) 6 C.L.R. 469 at p. 611, 14 A.L.J. 505 at p. 614.

Held by the High Court that in the exercise of the power of taxation conferred by this placitum, the Parliament in making laws subject to taxation is entitled to take things as it finds them in rebus sic stantibus, irrespective of any positive laws of the States prescribing rules to be observed with regard to the acquisition or devolution of formal title to property, or the institution of judicial proceedings with regard to it. Morgan v. Deputy Federal Commissioner of Land Tax, New South Wales, (1912) 15 C.L.R. 661, 19 A.L.J. 120.

Held by the High Court that the limitations imposed by s. 55 of the Constitution upon the making of laws imposing taxation apply only to such laws as are made under the power conferred by this placitum, and not to laws made under the power contained in s. 122 to make laws for the government of Territories. Buchanan v. Commonwealth (1913) 16 C.L.R. 315, 19 A.L.J. 251.

In war time the Executive Government of the Commonwealth entered into certain agreements with a manufacturer of woollens, under which, in consideration of the payment by the Company to the Government of a share of the profits (in the agreements called a "licence fee") the Government consented to the sale of the woollens. As to whether the agreements (providing as they did for the payment of money to the Government as the price of consent) were taxation and being without Parliamentary authority, were void, see Commonwealth v Colonial Clothing, Spinning and Weaving Co Ltd., (1922) 31 C.L.R. 421, 29 A.L.R. 134.

Held by the High Court that, on the principle laid down in the Engineers' Case, the assessment of Federal income tax in respect of the salaries of persons employed in the Public Service and the Railway Service of the State of New South Wales was valid, that the persons in question were not exempt from such taxation, and that the Parliament of the Commonwealth had power to impose income tax upon them. Darovec v Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1923) 20 A.L.R. 129.

As to the wide nature of the power of "taxation" conferred on the Commonwealth Parliament, see Federal Commissioner of Taxation v Munro British Imperial Oil Co Ltd. v Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1926) 38 C.L.R. 153 at pp 200, 203, 211-5, 32 A.L.R. 339, at pp 357-8, 362-3, Executorial Trustee and Agency Co of South Australia Ltd v Deputy Federal Commissioner of Taxation (S.J.), (1928) 41 C.L.R. 209, at p 310, 34 A.L.R. 198, at p 302.

Held by the High Court that this plactum does not confer on the Commonwealth Parliament power to create corporations, but the power is limited to legislation, as to foreign corporations and trading and financial corporations created by State law. Extent of power conferred by the plactum discussed. Huddart Parker & Co Pty Ltd v Moorhead, (1908) 8 C L R 330, 15 A L R 231.

Vaggan v. M. Bar*, (1902) 28 A.L.J. 827, 24 A.L.L. 21, 9 A.L.R. 170. Held by the High Court that a person whose permanent home is in Australia, and who therefore is a member of the Australian community is not, on arriving in Australia from abroad, an immigrant in respect of whose entry the Parliament can legislate under this plaitum empowering the Parliament to make laws with respect to immigration. Meaning of "immigration" discussed. Potter v Minihagen, (1908) 7 C.L.R. 277, 14 A.L.J. 45.

Held by the High Court that where a person born in Australia has left the Commonwealth, the question whether, when he attempts to re-enter the Commonwealth, he is an immigrant (whilst the meaning of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920 depends on whether he is as a fact coming back to Australia as to his home). Donohoe v Hargrave, (1924) 30 C.L.R. 304.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Isaacs, Rich and Starke, J.J., Knox, C.J., and Gavan Duffy, J. dissenting) that the Parliament of the Commonwealth has power under this plaitum combined with plaitum (xxix) to cast upon a person prosecuted upon a charge of being a prohibited immigrant found within the Commonwealth the burden of proving that he is not an immigrant as well as that he has not evaded an officer, and that therefore sub-sections (1) (1A) and (1B) of s. 51 of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920 are valid. Idhamon v Ah On (1926) 31 C.L.R. 1, 31 A.L.J. 13.

Held by the High Court that the power of the Parliament to make laws with respect to immigration enables it to impose upon the ship's agent who is authorized on its behalf to perform the duties imposed by laws in force in the port an additional liability to expend upon entry or on immigration from the vessel Orient Steam Navigation Co. Ltd v Gee, (1931) 31 C.L.R. 24, 31 A.L.J. 61.

Held by the High Court (Latham, C.J., Isaacs, Rich and Starke, J.J., Higgins J. dissenting) that the immigration into the Commonwealth of any person declared by the Minister to be in his opinion a front immigration is a crime in the Commonwealth of the United Kingdom, and it is the duty of the British Diplomatic or Consular Government at the High Court to enforce the law in this respect as an inhabitant of or visitor to the Commonwealth is civil with respect to immigration and is therefore within the legislative power of the Commonwealth Parliament under this plaitum. R v Carter, Ex parte Kitch (1933) 32 C.L.R. 21, 32 A.L.J. 12.

(See also cases and remarks under Deposition and Deportation.)

Deportation—whithers did. As to whether this plaitum confers power to legislate for the deportation of Pacific Island Islanders, see Rebel v Pann (1906) 1 C.L.R. 191, at pp. 111, 417, 420, 11 A.L.J. 164, at p. 137.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Isaacs, Rich and Starke, J.J., Higgins J. dissenting) that s. 84 of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920—which empowers the Minister, at any time within three years after the arrival in Australia of a person who was not born in Australia, and in whom the Minister is satisfied that he is one of a class specified in the section to lay upon the person a charge of being a Board to show cause why he should not be deported from the Commonwealth—is a law with respect to immigration and is therefore within the legislative power of the Commonwealth Parliament under this plaitum. R v Macfarlane, Ex parte O'Hanigan and O'Kelly (1923) 32 C.L.R. 13, 29 A.L.J. 151.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Isaacs, Rich and Starke, J.J., Higgins J. dissenting) that the Parliament has power to legislate for the deportation of British subjects and visitors. R v Macfarlane, Ex parte O'Hanigan and O'Kelly, (1923) 32 C.L.R. 13, 29 A.L.J. 151.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Isaacs, Rich and Starke, J.J., Higgins J. dissenting) that s. 84A of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920—which empowers the Minister (after a proclamation of the existence of a serious industrial disturbance has been issued) to call upon any person, not born in Australia, who the Minister is satisfied has been concerned in acts directed to hindering the transport of goods, &c. to appear before a Board to show cause why he should not be deported from the Commonwealth—is a valid exercise of the power conferred upon the Commonwealth Parliament by this plaitum. L. v Walsh and Johnson, Ltd v The State (1933) 37 C.L.R. 36, 32 A.L.J. 48.

Per Knox, C.J., Higgins and Starke, J.J. The immigration power does not authorize the Parliament to legislate with respect to persons who having immigrated to Australia have made their permanent homes there and so have become members of the Australian community, and, per Knox, C.J., and Starke, J. (Higgins, J. dissenting) s. 84A of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920 upon its proper construction does not apply to such persons. Ibid.

Per Isaacs and Rich, J.J. (1) The immigration power authorizes the Commonwealth Parliament to legislate with respect only to persons who have immigrated to Australia since the establishment of the Commonwealth, and s. 84A of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920 upon its proper construction applies to all such persons whether they have or have not made their permanent homes in Australia, and to no others; and (2) s. 84A of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920 is a valid exercise of the powers conferred upon the Commonwealth Parliament by s. 51 (1), (xxvii) and (xxix) and s. 52 (h) of the Constitution, but on its proper construction does not go beyond the limits of the immigration power. Ibid.

Per Higgins, J. s. 84A of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920 is not a law with respect to immigration, for it is intended to apply to members of the Australian community. Parliament having clearly stated the power which it intended to exercise by the Act—the power as to immigration—it cannot be treated as having exercised some other power. It is a fundamental mistake to treat the power to make laws with respect to immigration as if it were a power to make laws with respect to immigrants. s. 84A of the Immigration Act 1901, 1920 on its proper construction was meant to apply to persons who had been immigrants, members of the Australian community, and it is invalid to that end. A Federal Act may be retrospective, but an Act under the Constitution as to immigration cannot deal with immigration which took place before the Constitution. Ibid.

Dictation test, validity of—As to the validity of the dictation test provided by section 8 (a) of the Immigration Restriction Act 1901, see Chia Goo v Martin, (1905) 3 C.L.R. 649, 12 A.L.J. 425.

Per Latham C.J. It could have been upheld under the power conferred by this plaitum. R v Burgess. Ex parte Henry (judgment delivered 10th November 1930).

As to whether the power given by this plaitum is limited to matters which in connection with external affairs or in matters which may properly be the subject of international agreement, see J v Burgess. Ex parte Henry. (This plaitum does not give a general power of legislative and legislative power in respect of all the subject matters in s. 51, and is not limited to a power to make law with respect only to some external aspect of the other subjects mentioned in s. 51. Id.)

Held by the High Court (Griffith, C.J., Barton and O'Connor JJ., Isaacs and Higgins JJ., dissenting) that the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration has no jurisdiction under this plaintiff to make an award inconsistent with a State law, and that the determination of a Wages Board empowered by a State statute to fix a minimum rate of wages may be such a law, the question whether it is such a law depending upon the terms of the statute. *Australian Road Trade Employees' Federation v. Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that unless parties to an industrial dispute agree to accept the findings of a Wages Board as a settlement of their industrial dispute, the Court will not recognize a Wages Board's decision as a settlement of any industrial dispute for purposes of Federal Carriers and Drivers' Industrial Union of Australasia v. Botha (1917) 11 C.L.R. 82.

Held by the High Court that the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration may by an award fix a minimum rate of wages lower than the minimum rate fixed by a Wages Board of a State pursuant to a statute of that State for the same class of work. Federal Transport Drivers and Locomotive Association of Australasia v. Botha (1917) 11 C.L.R. 82 at p. 94, 13 A.L.J. 11, 16 A.L.J. 163.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that in cases where the Court has no jurisdiction to settle a law of a State and a Wages Board's decision is not consistent with the right of any party to the award. Federal Transport Drivers and Locomotive Association of Australasia v. Botha (1917) 11 C.L.R. 82 at p. 94, 13 A.L.J. 11, 16 A.L.J. 163.

Held by the High Court that a when an award has been made by the Court of Conciliation and Arbitration on a dispute under this plaintiff, the Plaintiff is not bound to accept the award as a settlement of the dispute, but it is a matter for the Court to decide whether the award is a settlement of the dispute. Federal Transport Drivers and Locomotive Association of Australasia v. Botha (1917) 11 C.L.R. 82 at p. 94, 13 A.L.J. 11, 16 A.L.J. 163.

(vi) The making of retrospective award

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Higgins, Gavan Duffy and Stark JJ., Powers J., dissenting) that where no prior award has been made by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration on the particular subject matter, the Court may by an award make provisions in respect of matters which are past at the date of the award, if those matters were in issue in the original dispute, and therefore, may order payment in respect of work done after the point of time when in fact the industrial dispute began and before the award is made. Federal Transport Drivers and Locomotive Association of Australasia v. Adelaide Chemical and Fertiliser Co. Ltd. (1920) 28 C.L.R. 1, 29 A.L.J. 109.

As to the power of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration to make an award retrospectively, see Australian Institute of Marine and Power Engineers v. Commonwealth Shipowners Association (1931) 31 C.L.R. 774.

As to its power to vary an award retrospectively, is from the date of its commencement, see Australian Tramway and Motor Omnibus Employees' Association v. Commonwealth for Road Transport and Tramways (N.S.W.), (1935) 54 C.L.R. 470, 42 A.L.J. 105.

(vii) The continuance of an old award until a new award is made

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Higgins, Gavan Duffy and Stark JJ., Isaacs, Rich and Powers, JJ., dissenting) that the provision in s. 24 (2) of the Commonwealth Constitution and Industrial Act 1904, that, in the absence of order to the contrary, the old award shall continue in force from the date of the expiration of the period therein specified until the new award is made is a valid exercise of the power conferred by the plaintiff. Waterside Workers' Federation of Australia v. Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association, (1920) 28 C.L.R. 209, 26 A.L.J. 233.

(xiii) Limits on powers of Court as to wages &c, which may be awarded - contnued

In a certain case, after logs had been graded respectively by employers and employees, the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration made an award reducing the number of hours per week from 48 to 41 and fixed a minimum wage slightly less than equal to a lightly used than the maximum rates of wages proposed by the employers. But in every case considerably less than the maximum rate of wages proposed by the employers' organization—so equitably the latter took the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration offered that the award should be varied by increasing all wages by ten per cent. Held by the High Court that the order was within the authority of the statute and therefore valid notwithstanding the employer's objection to the rates of wages proposed by the award below the rates offered by the employers. Log Graders and Mill Employees' Association of Australia v. Director-General of Conciliation and Arbitration, 1 Federal 246, 4 A.L.J. 244.

Notably, the defendant would not want to be discredited and admitted that it has no intention to make an informed and prudent financial settlement of a lawsuit to the plaintiff's benefit even if it would be of any financial benefit to the plaintiff.

Held by the High Court that in the case of a demand made by or on behalf of employees on their employers and refused or not conceded, pre-existing dissatisfaction communicated to or known by the employer before the demand is not always a necessary element to constitute an industrial dispute or to make the demand real and genuine. Merchand Service Guild of Australasia v. Seavac and Hunter River Stevedoring Co Ltd (No 2) (1913) 16 C L R 70, 19 A L R 478.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Higgins, Powers and Rich, JJ., Barton, A.C.J., dissenting) that there may be an industrial dispute within the meaning of this platform upon the question whether employees may wear and display when on duty a badge indicating that they are members of a trade association. Australian Tramway Employees Association v. Prahran and Malvern Tramways Trust, (1914) 17 C L R 680, 19 A L R 573.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Gavan Duffy, Powers and Rich, JJ.) that the existence or non-existence of such a dispute within the meaning of this platform is to be ascertained by the Court by the ordinary rules of evidence applicable to questions of fact.

On the hearing in the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration of a complaint by an organization of employees against a large number of employers, after the evidence was closed a statement signed by several of the employers stating that they had no dispute with their employers and were satisfied with their conditions of labour, was tendered in evidence but was rejected as the claimants would not consent to its admission. An award was subsequently made which purported to bind the employers of these particular employees. Held by the High Court (Isaacs, C.J. and Barton, Gavan Duffy, Powers and Rich, JJ., Isaacs, J., dissenting), that prohibition should go in respect of the award so far as it related to those employees. And (but see James v. Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration v. Employees Association infra).

Held by the High Court (Higgins, J.) that in a real dispute within the meaning of the Constitution there exists between an organization of employees and a number of employers who are deemed to be potent. Even though it is not proved that the dispute exists between employers who are members of the organization and their particular employees who are respondents. Australian Workers Union v. Pastoralist Federal Council (1917) 23 C L R 22, 23 A L R 8.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that it has no jurisdiction to provide for the registration of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration in a body which does not consist of employers. See Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America v. Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration (1919) 24 C L R 107.

Held by the High Court (Higgins, J.) that as between an organization of employees and an employer who employs persons doing the same kind of work as done by members of the organization although no members of the organization are employed by that employer an industrial dispute may exist, or, if not in respect of the organization will probably apply to the employer's employment, may be probable. Australian Timber Workers Union v. The Sharp & Sons Ltd, (1913) 20 C L R 302.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Higgins, Powers and Rich, JJ., Barton and Gavan Duffy, JJ., dissenting) that in order to constitute an industrial dispute within the meaning of this platform it is not necessary that the undertaking in which the dispute arises should be an industry, trade or business carried on for profit. Trade Union of Amalgamated Employees Union of Australasia v. Melbourne Corporation (1919) 24 C L R 308, 25 A L R 30. Merchand Service Guild of Australasia v. Seavac and Hunter River Stevedoring Co Ltd (No 2) (1913) 16 C L R 70, 19 A L R 478.

Held by the High Court (Barton, Higgins, Gavan Duffy and Powers, JJ.) that employees who were clerks, although not manual labourers, could be parties to an industrial dispute within the meaning of the platform. Federated Gas Employees Industrial Union v. Metropolitan Gas Co Ltd, (1919) 27 C L R 22, 28 A L R 22.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that a dispute between officers in the administrative branch of the Public Service and their employers is not an industrial dispute within the meaning of this platform. Such officers not being engaged in or in connection with industry. Commonwealth Public Service Commissioners v. Government Service Officers Federation (1920) 14 C L R 73.

Per Isaacs, Higgins and Rich, JJ. A dispute between journalists and their employers is an industrial dispute within the meaning of this platform. Proprietors of the Daily News Ltd v. Australian Journalists Association (1920) 27 C L R 532, at pp. 540-516-517.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Higgins, Powers and Rich, JJ., Knox, J. and Gavan Duffy, J., dissenting) that a dispute between employers who are on the basis of banking or the business of their own and their employees engaged in the business as to the wages to be paid and the conditions of employment is to be observed to or with respect to such employees is an industrial dispute within the meaning of this platform. Australian Insurance Staffs Federation v. Accident Insurers' Association, Bank Clerks Association v. Bank of Australasia (1921) 28 C L R 517, 30 A L R 122.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that an industrial dispute within the meaning of the Constitution is one in which a group of workers in two States unite in making a common demand upon employers in a common industry for rates of pay and substantially similar conditions of labour applicable to the industry in such two or more States. Bank Officials Association v. Bank of Australasia (1924) 1 C L R 272.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Powers, Rich and Starke, JJ., Knox, CJ, and Gavan Duffy, J. dissenting) that where a demand as to wages and conditions of labour is made on behalf of its members by an organization registered under the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act 1901 1921 of employees in a particular industry upon a number of employers engaged in that industry, the fact that certain of those employers do not employ any members of the organization or that all the employees of certain of the employers are satisfied with their wages and conditions of labour does not prevent the dispute constituted by the non-compliance with the demand from being an "industrial dispute" within the meaning of this placitum to which the employers are parties in respect of whom a binding award may be made by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration. Burns and Munn Ltd v. Australian Textile and Clothing Employers' Association (1925) 15 C.L.R. 28, 31 A.L.J. 282. Case considered in Metall Trades Employers' Association v. Australasian Engineering Union (1935) 54 C.L.R. 387, 42 A.L.J. 74.

A. J. Leckie & Co.* (1925) 15 C.L.R. 40.

Discussion by Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration of question of its jurisdiction to make an award for all classes of work done in an industry and for the award of all the claims in a plaintiff whether all the classes of work are or are not at the time the award is made to be all the expenditures of a State and its districts with the number of its present and future members is to the effect that it paid by respondents engaged in the industry more than one State. State of Victoria v. Federation of Associated Engineers v. Victorian Railways Commission (1921) 2 C.L.R. 222, 11 p. 22.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that where there is a dispute in an industry which extends beyond the limits of one State the Court has jurisdiction when settling that dispute to deal with all matters which properly come within the ambit of the industry. But the industry must be an industry within the meaning of the Constitution. Queens v. Queensland Industrial Union of Employees v. Queensland Railway and Allied Trades Employees Union of Australia (1926) 24 C.L.R. 53.

Per Lusk, J. (Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration). Once an industrial dispute extends beyond the territory of any one State, all the different and adversarial issues that have arisen or may arise in the industrial dispute come within the jurisdiction of the Court for hearing and determination. Once a dispute extends beyond the limits of any one State, the jurisdiction of the Court extends to all parts of Australia where it exists. That dispute is in the industry. R. J. McKinnon Pty Ltd v. Federated Moulders' Union (1921) 2 C.L.R. 1125, 11 p. 1137.

Per Lusk, J. (Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration). The mere fact that a union has served upon employer in different State, a list of the claims which the employers have in a contractual is not of itself sufficient evidence to establish the existence of an industrial dispute. Federated Lagers and Allied Trades Employees Union of Australia v. Australian Club (1927) 20 C.L.R. 1.

Discussion by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration of question as to the power of that Court to make an award binding all employees present or future in a claimed organization of employees whether the employees are members of such organization or not, unless to which the common rule prevail does not apply. See R. J. McKinnon Pty Ltd v. Federated Moulders' Union (1921) 2 C.L.R. 1125, 11 p. 1137.

As to whether employees demanding better conditions from employers for themselves can within the term "industrial disputes" be used in this placitum include a condition that if non-unionists are employed their industrial conditions shall be the same as in Unions of Engineering Union v. Alderbury Pty Ltd (1926) 24 C.L.R. 402, 402 at p. 417, 14 A.L.J. 401, 401 at p. 405. See Metall Trades Employers' Association v. Australasian Engineering Union (1935) 54 C.L.R. 387, 42 A.L.J. 74 (for p. 12).

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Gavan Duffy, Rich and Starke, JJ., Isaacs, J. dissenting) that a dispute between the State and the school teachers employed by them is not an "industrial dispute" within the meaning of this placitum, the occupation of the teachers not being an industrial occupation. Federated State School Teachers' Association of Victoria v. State of Victoria (1920) 41 C.L.R. 569, 36 A.L.J. 129.

Theatrical Club* (1929) 27 C.L.R. 940.

Galtie* (1929) 27 C.L.R. 13.

As to whether an award already made by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration may be requested in order to make members of another industrial union bound by the award. See Western Australian Timber Workers' Industrial Union of Workers (S.B. Land Division) v. Western Australian Sawmillers' Association (1929) 45 C.L.R. 38, 6 A.L.J. 20.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that it has not power to make an award binding employees neither members of a respondent union nor personally parties to a dispute. R. J. McKinnon Pty Ltd v. Court of Arbitration of Western Textile Inc. (1929) 29 C.L.R. 339.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Gavan Duffy, Rich, Starke and Dixon, JJ., Isaacs, J. dissenting) that in so far as an award of the Arbitration Court purports to bind an employer in respect of every person employed by him whether a member of the union or not it was ultra vires. Question whether power to make such an award could be conferred by legislation under this placitum discussed by High Court. Australasian Engineering Union v. Australasian Engineering Union (1935) 54 C.L.R. 387, 42 A.L.J. 74.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Gavan Duffy, Rich, Starke and Dixon, JJ.) that to constitute an industrial dispute there must be disagreement between people or groups of people who stand in some industrial relation upon some matter which affects or arises out of the relationship. Such a disagreement may cause a strike, a lock-out and disturbance and dislocation of industry, but these are the consequences of the industrial dispute and not the industrial dispute itself, which lies in the disagreement. Queensland Collieries Ltd v. Australasian Coal and Shale Employees' Federation (No. 1), (1930) 42 C.L.R. 527, 36 A.L.J. 61.

Held by the High Court that the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration has not jurisdiction over an alleged industrial dispute extending beyond the limits of any one State unless

It is real and genuine, and that the question whether it is real and genuine, upon proceedings in prohibition, is to be determined by the High Court on its own independent view of the evidence. Caledonian Collieries Ltd v Australasian Coal and Shale Employees' Federation (No 2), (1930) 42 C.L.R. 556; 36 A.L.J. 148.

Held by the High Court (Gavan Duffy, Rich, Starke and Dixon, JJ) that in order to give the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration jurisdiction, the two-State dispute must exist between the parties antecedently to the award or agreement which composes it, and the dispute must arise out of their disagreement about the manner in which they shall regulate their own industrial relations. Caledonian Collieries Ltd v Australasian Coal and Shale Employees' Federation (No 2), (1930) 42 C.L.R. 558; 36 A.L.J. 148.

Held by the High Court (Rich, Dixon, Latham and McHernan JJ, Gavan Duffy, CJ and Starke, J dissenting) that when organizations of employees and of employers serve upon one another, and upon employers and employees respectively, laws of wages and conditions and the employers' law specifies the amounts they require to be paid, and the employers' law the lower amounts they desire to be adopted, as minimum rates of pay, no dispute arises as to minimum rates lower than those specified in the employers' law. Australasian Insurance Staffs' Federation v Atlas Assurance Co Ltd (1931) 44 C.L.R. 409; 37 A.L.J. 287.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that employees cannot join individual employers as parties to a dispute so that any award made would be binding on all employees whether members of the respondent organization or employees not. Master Butchers' Meat and Allied Trades' Federation of Australia v Australasian Meat Industry Employees' Union (1931) 44 C.L.R. 512 at p. 513.

An award provided that a union should not be engaged in certain specific occupations except under a contract of apprenticeship if made in accordance with the award. Held by the High Court that as the provision in question was within the ambit of the industrial law determined by the award, an employer a party to the award might be convicted of a breach of that provision even though the union engaged by him was not a member of the organization not employees bound by the award. Logys (Child) v Australian Coal Miners' Association (1931) 44 C.L.R. 143; 37 A.L.J. 207. Case considered in Metallurgical Employers' Association v Australasian Engineering Union (1935) 42 C.L.R. 387; 42 A.L.J. 71.

Held by the High Court (Latham J) that the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration has jurisdiction to make an award binding present and future members of an employers' organization purely for a dispute in respect of members of an employees' organization purely to the same dispute employed by them. Metallurgical Engineering Union v Metallurgical Employers' Association (1935) 42 C.L.R. 388; 42 A.L.J. 70.

A union of employees in an industry served by employees in that industry previous to the award of the award is to be treated as a union of employees in that industry for the purpose of the award. Held by the High Court (Latham CJ, Rich, Latham and McHernan JJ, Starke and Dixon JJ dissenting) that as between the union and the employers' award with the law there was no dispute and dispute for the purpose of the award. Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that jurisdiction to make an award binding upon all employers who did not employ members of the union is not confined to those who did not employ members of all employees including non-members. Metallurgical Employers' Association v Australasian Engineering Union (1935) 42 C.L.R. 388; 42 A.L.J. 70.

Held also that where a union served an employer, the award binding upon all employers who did not employ members of the union requested by a union to be included in the award in the provision of the terms of employment of non-members was not within the ambit of the dispute arising out of the employers' refusal of the demands. Metallurgical Employers' Association v Australasian Engineering Union (1935) 42 C.L.R. 388; 42 A.L.J. 70.

(e) Meaning of "Extending beyond the limits of any one State"

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that where a business extends beyond the limits of one State and a dispute arises in that business and the dispute is taken up by an organization representing that industry, the Court has jurisdiction to determine whether the dispute arises in different States or all in one State. Australasian Institute of Marine Engineers' Union v Smith (1936) 43 C.L.R. 41.

A Federal Association of employees in the building trade, with branches in Victoria and South Australia, both branches being registered under the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act though the main body was not so registered. Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that the fact that an employer's business extends beyond a State is not sufficient to constitute interstate dispute. It must be shown that the dispute extends beyond the limits of a State. Marion Coal Miners' and Butchers' Association of Australia v Commonwealth Securities Office (1935) 42 C.L.R. 47.

Held by the High Court that where the employees engaged in different branches of one industry carried on in different States by a single employer take concerted action in making a common claim and on their employer for certain conditions of employment and the employer, understanding that the demand is so made on behalf of all the employees, refuses to accede to it, there arises an industrial dispute extending beyond the limits of one State within the meaning of this platform recognizable by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration. R v Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration Re parte Broken Hill Pty Co Ltd, (1939) 8 C.J.R. 419; 15 A.L.J. 416.

Held by the High Court (Jassem Gavan Duffy, Powers and Rich JJ) that the phrase "industrial dispute" extending beyond the limits of any one State in this provision is to be construed according to the natural and ordinary meaning of the words as understood at the time of the passing of the Constitution Act. Re Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration and Merchant Service Guild of Australasia v Commonwealth Steamship Owners Association (1913) 18 C.L.R. 22, 20 A.L.J. 423.

Pty. Ltd.* (1925) 22 C L R 856.

Held by the High Court (Gavan Duffy, Rich, Clarke and Dixon JJ) that to constitute an industrial dispute there must be disagreement between people or groups of people who stand in some industrial relation upon some matter which affects or arises out of the relationship, and that upon this conception of an industrial dispute it cannot extend beyond the limits of any one State unless in each of two or more States at one time the disagreement exists between people or groups who stand in some industrial relation. Calderonian Collieries Ltd. v Australasian Coal and Shale Employees' Federation (No. 1), (1930) 42 C L R 627, 40 C L R 61.

Held by the High Court (Gavan Duffy, Rich, Clarke and Dixon JJ) that the words "extending beyond the limits of any one State" as applied to a dispute, mean that the dispute is one "existing in two or more States," or in other words, covering Australian territory comprised within two or more States. Ibid.

Held by the High Court of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that where after an award has been made no industrial dispute exists in all States but one, cases to carry on business, the employees in that State continue to be bound by the award. Marine Cooks' Unions and Butchers' Association of Australasia v Butchers' Guild of A.C.T. (1931) 30 C L R 133.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that where an organization of employers having male and female members is in dispute with employees in two States, even though the female members of the union reside in one State only, an industrial dispute exists. Federated Confectionists' Association of Australia v Australian Confectionery Ltd. (1931) 30 C L R 790.

Held by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration that the absence of interstate competition in a particular industry is not a sufficient criterion that interstate dispute cannot exist in that industry. Meat and Butchers' Meat and Allied Trades Federation of Australia v Australasian Meat Industry Employees Union, (1931) 30 C L R 512 at p. 516.

As to whether there is an industrial dispute in an industry some branches of which exist in one State only, an award may be made by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration as to those branches only, see Printing and Allied Trades Employers Federation of Australia v Adams (1937) 32 C L R 78.

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the High Court that this plenary coupled with ss. 10 and 51, authorizes the enactment of s. 154A of the Commonwealth Electoral Act 1903-1911 which requires the signing of electoral articles in newspapers at the time of elections. Smith v Oldham (1912) 15 C L R 355, 18 A L J R 445.

Held by the High Court that this plenary coupled with ss. 10 and 51 (xxxv), authorizes the enactment of s. 14 of the Commonwealth Electoral (War time) Act 1917 which provides that, on the day appointed as polling day for an election of the Senate or a general election of the House of Representatives, no referendum or vote of the electors of any State or part of a State shall be taken under the law of a State. R v Brisbane (Quinn) v. The People (1920) 28 C L R 23, 26 A L J R 105.

The exercise within the Commonwealth, at the request or with the concurrence of the Parliaments of all the States directly concerned, of any power⁽¹⁾ which can at the establishment of this Constitution be exercised only by the Parliament of the United Kingdom or by the Federal Council of Australasia

GENERAL NOTE. -⁽¹⁾ No powers had up to the date of the preparation of this volume been exercised in pursuance of this provision

(xxxix.)^(a) Matters incidental^(b) to the execution of any power vested by this Constitution in the Parliament or in either House thereof, or in the Government of the Commonwealth, or in the Federal Judicature^(c), or in any department or officer of the Commonwealth^(d)

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Reason for insertion of this plaitum discussed by High Court. Huddart Parker & Co., Ltd v Moorehead (1909) 8 C L R 310 at 311 364 6 (see also 1 357) 1 A L R 241, at p 254 (see also p 261)

As to its being a fundamental principle of the Constitution that everything necessary to the effective exercise of a power granted by the Constitution is included in the grant of the power, see Baxter v Ah Hai (1907) 8 C L R 121 at 127 133 134 135 136 137 138 139 140 141 142

Held by the High Court (Justice Higgins gave the dissenting judgment) that within the limits as to subject matter provided by the Constitution the power of Parliament to make laws is plenary and includes the power within the limits of the subject matter of the law and that the power conferred by this plaitum to make laws with respect to matters incidental to the execution of any of the powers therein mentioned is as plenary as any other of the powers to make laws. R v Hudson, (1915) 20 C L R 425 21 A L R 40

Plaitum cited by Justice Rich and Starke JJ in support of the view that s 54 of the Constitution referring to rights conferred against the Commonwealth or a State is not restricted to mere procedural regulations which affect only the right to proceed but to method of procedure those matters being covered by this plaitum. Commonwealth v New South Wales (1922) 32 C L R 200, at p 215, 220 A L R 289, at p 291

(b) Held by the High Court that this plaitum empowers the Parliament s 37 of the Judiciary Act 1903, under which the High Court is authorized in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction to remit a cause to the Supreme Court for the execution of the judgment of the High Court and there is imposed upon the Supreme Court the duty of executing the judgment of the High Court in the same manner as if that judgment were the judgment of the Supreme Court. Bayne v Lake, (1909) 8 C L R 497, 14 A L R 103

Held by the High Court that provisions for the registration of associations or organizations (even associations of employees in an industry in one State only) and for the incorporation of organizations when registered are valid as being incidental to the power conferred upon the Commonwealth Parliament by plaitum (xxxix). Jindanna Coal Mine v Jindanna Victorian Coal Miners Association, (1908) 8 C L R 909, 14 A L R 701

Held by the High Court that those provisions of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act which purport to authorize the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration to declare a common rule in any particular industry and direct that that common rule shall be binding upon the persons engaged in that industry are not ultra vires the power conferred in s 51 (xxxix), but are ultra vires and invalid. Australian Food Trade Employers Federation v Whymou & Co, (1910) 11 C L R 311 16 A L R 111

Held by the High Court that a power to take a law compelling persons to give evidence on matters as to which the Executive Government of the Commonwealth thinks it desirable to collect information to be made use of in exercising any existing power of the Commonwealth Parliament is "incidental" to the execution of that power within this plaitum. But held also by Griffith CJ and Barton, J (Justice and Higgins, JJ, dissenting) that such an incidental power does not extend to enacting a law compelling persons to give evidence on matters of information as to which is relevant only to a possible amendment of the Constitution under s 128 thereof. Held therefore that the Hoyal Commonwealth Act 1902-1912 is within the power of the Commonwealth Parliament to enact but (by Griffith CJ, and Barton, J, Justice and Higgins, JJ, dissenting) that it should be construed as intended to apply to compell evidence only on matters as to which the Executive Government of the Commonwealth think it desirable to collect information to be made use of in exercising any existing power of the Parliament of the Commonwealth. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. v. Attorney General for the Commonwealth, (1912) 15 C.L.R. 142, 19 C.L.R. 429. But held by the Privy Council that the Royal Commissioners Act 1902 1912 is ultra vires the Commonwealth Parliament and valid so far as it purports to enable a Royal Commission to compel answers generally to questions or to order the production of documents, or otherwise to enforce compliance by the members of the public with its requisition. Attorney General for the Commonwealth v. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. 1914 A.C. 257, 17 C.L.R. 644, 20 A.L.J. 22.

As to whether a law requiring the signing of electoral articles in newspapers at the time of elections would be incidental if not directly a law relating to elections, see Smith v. Oldham, (1912) 15 C.L.R. 355, at pp. 361, 362, 18 A.L.J. 448 at p. 451.

As to whether a provision, authorizing employers and employees to come together out of Court and agree to terms of settlement of a dispute, is incidental to the prevention and settlement of industrial disputes by conciliation and arbitration see J. C. Williamson Ltd. v. Musician's Union of Australia, (1912) 15 C.L.R. 410, at p. 443, 13 A.L.J. 84 at p. 86.

As to whether a provision to a land tax law which specifies that a husband or wife to whom land is transferred is to be treated in certain events as the joint owner, and assessable in land tax, is incidental to such a law, see Hetherington v. Deputy Federal Commissioner of Land Tax South Australia, (1914) 17 C.L.R. 64, at pp. 670, 673, 8, 20 A.L.J. 153 at pp. 157, 159, 60.

As to whether legislation providing for compensation to a shipowner engaged upon vessels engaged in interstate shipping is incidental to the power of the Commonwealth Parliament to legislate with respect to interstate trade and commerce, including navigation and shipping, see Australian Steamships Limited v. Adelaide, (1913) 19 C.L.R. 295, at pp. 315, 316, 412, 137, 140, 21 A.L.J. 47 at pp. 49-51, 51.

As to the effect of this plactum upon the power of the Commonwealth to establish a bank, see Horne v. Scott, (1914) 19 C.L.R. 391, at p. 393, 39, 402, 21 A.L.J. 102 at pp. 104, 107.

Held by the High Court that s. 84 of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920, which gives the plaintiff the right to obtain discovery of documents from, and to administer interrogatories to the defendant, applies where the plaintiff is a resident of one State and the defendant is a State other than that in which the plaintiff resides, and the section in question is "incidental" within the meaning of this placitum (Griffin v. South Australia, (1921) 33 C.L.R. 200, 41 A.L.J.R. 91).

Held by the High Court that this placitum, coupled with s. 77 (ii), is authority for the enactment of s. 40 A of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920, under which cases pending in the Supreme Court of a State, and involving questions as to the limits of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and one or more States, or as to the limits of the constitutional powers of two or more States are removed to the High Court. Parry v. Mitchell (1925) 36 C.L.R. 170, 41 A.L.J.R. 363.

Held by the High Court that s. 90 of the Commonwealth Constitution and Arbitration Act 1901-1921 providing for the exercise of the legislative power of the Commonwealth under placitum (xxxix) and this placitum Australian Commonwealth Shipping Board v. Federated Seamen's Union of Australia (1925) 36 C.L.R. 442, 41 A.L.J.R. 332.

As to whether this placitum either alone or read with s. 41 supports s. 84 of the Immigration Act 1901-1920 which empowers the Minister in certain cases to order to enter to a ship and the question whether certain persons not born in Australia should be shipped from the Commonwealth, see Ex parte Walsh and Johnson. In re Johns, (1924) 37 C.L.R. 11 at pp. 70-1, 91-108, 111-117, 118-122, 119-2, 32 A.L.J.R. 46, at pp. 54-5, 67-15 (9-71-4-51).

Federal Australian Commonwealth Shipping Board* (1925) 36 C.L.R. 1 at p. 9, 41 A.L.J.R. 31 at p. 61.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Powers, Rich and Starke JJ., Knox C.J. and Gavan Duffy, J., dissenting) that the Parliament of the Commonwealth has power under placitum (xxxix) to deal with this placitum, to act upon a person prosecuted upon a charge of being a prohibited immigrant found within the Commonwealth the burden of proving that he is not an immigrant as well as that he has not evaded an officer, and that therefore sub-articles (c) and (d) of s. 5 of the Immigration Act 1901-1925 are valid. Halliday v. The Queen (1921) 33 C.L.R. 93, 41 A.L.J.R. 13.

Held by the High Court (Knox C.J., Rich and Dixon JJ., Isaacs and Starke JJ., dissenting) that although this placitum confers power upon the Parliament to make laws with respect to matters which affect or may in the exercise of any power vested in the Constitution by the Federal Judiciary, affecting them in matters in which the subject is incidentally the Commonwealth, nevertheless it does not authorise the recognition of a State Court which is invested with Federal jurisdiction in or of the organization of the law which is not a part of the law of the Commonwealth. Ex parte Meaurio v. Connor (1911) 8 C.L.R. 481, 31 A.L.J.R. 11, 13 C.L.R. 17.

Held by the High Court that the provisions contained in s. 84 of the Commonwealth Constitution and Arbitration Act 1901-1921 as to printing or publishing in documents to contain breaches of the Act is within the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth which extend to punishing all instruments to commit contravention of any law of the Commonwealth which enabled Crusoe Association of New South Wales v. Fisher Daily Ltd. (1911) 8 C.L.R. 1.

As to whether Part II of the Immigration (Enforcement) Act 1925 is within the power of the Parliament from this placitum, see New South Wales v. Commonwealth (No. 3) (1925) 36 C.L.R. 275 at pp. 173, 174, 176, 177, 180-181, 202-203, 211-21, 221-225, 229-231, 39 A.L.J.R. 24 at pp. 34-51, 260-264-72.

As to whether this placitum either alone or read with s. 41 supports the provisions contained in s. 30A of the Crimin. Act 1914-1920 as to the prohibition of associations which by their constitutions or proposals advocate or encourage the overthrow of the Constitution of the Commonwealth by revolution or of the established government of the Commonwealth by force or violence, see Re v. Bush. Ex parte Devenney (1925) 36 C.L.R. 187 at pp. 306, 313.

As to whether the constitutional power of the Commonwealth to act in the manner for New South Wales is derived from this placitum, see Jolley v. Mannu (1925) 36 C.L.R. 250 at p. 250, 41 A.L.J.R. 506, at p. 608.

As to whether this placitum in combination with s. 77 (iii) empowers the Parliament to enact new remedies, or merely to give State Courts a Federal authority to administer existing remedies, see Williams v. R. (No. 2), (1934) 50 C.L.R. 551, at pp. 558-9, 40 A.L.J.R. 314 at p. 316.

Commonwealth* (1934) 52 C.L.R. 533, at pp. 562-3, 41 A.L.J.R. 218 at p. 232.

As to whether, in s. 67 (1) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1934 which imposes an additional tax or a minimum sum of £1 in direct payments in effect of the duty of this observance of the duty of the judicial power is incidental to the legislative power with respect to taxation, see *Jolly v. (c) As to whether, within the meaning of this placitum, State Courts invested with Federal jurisdiction form part of the "Federal Judiciary", and their jurisdiction is a power "vested by this Constitution", see Le Meurier v. Connor (1921) 32 C.L.R. 481, 41 A.L.J.R. 11, 13 A.L.J.R. 97.

Held by Higgins, J., that the word "exclusive" in this section means simply exclusive of State Parliaments exclusive of a power to be granted. Valley v Laidlaw & Co Ltd v Hartley, (1925) 36 C.L.R. 30 at p. 29, 31 A.L.J. 256 (C.N.) 29.

Maxim expressio unius est exclusio alteri is applied by Higgins, J., in support of the view that the only exclusive powers of the Commonwealth are those expressed or declared to be exclusive. Roughley v. New South Wales Ex parte Harris, (1924) L.C.J.R. 162, at p. 168, 30 A.L.J. 1, at p. 13.

(ii.) Matters relating to any department of the public service^(a) the control of which is by this Constitution transferred to the Executive Government of the Commonwealth^(b):

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to whether this paragraph either alone or read with s. 61, supports s. 8AA of the Immigration Act 1901 19-20 which empowers the Minister in certain events to refer to a Board the question whether certain persons not born in Australia should be deported from the Commonwealth—see Ex parte Walsh and Johnson In re Bates, (1925) 47 C.L.R. 36 at pp. 61, 70, 81, 94, 108, 127, 133, 136, 32 A.L.J. 40, at pp. 51, 54, 58, 63, 64, 76, 79, 80.

(b) As to whether on the transfer of a Department to the Commonwealth, the official abiding place of the officers of that Department is the place of the Commonwealth so that the officers are in pursuance of this paragraph within the exclusive legislative power of the Commonwealth so as to be exempt from the Income Tax law of the State in which the place is situated, see In re Income Tax Act (No. 4) Wallaston's Case, (1902) 24 V.L.R. 357, at pp. 375, 391, 2, 8 A.L.J. 124 at pp. 192, 3, 108, 24 A.L.J. 63, at pp. 66, 72.

Held by the High Court that so far as the Postal Department is concerned, the provisions of the Audit Act as to collection and payment of monies fall within the words of this paragraph. D'Environ v. Petherick, (1904) 1 C.L.R. 91, at p. 109, 10 A.L.J. (C.N.) 30.

Held by the High Court that this paragraph renders it impossible to regard section 60 of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1902 which is a re-enactment of the provisions of s. 84 of the Constitution as preventing the application to transferred officers of the provisions of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1902 as to the classification or grading of officers and the determination of their salary limits. Cosgrave v Commonwealth, (1906) 3 C.L.R. 529; 12 A.L.J. 175.

Plaitum cited by Higgins J as sufficient authority for upholding so much of the decision of the High Court in the case of D Emlen v Pedler (1 C I R 91) as was based on the ground that the State law was interfering with the Commonwealth activities over which the Commonwealth Parliament had exclusive power. Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd (1920) 28 C I R 120 at p. 167, 8 A I R 517 at p. 149.

(iii.) Other matters declared by this Constitution to be within the exclusive power of the Parliament

53^(a) Proposed laws appropriating revenue or moneys^(b), or imposing taxation^(c), shall not originate in the Senate. But a proposed law shall not be taken to appropriate revenue or moneys, or to impose taxation, by reason only of its containing provisions for the imposition or appropriation of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment or appropriation of fees for licences^(d), or fees for services under the proposed law.

The Senate may not amend proposed laws imposing taxation, or proposed laws appropriating revenue or moneys for the ordinary annual services of the Government.

The Senate may not amend any proposed law so as to increase any proposed charge or burden on the people.

The Senate may at any stage return to the House of Representatives any proposed law which the Senate may not amend, requesting, by message, the omission or amendment of any items or provisions therein. And the House of Representatives may, if it thinks fit, make any of such omissions or amendments, with or without modifications.

Powers of the Houses in respect of legislation

Except as provided in this section, the Senate shall have equal power with the House of Representatives in respect of all proposed laws.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Meaning of secs. 51 and 55 discussed by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Victoria in Stephens v. Abraham (No. 2) (1903) 29 A.L.J.R. 226, 9 C.L.R. 89, 24 A.L.J. 216. Section cited by Id. as an instance of the generic term "taxation" including duties of customs and duties of excise whereas in s. 55 the generic term "taxation" and the specific terms "duties of customs" and "duties of excise" are used. *Attorney-General v. (b) Per Isaacs and Rich JJ. An Appropriation Act of the Commonwealth Parliament appropriating money towards payment in respect of an agreement made by the Executive Government on behalf of the Commonwealth which agreement without Parliamentary authority would be invalid, does not validate that agreement. Commonwealth v. Colonial Ammunition Co. Ltd. (1921) 31 C.L.R. 198. See also New South Wales v. Bardolph (1913) 12 C.L.R. 33, 41 A.L.J. 2.

(c) As to whether the payment to the Commonwealth by a wool top manufacturing company of a share of the profits (called a licence fee), in return for consent by the Commonwealth to a sale of wool tops by the company as "taxation" within the meaning of this section, see Commonwealth v. Colonial Combining, Spinning and Weaving Co. Ltd., (1923) 31 C.L.R. 421, at pp. 443 et seq. 460, 29 A.L.J. 138, at pp. 144 et seq., 151.

(d) As to whether the payment to the Commonwealth by a wool top manufacturing company of a share of the profits (called a licence fee), in return for consent by the Commonwealth to a sale of wool tops by the company is a fee for a licence within the meaning of this section, see Commonwealth v. Colonial Combining, Spinning and Weaving Co. Ltd., (1923) 31 C.L.R. 421, at pp. 464, 5, 29 A.L.J. 138, at p. 151.

Appropriation Bill

54^(a) The proposed law which appropriates revenue or money^(b) for the ordinary annual services of the Government shall deal only with such appropriation.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to the effect of a breach of the provisions of this section on the validity of an Act, see Osborne v. Commonwealth, (1911) 12 C.L.R. 321, at pp. 336, 351 & 355-6, 90, 373, 17 A.L.J. 242, at pp. 245, 251-3, 256, 259. *Buchanan v. Tax Bill 55^(a) Laws imposing taxation^(b) shall deal only with the imposition of taxation^(c), and any provision therein dealing with any other matter^(d) shall be of no effect.

Laws imposing^(c) taxation, except laws imposing duties of customs or of excise, shall deal with^(e) one subject of taxation only^(f); but laws imposing duties of customs shall deal with duties of customs only^(g), and laws imposing duties of excise shall deal with duties of excise only.

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the High Court that the limitations imposed by this section upon the making of laws imposing taxation apply only to such laws as are made under the power conferred by s. 51 (1), and do not apply to laws made under the power conferred by s. 122 to make laws for the government of territories. Buchanan v. Commonwealth, (1913) 16 C.L.R. 315, 19 A.L.J. 261.

(b) Held by the Full Court of Victoria that Part XIII of the Customs Act 1901 (Commonwealth) is not a "law imposing taxation" within the meaning of this section. Stephens v. Abraham (No. 2) (1903) 29 A.L.J. 229, 9 A.L.J. 89, 24 A.L.J. 216.

As to the generic term "taxation" in this section including customs and excise duties, see Attorney-General v. Collector of Customs, New South Wales, (1908) 5 C.L.R. 818, at pp. 820, 855; 14 A.L.J. 518, at pp. 527, 529.

Section cited by Barton, if as an instance of the use of the generic term "taxation", and the specific terms "duties of customs" and "duties of excise", whereas in s. 53 the generic term "taxation" includes duties of customs and duties of excise. Attorney General for New South Wales v. Collector of Customs for New South Wales, (1908) 5 C.L.R. 818, at p. 838, 14 A.L.J. 616, at p. 523.

As to whether a 7 of the Customs Tariff 1903 which provides inter alia that all duties of customs collected pursuant to any tariff or tariff alteration shall be deemed to have been lawfully imposed and collected is a "law imposing taxation" within the meaning of this section. See Sargood Bros v. Commonwealth, (1910) 11 C.L.R. 254, at pp. 267, 274, 280, 287, 16 A.L.J. 483, at pp. 486, 489, 491, 494.

As to whether the Customs Act 1901 is a law imposing taxation. See O'Garra v. Collector of Customs for New South Wales, (1916) 21 C.L.R. 211, at p. 217, 22 A.L.J. 80, at p. 80.

As to whether the Land Tax Assessment Act 1910 is a law imposing taxation. See O'Garra v. Commonwealth, (1911) 12 C.L.R. 321, at pp. 335, 6, 349, 14 A.L.J. 372, 17 A.L.J. 212, at pp. 213, 211, 251, 259.

Argument that s. 10 (2) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1915 1916 which provides that "where, in the opinion of the Commissioner, a company has not in any year distributed to its members or shareholders a reasonable proportion of its taxable income, the taxable income of the company shall be deemed to have been distributed to the members or shareholders in proportion to their interests in the paid up capital of the company. If the Commissioner is satisfied that the total tax payable on it as distributed income is greater than the tax payable on it by the company," imposes a penalty and is not income tax, and is therefore a contravention of this section and of no effect not upheld by High Court. Cornell v. Deputy Federal Commissioner of Taxation (South Australia), (1920) 29 C.L.R. 39, 26 A.L.J. 295.

Held by the High Court that the provision in 15 of the Customs Act 1901-1916 which provides that "whenever any such customs security is put in suit by the collector the production thereof without further proof shall entitle the collector to judgment for the amount stated in the bill against the persons appearing to have executed the same unless the defendants shall prove compliance with the condition or that the security was not executed by them or release or satisfaction is a law relating to customs and not invalid under this section. Commonwealth v. Melbourne Harbour Trust Commissioners, (1922) 11 C.L.R. 1, 28 A.L.J. 22.

As to whether the payment to the Commonwealth by a wool top manuf. turning company of a share of the profits (called a licence fee) in return for consent by the Commonwealth to the sale of wool tops by the company, is taxation. See Commonwealth v. Colonial Combining, Spinning, and Weaving Co. Ltd., (1922) 31 C.L.R. 421, at pp. 443, 457, 460, 29 A.L.J. 338, at pp. 113, 150, 1.

(c) Held by the High Court (Griffith C.J., Barton and O'Connor, JJ., Isaacs and Higgins JJ. dissenting) that an Act purporting to impose duties of excise on certain manufactured goods, with a proviso that the Act shall not apply to any such goods manufactured under conditions of labour, is invalid as dealing with matters other than the imposition of taxation, and that such other matters could not be omitted as being of no effect since with its omission the Act would have an operation inconsistent with the express intention of the Legislature. R v. Barker (Commonwealth v. Barker), (1908) 6 C.L.R. 41, 14 A.L.J. 374.

Held by the High Court that the tax imposed by the Parliament by s. 39 of the Land Tax Assessment Act 1910 upon the shareholders of a company as in respect of land owned by the company, is land taxation, and is not invalid by reason of this section. Morgan v. Deputy Federal Commissioner of Land Tax New South Wales, (1912) 15 C.L.R. 461, 17 A.L.J. 129, Attorney General for Queensland v. Attorney-General for the Commonwealth, (1917) 20 C.L.R. 148, 21 A.L.J. 221. See also Attorney-General for Queensland v. Attorney-General for the Commonwealth, (1917) 20 C.L.R. 148, 21 A.L.J. 221.

Held by the High Court that the provisions of s. 36 of the Land Tax Assessment Act 1910 under which a husband or wife to whom land is transferred is deemed to retain rights to the land owned, and as such liable to land tax, are ultra vires either as being in contravention of this section or as being beyond the powers conferred on the Commonwealth Parliament by the Constitution. Waters v. Deputy Federal Commissioner of Land Tax South Australia, (1914) 14 C.L.R. 662, 20 A.L.J. 135.

Held by the High Court that the provision in s. 5 (1) of the Land Tax Assessment Act 1914 under which the property which passed from a deceased person by a gift inter vivos or settlement made within one year before the testator's death shall be deemed for the purposes of the Act to be part of his estate, is not invalid as dealing with more than one subject-matter within the meaning of s. 5 of the Constitution. National Trustees Executors and Agency Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1916) 22 C.L.R. 367, 22 A.L.J. 101.

Held by the High Court that the inclusion in the Income Tax Assessment Act 1915 1916 (which is incorporated with the Income Tax Act 1911) of the provision that the amount of the income tax payable on the capital value of land and improvements thereon owned or used rent free by the taxpayer for the purpose of residence or enjoyment does not make the Income Tax Act inconsistent with a subject of taxation other than income. Held that the provisions of s. 5 of the Constitution are not invalid under this section as dealing with more than one subject of taxation. Helding v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1917) 21 C.L.R. 110, 23 A.L.J. 137.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Higgins, Gavan Duffy JJ. JJ. JJ.) that neither the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1921 nor the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1921, nor either of the Taxing Acts incorporating those Assessment Acts is of noxious to any of the provisions of this section. Meaning of the two paragraphs of s. 55, and the legal effect of the contravention of each paragraph, discussed in Federal Commissioner of Taxation v. Munro British Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Taxation, (1926) 38 C.L.R. 153, 32 A.L.J. 119.

Held by the High Court that the Customs Tariff (Industries Preserved) Act 1911-1912 deals only with the imposition of taxation, and therefore does not infringe the first paragraph of this section. Bolt Bros & Co. Ltd. v. Harcourt, (1921) 30 C.L.R. 20, 27 A.L.J. 1.

See also note (f) infra as to Attorney-General v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation.

(e) As to whether a law dealing with taxation is necessarily a law imposing taxation, see Osborne v. Commonwealth, (1911) 12 C.L.R. 321, at pp. 335, 6, 349, 355, 161, 173, 17 A.L.J. 212, at pp. 245, 250, 252, 256, 259, Buchanan v. Commonwealth, (1913) 16 C.L.R. 31, at p. 328, 19 A.L.J. 251, at p. 256.

As to whether a distinction exists between laws imposing taxation and laws "dealing with the imposition of taxation", see Federal Commissioner of Taxation v. Munro British Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1926) 38 C.L.R. 153, at p. 150, 32 A.L.J. 339, at p. 352.

(f) As to whether the transgression of the second paragraph of this section is fatal to the validity of the provision which so transgresses, see Osborne v. Commonwealth, (1911) 12 C.L.R. 321, at pp. 336-7, 360-3, 365-7, 372-4; 17 A.L.J. 232, at pp. 245-6, 251-5, 259-60, Buchanan v. Commonwealth, (1913) 16 C.L.R. 31, at p. 329, 19 A.L.J. 251, at p. 257.

As to whether the Land Tax Assessment Act 1910 deals with more than one subject of taxation, see Osborne v Commonwealth, (1911) 12 C L R 321, at pp 315-40, 340-50, 355, 357, 362-4, 373-3, 1 A L J 262, at pp 245, 7, 250, 1, 255, 6, 259.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C J, Isaacs and Rich JJ) that the tax imposed by the compulsory effect of s 26(1) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922 and the Income Tax Act 1923 is not a subject of taxation different from that dealt with by the other provisions of those Acts, and that those Acts are not in that respect obnoxious to the provisions of this section. British Imperial Oil Ltd v Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1925) 35 C L R 422, 31 A L J 129.

Held by the High Court that the provision in s 14(5) of the War-time Profits Tax Assessment Act 1917-1918 which in certain cases imposed on the transferee of a business a personal liability to pay war-time profits tax on profits earned in the business prior to the transfer, did not deal with a subject of taxation other than war-time profits, and was therefore not obnoxious to this section. Federal Commissioner of Taxation v Hyslop Ltd, (1926) 38 C L R 411, 33 A L J 432.

Held by the High Court that s 20(2)(b) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1932 which requires a company to pay income tax on the interest paid by it to any person, who is an alien, or money raised by the shareholders of the company and used in Australia, is not invalid as having an extra-territorial application or as contravening this section in dealing with more than one subject of taxation (i.e. outgoings as well as income). Colonial Gas Association Ltd v Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1931) 31 C L R 172, 40 A L J 187, 2 A L J 47.

Quia, per Rich and Latham JJ, whether s 47(1) of the Income Tax Assessment Act, in imposing an additional tax on a business of a person transferring the business, contravenes this section as not imposing a tax upon income, which is the subject-matter of the Act, is not dealing with taxation of all things. Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1931) 31 C L R 20, at p 211, 41 A L J 211, at pp 212-3.

See also notes (c) and (e) supra as to Federal Commissioner of Taxation v Munro.

(g) Observation as to separate subject-matters (i.e. the Machinery Acts) from the Customs Tariffs (i.e. the Taxing Acts). Commonwealth v Melbourne Harbour Trust Commissioners (1922) 11 C L R 1, at p 14, 29 A L J 323, at p 331. Held by the High Court that s 8 of the Customs Tariff (Industries Protection) Act 1921-1922 deals with duties of customs only, and therefore does not bring the second paragraph of s 51 of the Constitution. Vith Bros & Carter Ltd v Rundle (1925) 36 C L R 20, 31 A L J 250.

Recommendation of money votes.

56. A vote, resolution, or proposed law for the appropriation of revenue or moneys shall not be passed unless the purpose of the appropriation has in the same session been recommended by message of the Governor General to the House in which the proposal originated.

Disagreement between the Houses.

57. If the House of Representatives passes any proposed law, and the Senate rejects or fails to pass it, or passes it with amendments to which the House of Representatives will not agree, and if after an interval of three months the House of Representatives, in the same or the next session, again passes the proposed law with or without any amendments which have been made, suggested, or agreed to by the Senate, and the Senate rejects or fails to pass it, or passes it with amendments to which the House of Representatives will not agree, the Governor-General may dissolve the Senate and the House of Representatives simultaneously⁽¹⁾. But such dissolution shall not take place within six months before the date of the expiry of the House of Representatives by effluxion of time.

The members present at the joint sitting may deliberate and shall vote together upon the proposed law as last proposed by the House of Representatives, and upon amendments, if any, which have been made therein by one House and not agreed to by the other, and any such amendments which are affirmed by an absolute majority of the total number of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives shall be taken to have been carried, and if the proposed law, with the amendments, if any, so carried is affirmed by an absolute majority of the total number of the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, it shall be taken to have been duly passed by both Houses of the Parliament, and shall be presented to the Governor-General for the Queen's assent

GENERAL NOTES — (1) Up to the date of the preparation of this volume the only double dissolution which had occurred was that which took place in 1914 the proposed law occasioning it being the Government Preference Prohibition Bill which was twice passed by the House of Representatives and twice rejected by the Senate

(Note: By the Commonwealth Salaries Act 1907 the Parliament enacted inter alia that subject to certain provisions, the taxation by a State, in common with other salaries earned within the State of the allowances and salaries paid after the commencement of that Act of Ministers of the Parliament of Victoria, State and of Ministers of State in the Commonwealth and the President Officer and Chairman of Committees of each House of the Parliament (all being respectively Ministers of the Parliament elected in the State) should not, if the taxation was not at a higher rate or to a greater extent than was imposed on other salaries of the same amount earned in the State, be deemed—

- (i) to be an interference with the exercise of any power of the Commonwealth; or
- (ii) to be inconsistent with any Act by reason of which the salary was fixed or made payable

67. Until the Parliament otherwise provides,⁽¹⁾ the appointment and removal of all other officers of the Executive Government of the Commonwealth shall be vested in the Governor-General in Council, unless the appointment is delegated by the Governor-General in Council or by a law of the Commonwealth to some other authority.^(a) Appointment of civil servants.

GENERAL NOTES.—(1) Under various Acts the appointment and removal of officers has been vested in other authorities than the Governor-General. For Acts passed in pursuance of this section, see list contained in Table of Commonwealth Legislation opposite to section 67 (supra pp. xxxv-xxxvi).

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the High Court that in the case of an officer of the Civil Service of South Australia who was retained in the service of the Commonwealth when the Department in which he was employed was transferred to the Commonwealth, the power of removing him from the Public Service was, by virtue of this section and s. 67 of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1922, vested in the Commonwealth Board of Commissioners and not in the Governor-General. Bradshaw v Commonwealth (1925) 36 C.L.J. 585, 31 A.L.J. 441.

Question whether this section or s. 70 of the Constitution applies in the application to South Australian transferred officers of the provision of s. 11 of the Constitution Act 1874 (S.A.) relating to the diminution of the number of officers in a Department discussed by High Court. Adwards v Commonwealth, (1935) 54 C.L.J. 313; 42 A.L.J. 35.

(a) As to whether this section constitutes a sufficient authority to the Commonwealth to manufacture at the Commonwealth Clothing Factory established under s. 63 of the Defence Act uniforms for State officers and for employees in various public offices and institutions in the State, and for some private persons see Attorney General for Victoria v Commonwealth (1935) 52 C L R 533 at pp 555, 559, 566-7, 41 A L R 246 at pp 249, 251, 253.

(b) As to the royal prerogative as to war being exercisable by the Governor-General and his Federal Ministers and not by State Ministers see Joseph v Colonial Treasurer (A S R), (1918) 25 C L R 32 at p 51, 24 A L R 485 at p 194.

Transfer of
departments.

69. On a date or dates to be proclaimed by the Governor General after the establishment of the Commonwealth the following departments of the public service^(a) in each State shall become transferred to the Commonwealth^(b) :—

Posts, telegraphs, and telephones^(c) .

Naval and military defence^(d) :

Lighthouses, lightships, beacons, and buoys .

Quarantine

But the Departments of customs and of excise in each State shall become transferred to the Commonwealth on its establishment.^(e)

GENERAL NOTES. (i) The Departments of (i) Posts, telegraphs and telephones, and (ii) Naval and military defence, were transferred to the Commonwealth on 1st March 1901. See Gazette, 14th February 1901, p 19 and 20th February, 1901, p 21.

Although the Commonwealth has passed laws relating to (iii) Lighthouses, lightships, beacons and buoys, and (iv) Quarantine, the State Departments dealing with those matters were not transferred to the Commonwealth in pursuance of this section.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Per Latham C J. The reference in this section to departments of the Public Service is a reference to the civil and not the State employed in those departments. R v Braden (1901) 11 C L R 266 at p 274, 12 A L R 41 at p 49.

(b) Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of New South Wales (Owen C J, B Simpson JJ, Stephen J dissenting) that notwithstanding the transfer of post offices to the Commonwealth in pursuance of this section the Postage Act of the State still continued in force within the area of the post offices, and a person who stole a letter in such a post office might be indicted under that Act and tried before a State Court. R v Bonford (1901) 11 C L R 58, 12 A L R 41 at p 49.

(c) As to the department of posts, telegraphs and telephones being a governmental service and not commercial see Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co Ltd v Commonwealth (A S R) (1913) 16 C L R 178 at p 207, 19 A L R 129 at p 140.

(d) As to whether, in view of the transfer to the Commonwealth under this section of the Department of Naval and Military Defence, the Commonwealth can so far dissociate itself from the administration of that department as to say any of its functions are not functions of the Commonwealth, but of some person in his individual capacity, entirely independent of the Commonwealth see Zachariasen v Commonwealth, (1917) 24 C L R 166, at p 170, 24 A L R 81, at p 82.

As to the royal prerogative as to war being exercisable by the Governor-General and his Federal Ministers (not by the State Ministers) see Joseph v Colonial Treasurer (A S R), (1918) 25 C L R 32, at p 51, 24 A L R 485, at p 194.

(e) Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of New South Wales that after the transfer of the Department of Customs to the Commonwealth under this section the Full Court had not jurisdiction to issue a mandamus to the Collector of Customs to compel him to perform a duty which he owed to the Commonwealth Government. Ex parte Goldring (1903) 3 S R (NSW) 260, 9 A L R (C N) 97.

Certain powers of Governors do vest in Governor-General.

70.^(a) In respect of matters which, under this Constitution, pass to the Executive Government of the Commonwealth, all powers and functions which at the establishment of the Commonwealth are vested in the Governor of a Colony, or in the Governor of a Colony with the advice of his Executive Council, or in any authority of a Colony, shall vest in the Governor-General, or in the Governor-General in Council^(b), or in the authority exercising similar powers under the Commonwealth^(c), as the case requires.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to whether this section has the effect of empowering a municipality by agreement to lease land in the Commonwealth, notwithstanding that the municipality was not so authorized by State law, see R v Registrar of Titles (Vic), Ex parte Commonwealth (1915) 20 C.L.R. 370 at pp 386, 397-404, 21 A.L.R. 416, at pp 437-441, 444.

(b) Held by the High Court that the discretion conferred by s. 60 (1) of the Public Service Act 1895 (N.S.W.) as to the amount of gratuity payable to an officer of the State transferred to the Commonwealth was vested in the Governor-General in Council by virtue of this section. A.S.F. v Commonwealth, (1906) 8 C.L.R. 214.

As to the Royal prerogative as to war being exercisable by the Governor-General and his Federal Ministers (not by the State Ministers) see Joseph v Colonial Treasurer (N.S.W.), (1918) 25 C.L.R. 32, at pp 46-51, 24 A.L.R. 18, at pp 190-191.

(c) As to the Commonwealth Public Service Board of Commissioners being under s. 67 of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1922 the authority exercising "similar powers under the Commonwealth" to those exercised by the Governor of South Australia under s. 28 of the Civil Service Act 1874 (S.A.), see Bradshaw v Commonwealth, (1920) 30 C.L.R. 585, 31 A.L.R. 441.

Question whether this section or s. 67 of the Constitution applies to the application to South Australian transferred officers of the provisions of s. 14 of the Civil Service Act 1874 (S.A.) relating to the diminution of the number of officers in a Department discussed by the High Court. Edwards v Commonwealth (1935) 64 C.L.R. 311, 32 A.L.R. 9.

CHAPTER III—THE JUDICATURE.

CHAPTER III THE JUDICATURE Judicial power and Courts

71 (a) The judicial power^(b) of the Commonwealth shall be vested in a Federal Supreme Court to be called the High Court of Australia, and in such other federal courts^(c) as the Parliament creates^(d), and in such other courts as it invests with federal jurisdiction^(d). The High Court shall consist of a Chief Justice, and so many other Justices, not less than two, as the Parliament prescribes^(e).

GENERAL NOTES. (1) The other Federal Courts created by the Parliament in the date of the preparation of this volume, are:

(i) The Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration created by the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act 1904 (1904).

(ii) The Federal Bankruptcy Court, created by the Bankruptcy Act 1921 (1920) and

(iii) The Supreme Court of the Australian Capital Territory created by the Seat of Government Supreme Court Act 1933.

(2) By the Judiciary Act 1903 the Parliament increased the number of other Justices of the High Court from two to four and by the Judiciary Act 1912 from four to six. By the Judiciary Act 1933 the number was reduced to five.

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Per Griffith C.J., the provisions of this section are complete and exhaustive and there cannot be a third class of courts which are neither Federal courts nor State Courts invested with federal jurisdiction. New South Wales v Commonwealth, (1915) 20 C.L.R. 54 at p. 62 (see also pp 89-90, 108-9), 21 A.L.R. 128 at p. 131 (see also pp 111-114, 111).

Held by the High Court that judicial power could be vested in the Courts mentioned in this section. Waterworks Federation of Australia v Union Tr. (1915) 20 C.L.R. 134, 21 A.L.R. 341.

Per Isaacs and Rich J.J. This section requires judicial functions to be vested in Courts strictly so called. Waterworks Federation of Australia v. Gresham, Hall and Santerres Ltd (1924) 34 C.L.R. 492 at pp 516, 543, 30 A.L.R. 402 at pp 421-425.

(b) Per Griffith C.J. and Baron J. The judicial power vested in the section includes appellate as well as original jurisdiction. Thickett v. Tel. Co. (1907) 15 C.L.R. 393 at pp 397-402 & 411-411 A.L.R. 306, at pp 309-311.

Held by the High Court that an inquiry by the Comptroller-General of Customs in pursuance of the powers conferred upon him by the Australian Industries Protection Act 1905 (1905) s. 15B is not an exercise of the judicial power of the Commonwealth. Huddart Parker and Co Pty Ltd v. Moorehead, (1909) 8 C.L.R. 330, 15 A.L.R. 241.

Nature of judicial power discussed by High Court. Huddart Parker and Co Pty Ltd v. Moorehead, (1909) 8 C.L.R. 330, at pp 355-7, 377-381, 387, 15 A.L.R. 241 at pp 249-50, 258-62.

Per O'Connor, J. The judicial power which this section declares shall be vested in the High Court is the supreme judicial power of the Commonwealth and it must necessarily include the power to keep inferior Courts of the federal judicial system from exceeding their jurisdiction. R v Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration Ex parte Whymron & Co., (1910) 11 C.L.R. 1 at p. 41, 16 A.L.R. 378, at p. 387.

Held by the High Court (Griffith, C.J., and Barton, Isaacs, Powers and Rich, JJ., Higgins, J., doubting) that the power conferred on the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration by the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act 1904-1915 to enforce awards made by it is part of 'the judicial power of the Commonwealth' within the meaning of this section and can only be vested in the Court mentioned in this section. Waterside Workers Federation of Australia v. Alexander, (1918) 25 C.L.R. 434, 24 A.L.J. 31.

Held by Barton, Isaacs, Powers and Rich JJ., that inasmuch as by s. 12 (1) of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act 1904-1915 the President of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration is to be appointed for seven years only that section is at variance with section 72 of the Constitution read with this section and the provisions conferring upon the Court power to enforce its awards are therefore invalid. Ibid.

Per Griffith, C.J. (dissenting). The assignment of a Justice of the High Court to discharge the functions of the President is valid and he may both make awards and impose penalties. Ibid.

Held by the High Court that the provision in s. 16 (2) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1915-1918, which provides that 'while in the opinion of the Commissioner a company has not in any year distributed to its members or shareholders a reasonable proportion of its taxable income the taxable income of the company shall be deemed to have been distributed to the members or shareholders in proportion to their interests in the paid up capital of the company, if the Commissioner is satisfied that the total tax payable on it as distributed income is greater than the tax payable on it by the company does not purport to confer judicial power upon the Commissioner of Taxation. Cornell v. Deputy Federal Commissioner of Taxation (South Australia) (1920) 21 C.L.R. 39, 28 A.L.J. 295.

As to whether any functions not within 'the judicial power of the Commonwealth' can be conferred on the High Court see In re Judiciary and Navigation Acts (1921) 33 C.L.R. 257, 27 A.L.J. 193, Victorian Shareholding and General Contracting Co. Pty. Ltd. and Others v. Deane, (1931) 46 C.L.R. 73, at p. 116, 38 A.L.J. 22 at p. 7. See South Wales v. Commonwealth (No. 1) (1932) 46 C.L.R. 155, at p. 186, 38 A.L.J. 25 at p. 2.

Held by the High Court that the order which the Minister for Trade and Customs made under regulation 20 (5) of the Trade of 1912 in the relations vesting in the Public Trust the property of certain German nationals was not an exercise of the judicial power of the Commonwealth within the meaning of this section. Juchacz v. Kronheimer (1921) 31 C.L.R. 323 at pp. 357-340, 27 A.L.J. 254, at pp. 258-60.

Held by the High Court that the provision in s. 48 of the Customs Act 1901-1916 providing that whenever any such customs duty is paid and is to be collected the production thereof without further proof shall entitle the collector to require if a threatened default against the persons appearing to have executed the same such as the defendants shall prove compliance with the condition on that the security was not executed by them in full or satisfaction is not an exercise of the judicial power of the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth v. Melbourne Harbour Trust Commissioners (1922) 31 C.L.R. 1, 28 A.L.J. 32.

Held by the High Court that s. 84 of the Immigration Act 1901-1920 which provides for persons of certain classes, who were not born in Australia, to be summoned before a Board to show cause why they should not be deported from the Commonwealth and for the Board making to the Minister a recommendation for their deportation does not purport to vest in the Board (portion of the judicial power of the Commonwealth). R. v. Macfarlane, Ex parte O'Hanigan and O'Hall (1921) 30 C.L.R. 518, at pp. 530-7, 50 A.L.J. 77-94, 29 A.L.J. 315 at pp. 559, 461, 571-4, 178, 380.

Held by the High Court that the power which the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1923 by ss. 44, 50 and 51 purports to confer upon a Board of Appeal created under s. 41 of the Act are part of the judicial power of the Commonwealth which under this section can only be vested in Court. The Board of Appeal did not bring a Court, the conferring of those powers on the Board of Appeal is therefore ultra vires the Parliament. British Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1923) 35 C.L.R. 424, 31 A.L.J. 121.

Held by the High Court that s. 60 of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act 1904-1921 which gives the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration power in certain cases to declare an organization to be dissolved and subject to confer on that Court part of the judicial power of the Commonwealth. Australian Commonwealth Shipping Lines v. Federated Seamen's Union of Australia, (1925) 46 C.L.R. 442, 31 A.L.J. 312.

As to whether s. 84 of the Immigration Act 1901-1920 which empowers the Minister in certain events to refer to a Board the question whether certain persons not born in Australia should be deported from the Commonwealth and the Board to recommend such a course is an exercise of the judicial power of the Commonwealth see Ex parte Walsh and Johnson, In re Rules (1925) 37 C.L.R. 39 at p. 134, 32 A.L.J. 46 at p. 79.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Higgins, Gavan Duffy, Rich and Starke JJ., Knox C.J. dissenting) that the powers which the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1925 by ss. 44, 50 and 51 purports to confer upon a Board of Review created under s. 41 of that Act are not part of the judicial power of the Commonwealth within the meaning of this section and that those sections of the Assessment Act are not an attempt by the Commonwealth Parliament to exercise the judicial power of the Commonwealth. Federal Commissioner of Taxation v. Munro, British Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1926) 35 C.L.R. 133, 32 A.L.J. 31. On appeal held by the Privy Council that the powers which the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1925 by ss. 44, 50 and 51 purports to confer upon the Board of Review created under s. 41 of that Act are not part of the judicial power of the Commonwealth which, under s. 71 of the Constitution can only be vested in the High Court or a Federal Court. *Shell Company of Australia Ltd. v. By the Bankruptcy Act 1924-1930 the Parliament fixed the remuneration of any Federal Bankruptcy Judge who had been immediately prior to his appointment to that capacity, a Judge of any Federal District Court, at the same rate of salary as that received by him as a Judge of that Federal Court.

By the Bankruptcy Act 1924-1930, s. 131 (enacted in 1930) provision was made that in the case of the retirement of a Federal Bankruptcy Judge who had been immediately prior to his appointment to that capacity a Judge of a Federal Court, there should be payable a pension at the same rate as that to which the Judge would have been entitled if his services as Judge of the Federal Court of Bankruptcy had been a continuance of his services as Judge of that Federal Court.

NOTES ON CASES. (a) As to the effect of this section upon the fact that the Interstate Commission constituted under s. 101 of the Constitution (with the limited tenure of its members) is compared with the tenure provided by s. 72 for Justices of Federal Courts) is a Court within the meaning of this section, see New South Wales v. Commonwealth (1915) 20 C.L.R. 54 at pp. 62, 72, 76, 93, 107, 108, 21 A.L.J. 128, at pp. 137, 137, 138, 135, 150.

Held by the High Court (Griffith, G.J. and Barton, Isaacs, Powers and Rich, JJ., Higgins and Gavan Duffy, JJ., dissenting) that this section requires that every Justice of the High Court and every Justice (whether called in that or any other name) of any other Court created by the Parliament shall be subject to the power of removal contained in that section, be appointed for life. Western Workers' Federation of Australia v. Alexander, (1918) 2 C.L.R. 44, 24 A.L.J. 54.

Held by Barton, Isaacs, Powers and Rich JJ. that inasmuch as by s. 12 (1) of the Commonwealth Constitution and Arbitration Act 1901-1915 the President of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration is to be appointed for seven years only, that section is in variance with this section read with s. 71 of the Constitution and the provisions conferring upon the Court power to enforce awards are therefore invalid. Western Workers' Federation of Australia v. Alexander, (1918) 2 C.L.R. 434, 24 A.L.J. 341.

Per Griffith, C J (dissenting). The assignment of a Justice of the High Court to discharge the functions of the President is valid and he may both make awards and impose penalties. Waterrate Workers' Federation of Australia v. Alexander, (1918) 22 C L R 434, 21 A L R 341.

As to judicial appointments under this section being for life, see 110 Brit. Sh. Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1925) 32 C L R 422 at pp. 433, 434, 31 A L R 129, at pp. 130, 132, Porter v. R., Ex parte R., (1920) 7 C L R 422 at pp. 443, 444, 32 A L R 141 at p. 149, Shell Co. of Australia Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1918) 19 C L R 273 at pp. 294, 31, 44 C L R 330, at pp. 34-6, 37 A L R 1 at p. 7, 1 A L R 113 at p. 126, 71 Brit. Sh. Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation v. Munro, (1924) 30 C L R 73 at pp. 16, 19, 201, 22 A L R 11 at pp. 13, 15, 17, 18, Le Mesurier v. Connor, (1929) 32 C L R 481 at p. 419, 36 A L R 41 at p. 54, 1 A L R 37, at p. 1.

As to the possible effect of this section on the validity of the establishment of Marine Courts under Part IX of the Navigation Act 1912 (which provided for the holding of the trial of the members of the Court) see R. v. Turner, Ex parte Marine Board of Port Phillip & Victoria v. Commonwealth, (1927) 39 C L R 111 at pp. 341, 349, 40 C L R 144 at pp. 151, 152.

Held by the Privy Council that the power of other members of the Court of Review created under s. 11 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922 (which was not in conflict with the provisions of this section relating to the tenure of office of members of a Court created by the Commonwealth Parliament) Shell Co. of Australia Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1918) 19 C L R 273, 41 C L R 330, 37 A L R 1 at p. 11.

the Court.

73^(a) The High Court shall have jurisdiction, with such exceptions^(b) and subject to such regulations as the Parliament prescribes, to hear and determine appeals^(c) from all judgments^(d), decrees, orders^(e), and sentences—

NOTES ON CASES. (a) As to whether the section empowers the High Court to entertain appeals from judgments pronounced before the passing of the Judicial Officers Bill 1903, see Hannah v. Dalarno, (1903) 1 C L R 1, 9 A L R 103.

Held by the High Court that it has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a decision of the Supreme Court of a State pronounced before the establishment of the Commonwealth. Ex parte Matthews, (1904) 1 C L R 9.

(b) Hall v. McMillan, The Supreme Court of Western Australia (that under this section the Parliament of the Commonwealth may make the provision contained in the High Court Procedure Act 1903 Schedule Part II, Section IV, sub 9, under which when a writ is applied for without the leave of the High Court in a case in which an appeal must be brought, the Court from which the appeal is proposed to be taken or a judge thereof may set aside the writ). McMillan v. James, (1910) 12 W A L R 311 at p. 11.

Held by the High Court (Griffith, Hughes, Gavan Duffy, Piggot, and Rich JJ., Griffith C J and Barton J. dissenting) that the provision contained in s. 233 (4) of the Commonwealth Constitution and Judicial Officers Act 1903 (that the decision of the Justice of the High Court under that section is not to be subject to any appeal to the High Court) is not applicable to appeals from judgments pronounced within the meaning of s. 73 of the Constitution, and that the whole section is a valid exercise of the legislative power of the Parliament of the Commonwealth. Ex parte Federal Engineers and Trimmers' Union v. The Trustees of Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd., (1911) 12 C L R 103, 22 A L R 328.

Held by the High Court (Griffith C J, Barton, Isaacs, Higgins, and Powers JJ., Rich J. doubting) that the provision in clause 2 of the Second Schedule to the Commonwealth Workmen's Compensation Act 1912 that the decision of a County Court shall be final unless within a prescribed time either party appeals to the High Court or the Supreme Court of the State is an exception from the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court within the meaning of section 73, and therefore is not a valid exercise of the power within the prescribed time. The High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from such a decision. R. v. Murray and Connor, Ex parte the Commonwealth, (1916) 22 C L R 437, 22 A L R 419.

As to whether Parliament may under this section prescribe exceptions to the exercise by the High Court of prohibition to the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration see R. v. Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration, Ex parte Whitmore & Co., (1910) 11 C L R 1, 16 A L R 373.

Held by the High Court that the Parliament may not prescribe exceptions to the exercise by the High Court of prohibition to the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration as the grant of prohibition is an exercise of original not appellate jurisdiction. R. v. Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration and the Italian Tramway Employees' Association, (1913) 18 C L R 54, 20 A L R 126.

The Higgins v. No exceptions or regulations within the meaning of this section can be made unless they are made by the Parliament. Hall v. McMillan, Ex parte King, Wain and Wain On, (1907) 9 C L R 24 at p. 262, 33 A L R 100 at p. 107.

(c) Per Barton J. It is only by virtue of this section that appellate jurisdiction exists in the High Court over the original jurisdiction of the Court in the matters specified in ss. 75 and 76. 44 York v. Lehnert, (1908) 24 C L R 523 at p. 612, 11 A L R 300 at p. 317.

Per Isaacs J. The powers granted to the High Court in this section are those of a general Court of Appeal and not of a Court of Error. Doult v. Halliday, (1912) 20 C L R 299 at p. 307, 21 A L R 353, at p. 354, 1913 A L R 349 at p. 55.

As to the principles on which leave to appeal should be granted in criminal cases, see Hos v. The King, (1922) 30 C L R 240, 24 A L R 138.

Per Isaacs J. The appellate jurisdiction of the High Court as set out in this section cannot be enlarged. Commonwealth v. Australian Underwriters' Union, (1912) 32 C L R 413 at p. 430, 30 A L R 1 at p. 20.

As to the validity of s. 51 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1922-1923—which provides inter alia that an appeal lies to the High Court "in its appellate jurisdiction" from orders made by a Board of Appeal (which is not a Court)—see British Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1925) 35 C L R 422, 31 A L R 129.

As to whether the appellate power of the High Court is confined to appellate power within the meaning of this section or whether it may be extended by Parliament in revision of administrative decisions, see Federal Commissioner of Taxation v. Munro, British Imperial Oil Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation, (1926) 38 C L R 163, at p. 174; 33 A L R 339, at p. 347.

Held by the High Court that, in the case of an appeal to the High Court from a conviction the question under the appellate power is whether the conviction was, on the evidence before the lower court in accordance with the law as then existing. Tutorium Shieloring and General Contracting Co Pty Ltd and Meakes v Dwyer, (1931) 46 C.L.R. 73, 38 A.L.J. 22.

(d) Meaning of "judgments" discussed. Musgrove v McDonald (1905) 3 C.L.R. 132, 12 A.L.J. 49. Held by the High Court (Griffith, C.J., Gavan Duffy and Latham JJ.) that although under this section the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from a judgment discharging an accused person, the section does not confer jurisdiction on the High Court to set aside a verdict of "not guilty." Held also that a direction by a Judge to a jury to find a verdict of "not guilty" is not a "judgment" from which under this section an appeal lies to the High Court. R v Snow, (1915) 20 C.L.R. 315, 21 A.L.J. 392.

Held by the High Court that an order of the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Queensland declaring that the appellant—who had presented a commission and had asked to be sworn in as a Judge of the Supreme Court—was not entitled to be sworn in as such and was not eligible to be appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court, was not a judgment within the meaning of this section. In re McAuley, (1918) 24 C.L.R. 345.

As to whether an appeal lies to the High Court under s. 73 of the Supreme Court Ordinance 1911-1922 of the Northern Territory—which in terms is similar to the section from a decision of the Supreme Court (order) of the Chief Justice in certain persons from a body on the ground that they are "unlawfully assembled." Ex parte King, Bon and Hahou (No. 1) (1922) 20 C.L.R. 241, 31 A.L.J. 100.

Held by the High Court that a decision of the Supreme Court of New South Wales given after the making of an award by the Workers' Compensation Commission under the Workers' Compensation Act 1926 (N.S.W.) is not an advisory or consultative opinion but a final determination of the rights of the parties in the matter and that an appeal will lie therefrom to the High Court. South v Mann, (1932) 47 C.L.R. 324, 38 A.L.J. 97.

(e) Held by the High Court that an order of the Supreme Court of a State admitting to practice a solicitor who had been struck off the roll for misconduct is an order from which the High Court has under this section jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Imperial Loan Institute of Australasia v Meagher (1909) 9 C.L.R. 103, 16 A.L.J. 101.

As to whether an order of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration is an "order" within the meaning of this section see Waterloo Bank Ltd v Trustees of Australasian v Alexander, (1918) 25 C.L.R. 411, 18 pp. 120, 18-20, 34 A.L.J. 11, 11 pp. 149-150.

Held by the High Court (Griffith, Rich and Stoker JJ., Knox C.J. and Gavan Duffy J. dissenting) that certain orders of the Full Court of the Supreme Court of New South Wales granting leave to the plaintiff to appeal to the Privy Council were an exercise of the judicial power of the Commonwealth, and were therefore "orders" within the meaning of this section from which an appeal would lie to the High Court. Commonwealth v Intercolonial Steamship Co. Ltd and v Owners (1934) 51 C.L.R. 60, 41 A.L.J. 15. (Special leave to appeal from the decision of the High Court in Commonwealth v Kydman remitted by Privy Council. Kydman v Commonwealth (1934) 51 A.L.J. 15).

- (i.) Of any Justice or Justices exercising the original jurisdiction of the High Court.
- (ii.) Of any other federal court^(a), or court exercising federal jurisdiction^(b), or of the Supreme Court of any State^(c), or of any other court of any State^(d) from which at the establishment of the Commonwealth an appeal lies^(e) to the Queen in Council:

NOTES ON CASES. (a) As to whether the Court constituted of a Special Magistrate of the Northern Territory is a Federal Court within the meaning of this section, see Mitchell v Barker, (1916) 21 C.L.R. 365, 24 A.L.J. 64.

In considering whether a Court of a Territory is a "Federal Court" within the meaning of this section, quære whether a distinction may be drawn between Courts which have and those which have not formed part of the Commonwealth. Mitchell v Barker, (1916) 21 C.L.R. 365, at p. 367, 24 A.L.J. 64 at p. 65.

Held by the High Court that it has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from the Central Court of the Territory of New Guinea, that being a "Federal Court" within the meaning of paragraph (ii) of this section. Maunika v Custodian of Appropriated Property (1926) 34 C.L.R. 297, 31 A.L.J. 1. But see Porter v R. Ex parte Lee (1926) 37 C.L.R. 42, 18 pp. 112-113, 32 A.L.J. 194 at pp. 148, 150.

Held by the High Court that the Supreme Court of the Northern Territory is not a "Federal Court" within the meaning of paragraph (ii) of this section. Ex parte Lee (1926) 37 C.L.R. 432, 32 A.L.J. 111.

Leave to appeal from the Central Court of the Territory of New Guinea remitted by High Court, the Mining Ordinance 1922-1926 (N.G.) having provided that all orders of the Central Court reversing or varying decisions of the Warden's Court shall be final and conclusive. Question as to whether the Central Court is a "Federal Court" within the meaning of this paragraph, discussed by High Court. Ex parte Lee (1926) 37 C.L.R. 432, 32 A.L.J. 111.

(b) Held by the High Court that this section imposes no restriction as to amount upon appeals from judgments of the Supreme Courts of the States in the exercise of federal jurisdiction. Hannah v Dalgarino, (1909) 9 C.L.R. 1, 9 A.L.J. 1 (N.S.W.).

Held by the High Court that a New South Wales District Court, in deciding whether a Federal officer is liable to pay State income tax, the officer having claimed that he is not liable on the ground that the taxation of his income is an interference with the free exercise of the powers of the Commonwealth, is exercising federal jurisdiction and that an appeal from such decision lies to the High Court. Baxter v Commissioners of Taxation (N.S.W.), (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1087, 13 A.L.J. 318.

Held by the High Court that an appeal to the High Court from a decision of a Court of Petty Sessions of Victoria exercising Federal jurisdiction in the case of a civil debt recoverable summarily when the sum involved does not exceed £5 may, under the Rules of the High Court be brought by way of order to

Commonwealth of Australia Constitution. [Sec. 73 (ii)-(iii).]

Held by the High Court that the Court of Industrial Arbitration of the State of Queensland, constituted by the Industrial Arbitration Act of 1916 (Q.), is not the Supreme Court of the State within the meaning of this section and therefore no appeal lies from it to the High Court. Mutual Life and Citizens Assurance Co Ltd v Tye (1919) 27 C.L.R. 187.

Held by the High Court that the Criminal Appeal Act 1912 (N.S.W.) does not create a new Court, but merely directs that the Supreme Court constituted as therein prescribed shall act as the Court of Criminal Appeal, and that therefore an appeal lies from the Court of Criminal Appeal to the High Court under this paragraph. Stewart v The King, (1921) 29 C.L.R. 234, 27 A.L.J. 175.

Per Isaacs, J. This section draws a very clear distinction between the Supreme Court as the judicial organ of the State, and a State Court as a judicial organ of the Commonwealth. Commonwealth v Krculovick and Ternau Ltd and v Bardsley (1911) 37 C.L.R. 393 at p. 417, 11 L.R. v.L.R. 391, at p. 352, 32 A.L.J. 161, at p. 178.

Per Isaacs, J. An appeal from a State Court exercising State jurisdiction to the High Court is not a rehearing, otherwise the High Court would be invested with original jurisdiction as the State judicial power. Werribee Council v Kerr, (1928) 42 C.L.R. 1 at p. 20.

(d) Application for special leave to appeal to the High Court from a decision of the Court of Mines refused by the High Court on the ground that the applicants had a right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the State and thence to the High Court. Kamarraka Gold Mining Company No Liability v Kerr, (1908) 6 C.L.R. 255.

(e) Question as to whether the words "an appeal lies" include appeals by special leave, discussed by High Court. Parlin and Cooper v James, (1905) 2 C.L.R. 31, 11 A.L.J. 142, Kamarraka Gold Mining Co v James No Liability v Kerr (1908) 6 C.L.R. 255.

(iii.) Of the Inter State Commission, but as to questions of law only^(a)

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to whether this provision as to appeals lying from the Inter State Commission to the High Court upon questions of law puts the Commission on the same footing as a Court of Appeal. South Wales v Commonwealth (1915) 20 C.L.R. 34 at pp. 61, 275, 53, 8, 8, 10, 4, 108, 110, 21 A.L.J. 128 at pp. 131, 137, 8, 141, 143, 149, 151.

and the judgment of the High Court in all such cases shall be final and conclusive^(b)

But no exception or regulation prescribed by the Parliament shall prevent the High Court from hearing and determining any appeal from the Supreme Court of a State in any matter^(b) in which at the establishment of the Commonwealth an appeal lies^(c) from such Supreme Court to the Queen in Council.

Until the Parliament otherwise provides^(d), the conditions of and restrictions on appeals to the Queen in Council from the Supreme Courts of the several States shall be applicable to appeals from them to the High Court.

GENERAL NOTES. (1) By the Judiciary Act 1903 (1913, c. 33) the Parliament has otherwise provided for appeals from the Supreme Courts of the several States to the High Court.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to whether the High Court should grant a stay of execution of a judgment delivered by it on an appeal from the Supreme Court merely because the Privy Council may grant leave to appeal from the decision of the High Court. McLellan v The King, (1915) 20 C.L.R. 213 at p. 255, 10 A.L.J. 111 at p. 134.

As to whether the opinion pronounced by the High Court on a case stated by the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration has the opinion of the High Court as merely consultative or is judicial. see Federal v. Commonwealth and Liversidge v. Liversidge, (1913) 10 C.L.R. 235 at p. 257, 10 A.L.J. 177 at p. 179.

As to whether a stay of proceedings on a judgment of the High Court pending an application to the Privy Council for special leave to appeal should be granted on the application of the defendant in a case in which if the stay is not granted the appeal would be rendered nugatory and if the stay is simply granted the whole benefit of the action might be lost to the plaintiff. see Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co Ltd v Commonwealth (No. 3) (1913) 10 C.L.R. 254.

A obtained a judgment of the High Court declaring him absolutely entitled to certain land in the possession of B. Upon A bringing in the Supreme Court an action of ejectment, B was granted a stay on the ground that the decision of the High Court was wrong and that he was taking steps to apply to the Privy Council for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council. The High Court discharged the stay, holding that its decision in the previous case was in accordance with this section and conclusively except so far as special leave might be granted under s. 74. McLellan v Sandland (No. 2) (1918) 20 C.L.R. 360, 25 A.L.J. 81.

(b) Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Gavan Duffy, Powers, Rich and Starke, JJ., Higgins, J., dissenting) that the word "matter" in this section involves some right, privilege or protection given by law, or the prevention, redress or punishment of some act inhibited by law. In re the Judiciary and Navigation Acts, (1921) 29 C.L.R. 257, 27 A.L.J. 193. See also In re Judiciary and Navigation Acts, (1923) 32 C.L.R. 455.

(c) Question as to whether the words "an appeal lies" include appeals by special leave, discussed by High Court. Kamarraka Gold Mining Company No Liability v Kerr, (1908) 6 C.L.R. 255.

Held by the High Court that the words "no exception or regulation" in this section mean that the Queen in Council "include matters in which an appeal then lay either with or without special leave of the Privy Council." Parlin and Cooper v James, (1905) 2 C.L.R. 310, 11 A.L.J. 142.

Appeal to
Council.

▼ 74^{(a) (b)}. No appeal shall be permitted to the Queen in Council from a decision of the High Court upon any question^(c), howsoever arising, as to the limits inter se of the Constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of any State or States^(d), or as to the limits inter se of the Constitutional powers of any two or more States, unless the High Court^(e) shall certify that the question is one which ought to be determined by Her Majesty in Council⁽¹⁾

The High Court may so certify if satisfied that for any special reason^(f) the certificate should be granted^(g), and thereupon an appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council on the question without further leave

Except as provided in this section, this Constitution shall not impair any right which the Queen may be pleased to exercise by virtue of Her Royal prerogative to grant special leave of appeal from the High Court to Her Majesty in Council^(h). The Parliament may make laws limiting the matters⁽ⁱ⁾ in which such leave may be asked, ⁽¹⁾ but proposed laws containing any such limitation shall be reserved by the Governor-General for Her Majesty's pleasure.

GENERAL NOTES. (1) List of cases in which applications were granted or refused by the High Court under this section: questions were raised by or for the Privy Council as to whether certificates (not having been granted by the High Court) were necessary under this section: see note (f) of Notes of Cases hereunder.

(2) Up to the date of the preparation of this volume, no laws limiting the matters in which leave may be asked had been made in pursuance of this paragraph.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to whether this section authorizes the Parliament to take away the right of appeal from the Supreme Court of a State to the Privy Council, given by the Order in Council of 9th June 1860, see Hobbs v. Sullivan (1907) 4 C.L.R. 34, 12 A.L.R. (C.N.) 1.

Ex parte Isaac and Rich (11). By this section the Constitution places the whole fate of the State constitutions, where they conflict with the Federal Constitution in the hands of the High Court, that Court's decision being final unless it chooses to certify to the Wahr der Werke Federalism of Australia v. Wahr der Werke (1918) 25 C.L.R. 331 at p. 340, 24 A.L.R. 341.

As to whether this section applies to a decision of the High Court in its original jurisdiction as well as to one in its appellate jurisdiction, see In re the Judiciary and Navigation Acts (1921) 32 C.L.R. 450.

Held by the High Court that in view of the provisions of s. 73 and this section, the Orders in Council relating to the granting of leave to appeal from decisions of the Supreme Court of a State to the Privy Council do not apply to cases in which the Supreme Court was exercising Federal jurisdiction. Commonwealth v. The State of New South Wales (1924) 33 C.L.R. 60 at pp. 94, 107, 100, 111, 117, 71 A.L.R. 113 at p. 117, 110, 161, 165, 166. (See also leave of appeal in the decision of the High Court in Commonwealth v. The State of New South Wales (1925) 32 A.L.R. 11.)

Discussion as to the position of the High Court under this section is the final arbiter in constitutional questions. Ex parte Isaac and Rich (1921) 30 C.L.R. 170 at p. 191, 31 A.L.R. 307 at p. 173. (b) The High Court has granted a certificate under this section in the following case: the certificate being a limited one. Ex parte Isaac and Rich (1921) 30 C.L.R. 170 at p. 191, 31 A.L.R. 307 at p. 173.

The High Court has refused to grant certificates under this section in the following cases:

Murray v. Commonwealth (1903) 1 C.L.R. 25 at p. 34. (Case did not fall within the section.)

Municipal Council of Sydney v. Commonwealth (1904) 1 C.L.R. 208 at p. 242, 10 A.L.R. (C.N.) 20. (No special reasons shown there not appearing in this case any reasonable ground for disputing the correctness of the judgment of the High Court.)

Deakin v. Webb-Lyne v. Webb (1904) 1 C.L.R. 385 at p. 419, 10 A.L.R. 258. (No "special reasons" shown for reasons which were advanced in this case: see note on this case in paragraph (f) infra p. 68.)

Baxter v. Commissioners of Taxation (N.S.W.) (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1087 at p. 1177, 13 A.L.R. 348 at p. 352. (No special reasons shown for reasons advanced: see note on this case in the case of Deakin v. Webb-Lyne in paragraph (f) infra p. 68.) Special leave to appeal subsequently refused by Privy Council. Commissioners of Taxation (N.S.W.) v. Baxter 1908 A.C. 214, 5 C.L.R. 398.

Deakin v. Webb (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1178, 13 A.L.R. 348. (No "special reasons" shown for reasons advanced: see note on this case in paragraph (f) infra p. 68.) Special leave to appeal subsequently refused by Privy Council. Deakin v. Webb 1908 A.C. 214, 5 C.L.R. 398.

Jones v. Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration. (Application for certificate refused by High Court without assigning any reason. R. v. Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration and the Australian Builders' Labourers' Federation Ex parte Jones, (1914) 21

A.L.R. 18) Special leave to appeal subsequently refused by Privy Council Jones v Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration 1917 A.C. 728, 24 C.L.R. 490, 21 A.L.R. 987.

Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd (1921) 20 C.L.R. 406 (Grounds for refusal not stated. Special leave to appeal subsequently refused by Privy Council Minister for Trading Concerns for the State of Western Australia v Amalgamated Society of Engineers, 1921 A.C. 170.)

Ex parte Nelson, (1920) 42 C.L.R. 278, 35 A.L.R. 177 (Held by Knox C.J. Isaacs, Gavan Duffy and Starke JJ that on special reasons had been shown. Held by Rich and Dixon JJ (contra by Isaacs and Starke JJ) that the decision of the Court under s. 82 did not involve an inter se question.)

New South Wales v Commonwealth (No. 2) (1932) 46 C.L.R. 235 (Certificate refused by Gavan Duffy, C.J. Rich, Starke, Dixon and McMillan JJ. Leave to appeal refused, the majority holding that the question in issue required an immediate and a final decision.)

Cor v. Jonsson (1914) 42 C.L.R. 242 (In this case the Court decided not to deal with the application for a certificate for leave to appeal to the Privy Council.)

In the following cases in which certificates had not been granted by the High Court, questions were raised as to the necessity for a certificate of the High Court under this section and the Privy Council dealt with the appeals in the following manner:

Commissioners of Taxation (No. 8) Parter and Webb v. The 1908 A.C. 234, 5 C.L.R. 308 (Petitions for special leave to appeal refused, the amount of duty being in dispute and the controversy having been closed, an Act of the Parliament of the Commonwealth having been passed expressly empowering the States to make a provision of the kind in question.)

Attorney General for New South Wales v. Collector of Customs for New South Wales 1909 A.C. 344 (Petition for special leave to appeal refused on the ground that the case arose within s. 74 and the High Court had not certified under that section.)

Jones v Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration 1917 A.C. 728, 24 C.L.R. 396, 21 A.L.R. 985 (Appeal dismissed as incompetent, the question being an inter se question.)

Minister for Trading Concerns for the State of Western Australia v Amalgamated Society of Engineers 1921 A.C. 170 (Special leave to appeal refused by Privy Council, the Attorney General of the Commonwealth (who intervened by leave) certifying that the appeal was not competent in the absence of a certificate under s. 74.)

(c) Distinction between questions in this section and matters and matters under s. 71 and 76 respectively, discussed by High Court Farrell v. McLachlan (1925) 36 C.L.R. 170, 11 C.L.R. 198, 31 A.L.R. 366 at p. 376.

(d) Held by the High Court that the question whether, under the third paragraph of s. 90 of the Constitution goods imported into Western Australia are liable to duty at the rates imposed by the Western Australian tariff where that tariff is higher than the Commonwealth tariff is not a question as to the limits of exercise of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of the State within the meaning of this section. Muir and Co. v. C.R. for the (1911) 14 C.L.R. 20 at p. 38.

Held by the High Court that the question of the liability of a Commonwealth officer to an income tax imposed by a State Act in respect of his salary as such officer is a question as to the limits inter se of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of a State within the meaning of this section and therefore the decision of the High Court as to such liability is final and conclusive unless the Court certifies that the question is one which ought to be determined by His Majesty in Council. Drake v. Webb Jones 1904 C.L.R. 18, 10 A.L.R.

Held by the High Court that the question raised by the defence filed by a federal officer that he was not liable to pay State income tax on his salary as such officer is a question as to the limits inter se of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of a State within the meaning of this section. Heater v. Commissioners of Taxation (No. 7) (1907) 4 C.L.R. 1047, 13 A.L.R. 313.

s. 40 of the Factories Act 1901 (W.A.) made it an offence to employ in a factory in Western Australia a Chinese who was not so equipped as to be fit for his work. Held that a question as to the validity of this section on the ground of discrimination contrary to s. 117 was not a question as to the limits inter se of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and the States. Lee Joo v. Imperial (1908) 7 C.L.R. 349, 15 A.L.R. 34.

Held by the Privy Council that a dispute between the High Court and a particular dispute was a dispute extending beyond the limits of one State and that in respect of a President of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration held under s. 41 of the Constitution of the Commonwealth jurisdiction to make an award to be made upon a question as to the limits inter se of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of the States and therefore under this section of the Constitution the Privy Council has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from such a decision in the absence of a certificate by the High Court pursuant to this section. Jones v Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration 1917 A.C. 728, 24 C.L.R. 396, 21 A.L.R. 985.

Held by the High Court that a question arises as to the limits inter se of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of a State within the meaning of s. 74 of the Constitution 1901-1920 in cases in which a decision upon either of the following questions is required for the determination of the case: (a) Whether such a State is as the Malay (No. 1) (1911) 14 C.L.R. 20 at p. 38 who are also officers of the defence force of the Commonwealth; and (b) Whether the provision of s. 41A of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920 conferring the jurisdiction of the State Courts and removing the cause to the High Court, is effective. Pierce v. McLachlan (1925) 36 C.L.R. 170, 31 A.L.R. 366.

An action was brought against the Commonwealth in the Supreme Court of Victoria and judgment was given for the Commonwealth. On appeal to the Full Court of the Supreme Court by the plaintiff a contention was raised by the Commonwealth that under s. 49 (2) (a) of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920 the only right of appeal was to the High Court. The Full Court of the Supreme Court, holding that the section in question was invalid to the extent that it then barred the appeal and dismissed it. The Full Court, later, granted leave to the plaintiff to appeal to the Privy Council. On appeal to the High Court from the order granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council it was held by the High Court (Knox C.J., Isaacs, Gavan Duffy, Powers and Rich JJ. Higgins J. dissented) that on the hearing of the appeal to the Full Court a question arose as to the limits inter se of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of the State of Victoria. Commonwealth v. Knight and Pirnau Ltd and v. Hardley (1926) 37 C.L.R. 393, 30 C.L.R. 311, 22 A.L.R. 111.

Held by the High Court that an application for a certificate under this section in the case of Ex parte Nelson (No. 1), (1920) 42 C.L.R. 209, 35 A.L.R. 177, should be refused. Ex parte Nelson (No. 2) (1920) 42 C.L.R. 256, 35 A.L.R. 177.

were as to Higgins, Gavan Duffy and Rich, JJ. that the Commonwealth was not, within the meaning of this paragraph a 'party' to the proceedings for prohibition, and as to Isaacs, J. that though the Commonwealth was a 'party' it had no superior interest in the subject-matter of the excess of jurisdiction. R. v. Murray and Corrie, Ex parte the Commonwealth, (1916) 22 C.L.R. 417, 22 A.L.J. 413.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Isaacs, Rich and Starke, JJ.) that the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an action for a tort brought by the Commonwealth against a State without the consent of that State, such jurisdiction being conferred by this paragraph. Commonwealth v. New South Wales, (1923) 32 C.L.R. 500, 29 A.L.J. 289.

(iv.) Between States^(a), or between residents^(b) of different States^(c), or between a State and a resident^(b) of another State^(d):

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the High Court that the matters "between States" in respect of which original jurisdiction is conferred by this section on the High Court are matters which are of a like nature to those which arise between individuals and which are capable of determination upon principles of law, and that the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an action by one State against another seeking a declaration that certain land adjoining the boundary and in the de facto occupation of the latter State formed part of the territory of the former State. South Australia v. Victoria, (1911) 12 C.L.R. 667, 17 A.L.J. 206.

(b) Held by the High Court that it has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit under this paragraph when it is not established that the parties at the time of the bringing of the action were residents of different States. Dahms v. Budek (1911) 13 C.L.R. 336.

As to whether a married woman living in one State whose husband is domiciled elsewhere can be a 'resident' of the State in which she is living within the meaning of this paragraph see Renton v. Renton, 1917 S.A.L.R. 277. It is so reversed by High Court on other grounds. Renton v. Renton (1918) 25 C.L.R. 231, 25 A.L.J. 1.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Higgins and Gavan Duffy, JJ., Isaacs and Starke, JJ., dissenting) that the words 'residents' and 'resident' in this paragraph refer to natural persons only and not to artificial persons or corporations. The Australasian Temperance and General Mutual Life Assurance Society Ltd v. Howe (1920) 11 C.L.R. 280, 23 A.L.J. 46.

Held by the Supreme Court of Victoria that something more than mere temporary residence of a husband in another State is required to make husband and wife residents of different States within the meaning of this paragraph. Cottee v. Cottee 1923 V.L.R. 231, 16 A.L.J. 180, 31 A.L.J. 137.

Decision of the High Court in Australasian Temperance and General Mutual Life Assurance Society Ltd v. Howe that a corporation is not a resident within the meaning of this section followed by Supreme Court of Queensland. City and Suburban Pastoral (Devel.) Pty Ltd v. Gurley Pty Ltd 1932 Q.L.R. Qd. 213.

Application for reconsideration of the decision in The Australasian Temperance and General Mutual Life Assurance Society Ltd v. Howe refused by High Court which held that two companies concerned in the case were not residents within the meaning of this section, and that in the action could not be maintained against them in the High Court. Cox's Journal (1934) 32 A.L.J. 282.

(c) Held by the High Court in a case in which a resident of Victoria and a resident of New South Wales commenced an action against a resident of New South Wales, that an action instituted in the High Court in which there is on each side of the record a resident of the same State who is a necessary party to the action is not a matter "between residents of different States" within the meaning of this section. Watson and Co. v. J. J. Cummins (1928) 10 C.L.R. 136, 31 A.L.J. 11.

(d) Held by the High Court that an action might be brought in the High Court under this section by a resident of New South Wales against the State of Victoria for a declaration that money claimed by and paid under protest to the Victorian Commissioner of Taxes as probate duty under the Administration and Probate Act 1915 was not properly payable, and for a refund of the amount so paid. Daly v. State of Victoria (1920) 10 C.L.R. 391, 26 A.L.J. 297.

As to an action being brought against a State without its consent by a resident of another State, see New South Wales v. Partridge (1911) 52 C.L.R. 455, 31 A.L.J. 22.

As to the State being in a different position from that of a subject who is sued for breach of contract, see New South Wales v. Partridge (1911) 52 C.L.R. 157, at pp. 193-4, 41 A.L.J. 22 at p. 23.

(v.) In which a writ of Mandamus or prohibition^(a) or an injunction is sought against an officer of the Commonwealth^(b): the High Court shall have original jurisdiction

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) As to whether prohibition is an exercise of original or appellate jurisdiction see R. v. Commonwealth Court of Constitution and Arbitration, Ex parte Wyburn & Co. (1910) 11 C.L.R. 1, 16 A.L.J. 37.

Held by the High Court that jurisdiction to issue prohibition to a tribunal acting without or in excess of its jurisdiction is in its nature original and not appellate. R. v. Commonwealth Court of Constitution and Arbitration and Australian Railway Employees' Association (1911) 18 C.L.R. 54, 20 A.L.J. 126.

As to the power of Parliament to assign the prohibition jurisdiction under this paragraph to a single judge, see Federated Engine-drivers' and Firemen's Association of Australia v. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. (1916) 22 C.L.R. 103, at pp. 115, 120, 22 A.L.J. 128, at pp. 332, 334.

Per Isaacs, Gavan Duffy and Rich, JJ., This paragraph relating to prohibition does not include prohibition to the High Court itself. Federated Engine-drivers' and Firemen's Association of Australia v. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. (1916) 22 C.L.R. 103, at p. 117, 22 A.L.J. 128, at p. 333.

Per Isaacs, Gavan Duffy and Rich, JJ., The words in s. 21AA of the Commonwealth Constitution and Arbitration Act 1904-1915 declaring that decisions of a single Justice of the High Court, under that section, as to the existence of an industrial dispute are not to be subject to prohibition, do not purport to touch the jurisdiction as to prohibition conferred on the High Court by this paragraph. Federated Engine-drivers' and Firemen's Association of Australia v. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. (1916) 22 C.L.R. 103, at p. 117, 22 A.L.J. 128, at p. 333.

Prohibition directed to the President of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration refused by the High Court in a case in which, in the view of Griffith C J and Barton J, the grounds relied on for prohibition were matters of defence on the merits and not a plea to jurisdiction, and, in the view of Isaacs, Gavan Duffy and Rich, J J, a clear case of want of jurisdiction had not been made out. R v President of Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration, Ex parte Australian Agricultural Co Ltd. (1916) 22 C L R 201, 22 A L J 135.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C J, Gavan Duffy and Starke, J J, Isaacs, Higgins and Rich, J J, dissenting) that in a case in which one Charles Hibble, who was the chairman of a special tribunal constituted under the Industrial Peace Act 1920, had made what purported to be an award a writ of prohibition should issue to Hibble directing him not to proceed further with the alleged award. R v Hibble, Ex parte Industrial Proprietors Co Ltd. (1920) 28 C L R 450, 27 A L J 84. Question whether a writ of prohibition will lie to a tribunal which is functus officio discussed. Ibid.

Held by the High Court that a writ of prohibition does not lie to a Board constituted under s. 84 of the Immigration Act 1901-1920, the Board not being a court or judicial tribunal. R v Macfarlane, Ex parte O'Lavanagan and O'Kelly (1923) 22 C L R 518, 29 A L J 133.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C J, Gavan Duffy and Starke, J J, Isaacs and Rich, J J, dissenting) that the High Court has jurisdiction under para. (1) of this section to sue prohibition to the President of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration where an award has been made by him without jurisdiction. Waterside Workers' Federation of Australia v McArthur, Gilchrist, Hilt and Sanderson Ltd. (1924) 14 C L R 492, 10 A L J 102.

Distinction drawn by the High Court between cases in which a summons under s. 214A of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act 1904-1920 was taken out by certain employers to determine whether an award was binding on certain employers, and cases under the prohibition power contained in this paragraph. Amalgamated Engineering Union v London City Ltd. In re Metropolitan Gas Co. (1928) 41 C L R 402 at p. 423, 34 A L J 401 at p. 403.

(b) Reason for inclusion of this paragraph is used by High Court. Wicks v Lusk (1905) 2 C L R 213 at p. 609, 9 A L J 106 at p. 311.

- (iii) Investing any court of a State with federal jurisdiction^(e)

NOTES OF CASES. As to the validity of s. 11 (2) of the Judiciary Act 1903 see In re the Income Tax Acts Outtrim v Outtrim 1907 A.C. 81. 4 C.L.R. 117. 26 A.L.J. 198, and on appeal to the Privy Council, Webb v Outtrim 1907 A.C. 81. 4 C.L.R. 130. 13 A.L.J. 351.

The High Court (Isaacs, Rich and Starke JJ.) that s. 39 (2) (a) of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920, as interpreted, has the effect of excluding an appeal as of right to the Privy Council from a decision of the Supreme Court of a State exercising federal jurisdiction, and of giving to the High Court jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from such a decision, that, so interpreted, the section in question is a valid exercise of the power conferred by this paragraph. Meaning of para. (iii) discussed Commonwealth v. Limerick Steamship Co. Ltd. and v. Adamson (1924) 35 C.L.R. 89, 33 A.L.J. 158 (Special leave to appeal from the decision of the High Court in Commonwealth v. Adamson refused by the Privy Council Adamson v. Commonwealth (1925) 32 A.L.J. 1).

Per Isaacs, Rich and Starke JJ. Section 39 (2) (a) of the Judiciary Act 1903 1920 is a valid exercise of the power conferred by s. 77 (iii) of the Constitution and therefore in a case before the Supreme Court of Victoria in which the Commonwealth was a party the Full Court had jurisdiction to make an order granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council. Commonwealth v. Kreglinger and Fernau Ltd. and v. Burdaley, (1926) 37 C.L.R. 899, 1926 V.L.R. 311, 32 A.L.J. 161.

Per Higgins J. The Supreme Court of the Northern Territory is invested with federal jurisdiction, not under this paragraph but under s. 122 of the Constitution. Wall v. R. Ex parte King Noon and Nash (No. 1) (1927) 39 C.L.R. 245 at p. 246, 34 A.L.J. 100, at p. 107.

Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Rich and Dixon JJ., Isaacs and Starke JJ. dissenting) that this paragraph does not enable the Parliament to make a Commonwealth officer a functionary of a State Court and authorize him to act on its behalf and administer part of its jurisdiction. Le Mesurier v. Connor (1929) 42 C.L.R. 481, 36 A.L.J. 1, 1 A.B.L. 97.

Held similarly that this paragraph contemplates the selection by the Parliament of an existing judicial organ which depends alike for its structure and its being upon State law and the grant to it of powers of adjudication upon specified subjects of federal jurisdiction. It is held similarly that s. 18 (3) (b) of the Bankruptcy Act 1924-1925 which provides that the courts having jurisdiction in bankruptcy shall be such State Courts as are specially authorized by the Governor-General by proclamation to exercise that jurisdiction, purports to confer upon the Executive Government a discretionary power to authorize any State Court to exercise federal jurisdiction and to withhold or revoke that authority and is not a law investing federal jurisdiction within the meaning of this paragraph and is ultra vires and void. Ibid.

Held by the High Court that this paragraph conferred with s. 51 (xxix) an implicit power upon the Parliament to bestow upon State Courts powers appropriate to the display of jurisdiction and all authority incidental to the exercise of such powers, including a power enabling such Courts in their bankruptcy jurisdiction to direct and authorize the performance of ministerial acts. Brand v. George A. Bond and Co. Ltd. and Jones v. Interiors Ltd. (1930) 41 C.L.R. 11, 36 A.L.J. 215, 1 A.B.L. 341.

As to whether this paragraph in combination with s. 51 (xxix) empowers the Parliament to enact new remedies, or merely to give State Courts a federal authority to administer existing remedies see Williams v. R. (No. 2) (1934) 50 C.L.R. 531 at p. 537 (note) [p. 7] 40 A.L.J. 314 at p. 316 (see also p. 315).

78^(a) The Parliament may make laws conferring rights to proceed against the Commonwealth or a State in respect of matters^(b) within the limits of the judicial power

Proceedings against Commonwealth or State

Held by Higgins J. that the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an action for a tort brought by the Commonwealth against a State without the consent of that State such jurisdiction being conferred by s. 58 of the Judiciary Act 1903 enacted under the power given by this section. Commonwealth v. New South Wales, (1923) 32 C.L.R. 200, 29 A.L.J. 289.

Commonwealth* (No. 1), (1932) 46 C.L.R. 100 at pp. 173, 174, 180, 201, 214, 220, 34 A.L.J. 245 at pp. 248, 249, 251, 260, 265, 270.

Per Dixon, J. Victoria* (1933) 52 C.L.R. 167 at p. 187, 41 A.L.J. 157, at p. 167.

(b) Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Stavan Duffy, Powers, Rich and Starke, JJ., Higgins, J., dissenting) that the word "matters" in this section involves some right, privilege or protection given by law, or the prevention, redress or punishment of some act inhibited by law. In re the Judiciary and Visitation Acts, (1931) 39 C.L.R. 267, 27 A.L.J. 193.

Held by the Supreme Court of Victoria (McArthur J.) that the Parliament of the Commonwealth cannot deprive the State Court of their State jurisdiction over matters arising under the laws of that Parliament except by conferring original jurisdiction on another judicial court and making that jurisdiction exclusive of the jurisdiction of the State Courts over such matters under 77 (ii) of the Constitution. Booth v Shearman & Sterling Pty Ltd 1924 V.L.R. 271. 30 A.L.J. 40. 41 A.L.J. 8.

Held by the High Court that this paragraph (coupled with s. 404 of the Constitution) is authority for the enactment of s. 404 of the Judiciary Act 1903 under which cases pending in the Supreme Court of a State and involving questions as to the interpretation of the constitutional power of the Commonwealth and one or more States, or as to the limits of the powers of any two or more States are removed to the High Court. Pirrie v McLachlan (1925) 30 C.L.R. 170. 31 A.L.J. 30.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Rich and Starke JJ.) that s. 40 of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920 which provides for the removal to the High Court of cases or parts of causes arising under the Constitution or involving its interpretation is a valid exercise of the power conferred upon the Commonwealth Parliament by s. 76 and this section. Ex parte Walsh and Johnson In re Rules (1925) 37 C.L.R. 36. 32 A.L.J. 46.

(iii) Investing any court of a State with federal jurisdiction^(a)

NOTES OF CASES—(a) Held by the High Court that the federal jurisdiction with which the Parliament is by this section authorized to invest the Courts of the several States includes both original and appellate jurisdiction. Abel v Lachart (1905) 2 C.L.R. 393. 11 A.L.J. 306. New South Wales v Commonwealth (1915) 20 C.L.R. 54 at p. 90. 21 A.L.J. 128 at p. 144.

As to the validity of s. 39 (2) (a) of the Judiciary Act 1903 see In re the Income Tax Acts Outtrim's case 1907 V.L.R. 403. 11 A.L.J. 117. 26 A.L.J. 198 and on appeal to the Privy Council Webb v Outtrim 1907 A.C. 81. 4 C.L.R. 358. 13 A.L.J. 11 (N.1).

Held by Rooth J. (Supreme Court of Western Australia) that it is in this section which authorizes the Parliament of the Commonwealth to enact the High Court Procedure Act 1903 particularly Rule 9 of Section IV of Part II of the Statute which provides that when notice of appeal is given without the leave of the High Court in a case in which an appeal cannot be brought as of right the Court from which the appeal is proposed to be brought or a Judge thereof may set aside the notice. Milne v James (1910) 12 W.A.L.J. 111 at pp. 115, 6.

Manner in which Commonwealth has invested State Courts with federal jurisdiction discussed by the High Court. Commonwealth v Brisbane Milling Co Ltd (1916) 21 C.L.R. 549, at p. 577. 22 A.L.J. 272 at p. 278.

As to the power to attach conditions to any investiture of jurisdiction under this paragraph, see Lorenz v Carey (1921) 29 C.L.R. 215. 27 A.L.J. 225.

Held by the High Court (Isaacs, Rich and Starke JJ.) that s. 39 (2) (a) of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920, on its proper interpretation, has the effect of excluding an appeal as of right to the Privy Council from a decision of the Supreme Court of a State exercising federal jurisdiction, and of giving to the High Court jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from such a decision, that, so interpreted, the section in question is a valid exercise of the power conferred by this paragraph. Meaning of para. (iii) discussed. Commonwealth v. Lemrick Steamship Co Ltd and v. Keldman (1924) 35 C.L.R. 69, 31 A.L.J. 153 (special leave to appeal from the decision of the High Court in Commonwealth v. Keldman refused by the Privy Council). Asman v. Commonwealth (1925) 32 A.L.J. 1.

Per Isaacs, Rich and Starke, JJ. Section 39 (2) (a) of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920 is a valid exercise of the power conferred by s. 77 (iii) of the Constitution, and therefore in a case before the Supreme Court of Victoria in which the Commonwealth was a party the Full Court had no jurisdiction to make an order granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council. Commonwealth v. Krughaug and Loran Ltd and v. Hardley, (1926) 37 C.L.R. 393, 1926 V.L.R. 331, 32 A.L.J. 161.

Per Higgins, J. The Supreme Court of the Northern Territory is invested with federal jurisdiction, not under this paragraph, but under s. 122 of the Constitution. Hall v. R., Ex parte King No. 1 and No. 2 (1927) 40 C.L.R. 245 at p. 262, 33 A.L.J. 100, at p. 107.

Held by the High Court (Knox, CJ, Rich and Dixon, JJ.) Isaacs and Starke, JJ. dissenting that this paragraph does not enable the Parliament to make a Commonwealth officer a functionary of a State Court and authorize him to act on its behalf in administering part of its jurisdiction. Le Mesurier v. Connor (1929) 42 C.L.R. 481, 36 A.L.J. 41, 1 A.B.C. 97.

Held similarly that this paragraph (not) implies the selection by the Parliament of an existing judicial organ which depends alike for its structure and its functioning upon State law and the grant to it of powers of adjudication upon specified subjects of federal jurisdiction. Ibid. Held similarly that s. 16 (1) (b) of the Bankruptcy Act 1924-1928, which provides that the Courts having jurisdiction in bankruptcy shall be such State Courts as are specially authorized by the Governor-General by proclamation to exercise that jurisdiction, purports to confer upon the Executive Government a discretionary power to authorize any State Court to exercise federal jurisdiction, and to withhold or revoke that authority, and is not a law investing federal jurisdiction within the meaning of this paragraph and is ultra vires and void. Ibid.

Held by the High Court that this paragraph conferred with s. 51 (xxix) confers ample power upon the Parliament to bestow upon State Courts all powers appropriate to bankruptcy jurisdiction and all authority incidental to the exercise of such powers, including a power enabling such Courts in their bankruptcy jurisdiction to direct and authorize the performance of ministerial acts. Bond v. George A. Bond and Co. Ltd and Banta Industries Ltd (1930) 41 C.L.R. 11, 38 A.L.J. 238, 2 A.L.C. 141.

As to whether this paragraph in combination with s. 51 (xxix) empowers the Parliament to enact new remedies, or merely to give State Courts a federal authority to administer existing remedies see Walsham v. R. (No. 2) (1934) 50 C.L.R. 207 at p. 211 (see also p. 217), 40 A.L.J. 314 at p. 316 (see also p. 315).

Jaume* (1905) 2 C.L.R. 405, 11 A.L.J. 124. Decision followed by Full Court of the Supreme Court of South Australia in Cliff Rick for others v. King (1906) 5 A.L.J. 130.

Per Isaacs, J. This section, coupled with s. 73 (iv) negatives the view that there is an implied exception from s. 75 (iii) of State instrument debts as defendants where the Commonwealth is the plaintiff. Ex parte Registrar of Titles (The). Ex parte Commonwealth (1911) 20 C.L.R. 371 at p. 384, 21 A.L.J. 435 at p. 438.

Held by Higgins, J., that the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an action for a tort brought by the Commonwealth against a State without the consent of that State such jurisdiction being conferred by s. 58 of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920 created under the power given by this section. Commonwealth v. New South Wales, (1923) 32 C.L.R. 200, 29 A.L.J. 249.

As to whether this section authorizes the enactment of s. 61 of the Judiciary Act 1903-1920 which gives the plaintiff the right to obtain discovery of documents from and to administer interrogatories to the defendant and as to whether s. 64 applies where the defendant is a State and the plaintiff a resident of another State see Griffin v. South Australia (1924) 35 C.L.R. 200 at pp. 203-209, 31 A.L.J. 81 at p. 82.

As to whether Part II of the Financial Agreements Enforcement Act 1912 is within the power derived by the Parliament from the operation of this section combined with s. 103A (b) see New South Wales v. Commonwealth (No. 1) (1932) 46 C.L.R. 1, at pp. 171-171, 1932, 21 A.L.J. 22, 38 A.L.J. 243 at pp. 248, 249, 251, 260, 265-270.

Per Dixon, J. The principle that the Attorney-General of the Commonwealth or a State is the proper representative of the Commonwealth or the State as the case may be is recognized by ss. 61 and 62 of the Judiciary Act 1903, enacted by virtue of this section. Isaacs v. Victoria (1935) 52 C.L.R. 157 at p. 187, 41 A.L.J. 157, at p. 167.

(b) Held by the High Court (Knox, CJ, Gavan Duffy, Powers, Rich and Starke, JJ., Higgins, J., dissenting) that the word "matters" in this section involves some right, privilege or protection given by law, or the prevention, redress or punishment of some act inhibited by law. In re the Judiciary and Administration Acts, (1921) 30 C.L.R. 257, 27 A.L.J. 191.

Trial by jury

80. The trial on indictment of any offence against any law of the Commonwealth^(a) shall be by jury^(b), and every such trial shall be held in the State where the offence was committed, and if the offence was not committed within any State^(c) the trial shall be held at such place or places as the Parliament prescribes.

Held by the High Court that the Criminal Act 1914-1920 which provides in certain events for trial of offences summarily does not conflict with this section and that Parliament could make the offence under s. 306 of the Criminal Act 1911-1920 punishable summarily. R v Archdall and Roskrige, R parte Carrigan and Brown (1924) 41 C.L.R. 126; 34 A.L.J. 29.

CHAPTER IV - FINANCE AND TRADE.

81. All revenues or moneys raised or received by the Executive Government of the Commonwealth shall form one Consolidated Revenue Fund, to be appropriated for the purposes of the Commonwealth^(a) in the manner and subject to the charges and liabilities imposed by this Constitution^(b).

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the High Court that the Parliament of the Commonwealth has authority to appropriate money out of the Consolidated Revenue for a specific purpose, such money being money appropriated for the purposes of the Commonwealth within the meaning of this section, and money so appropriated, though not yet actually disbursed, is expenditure within the meaning of s. 80, and is not surplus revenue within the meaning of s. 96 until the actual disbursement of it for that purpose is no longer lawful or no longer thought necessary by the Government. New South Wales v. Commonwealth (1908) 7 C.L.R. 179; 14 A.L.J. 623. See also New South Wales v. Burdolph, (1904), 2 C.L.R. 455; 41 A.L.J. 22.

(b) As to the necessity for Parliamentary authority for the validity of a contract which involves the provision of funds by Parliament, see The Commonwealth v Colonial Combining, Spinning and Weaving Co Ltd, (1922) 31 C.L.R. 421, at p 448; 29 A.L.J. 126, at p 146.

As to whether this section enables the Commonwealth to appropriate moneys for any purpose deemed sufficient by the Commonwealth irrespective of its relation to the legislative and executive authority conferred upon Commonwealth organs by other sections of the Constitution see Attorney-General for Victoria v Commonwealth, (1935) 62 C.L.R. 53 at pp 530-60 567-8, 41 A.L.J. 246 at pp 251-254-5.

82^(a) The costs, charges, and expenses incident to the collection, management, and receipt of the Consolidated Revenue Fund shall form the first charge thereon, and the revenue of the Commonwealth shall in the first instance be applied to the payment of the expenditure of the Commonwealth

Expenditure charged thereon

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Section cited by High Court in support of the distinction drawn by the Court between 'payment' and 'expenditure' in deciding that the expenditure of the Commonwealth which must be taken into account in determining the surplus revenue of the Commonwealth is not limited to moneys which have actually been paid out. See South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 7 C.L.R. 179, at pp 193-201 206-14 A.L.J. 1 at pp 630-631-63.

83 No money shall be drawn from the Treasury of the Commonwealth except under appropriation made by law^(a)

Money to be appropriated by law

But until the expiration of one month after the first meeting of the Parliament the Governor General in Council may draw from the Treasury and expend such moneys as may be necessary for the maintenance of any department transferred to the Commonwealth and for the holding of the first elections for the Parliament

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Per Griffith C.J. S. 84 of the Constitution operates as a charge upon Commonwealth revenue of a sufficient sum to give effect to the section and as an appropriation made by law within the meaning of this section. Bank of New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 7 C.L.R. 133 at p 22, 9 A.L.J. 274 at p 2 A.L.J. 200 at p 204.

84.^(a) When any department of the public service of a State becomes transferred to the Commonwealth^(b), all officers of the department shall become subject to the control of the Executive Government of the Commonwealth.

Transfer of officers

Any such officer who is not retained in the service of the Commonwealth shall, unless he is appointed to some other office of equal emolument in the public service of the State, be entitled to receive from the State any pension, gratuity, or other compensation, payable under the law of the State on the abolition of his office.

Any such officer who is retained in the service of the Commonwealth shall preserve all his existing and accruing rights^(c), and shall be entitled to retire from office at the time, and on the pension or retiring allowance^(d), which would be permitted by the law of the State^(e) if his service with the Commonwealth were a continuation of his service with the State^(f). Such pension or retiring allowance shall be paid to him by the Commonwealth; but the State shall pay to the Commonwealth a part thereof, to be calculated on the proportion which his term of service with the State bears to his whole term of service^(f), and for the purpose of the calculation his salary shall be taken to be that paid to him by the State at the time of the transfer.

Any officer who is, at the establishment of the Commonwealth, in the public service of a State, and who is, by consent of the Governor of the State with the advice of the Executive Council thereof, transferred to the public service of the Commonwealth, shall have the same rights as if he had been an officer of a department transferred to the Commonwealth and were retained in the service of the Commonwealth.

GENERAL NOTES. (1) For list of the Departments of State which have been transferred to the Commonwealth see s 80 and notes thereon.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that this section operates as a charge upon the Commonwealth revenue of a sufficient sum to give effect to it and as a sufficient authority to the Executive Government of the Commonwealth to make the necessary payments to the persons entitled to receive them. Forbes v Commonwealth (1907) 11 L R 133 3 A L J 254 23 A L J 200.

(b) Griffith (J) s 81 (a) of the Constitution being a temporary provision must as to cases within s 84 be read as if proviso (f) s 84. New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 6 C L R 214, at p 224.

As to the extent to which s 17 governs the operation of the section see Forbes v Commonwealth (1907) 11 C L R 133, 31 A L J 111. Forbes v Commonwealth (1913) 54 C L R 113 at p 53 42 A L J 90 (at p 3).

(b) Held by the High Court that upon the transference of a department of a State to the Commonwealth the rights of the officers of the department are definitely ascertained and settled, and an officer in such a department who is retained in the service of the Commonwealth preserves all his "existing and accruing rights." Forbes v Commonwealth (1908) 11 L R 133 3 A L J 254 23 A L J 200.

Held by the High Court that "existing and accruing rights" include a right to be retained in the service at the other's existing rate of remuneration until his remuneration is increased on the conditions ascertained by a competent authority. Forbes v Commonwealth (1908) 11 L R 133 3 A L J 254 23 A L J 200.

Held by the High Court that notwithstanding the provisions of the Public Service Act 1900 (S.A.) s 10 the Parliament of the Commonwealth may reduce the salaries of officers of Victorian Government Departments transferred to the Commonwealth. Commonwealth v Commonwealth (1908) 3 C L R 69 12 A L J 175.

Held by the High Court that the right to a gratuity calculated in accordance with the rule provided by s 40 (ii) of the Public Service Act 1895 (N.S.W.) is in the case of those officers transferred from the State to the Commonwealth whose service brought them within the provisions of this section an "existing or accruing right" within the meaning of this section. New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 6 C L R 214.

Quere per Higgins J. Whether a gratuity under s 60 (ii) of the Public Service Act 1895 (N.S.W.) in the case of the compulsory retirement of an officer transferred to the Commonwealth comes within the provisions for apportionment between State and Commonwealth contained in this section or as to whether the provision as to apportionment is not limited to cases where officers retire voluntarily. New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 6 C L R 214 at pp 240-1.

As to whether this section protects from compulsory dismissal an officer of the Department of Defence transferred to the Commonwealth with his Department on 1st March 1901 (there being at that time no Public Service Act in Queensland) see Quinn v Commonwealth (1915) 21 L J 110 at p 115.

Held by the High Court that under the Civil Service Act 1873 (S.A.) and the Civil Service Amendment Act 1881 (S.A.) an officer, apart from incapacity, was not a ground for removal of an officer of the Civil Service, and an officer having attained the age of sixty-five years could not on that ground alone be lawfully retired or removed from office, and that that was an "existing right" (within s 60 of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1902 1918) which an officer of a Department transferred to the Commonwealth who was retained in the Commonwealth Public Service then enjoyed. Per Higgins J. It was also an "existing right" within the meaning of s 84 of the Constitution. Le Lieux v Commonwealth (1921) 29 C L R 362, 27 A L R 242.

Held by the High Court (Knox (J) Higgins and Starke JJ, Isaacs J dissenting) that in estimating the damages to which a transferred officer has "rights" under this section and wrongfully removed from office is entitled the relevant salary is that which he was receiving at the date of his removal and not that which he was receiving at the date when the Department was transferred to the Commonwealth or the maximum salary to which under the law of the State from which he was transferred he could have attained if he had remained in the Public Service of that State. Lieu v Commonwealth (1923) 13 C L R 221.

As to whether, in the case of a Queensland officer subject to the Public Service Act 1896, who is transferred to the Commonwealth Public Service, the right to remain in the Public Service until he attains the age of sixty-five years is an "existing right" within the meaning of s 60 of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1902, 1918, and as to whether the right given by the last mentioned section is a larger right than the right given by s 84 of the Constitution, see Forbes v Commonwealth (1924) 34 C L R 587, at p 589.

Held by the High Court (Knox (J) Ekin and Starke JJ, Isaacs and Higgins JJ, dissenting) that in the case of a South Australian officer transferred to the Commonwealth who preserves his existing and accruing rights under this paragraph no "right" (within the meaning of s 84 of the Constitution) to be required to resign before being removed for incapacity was conferred by a 24 of the Civil Service Act 1874 (S.A.) and therefore such an officer might under s 67 of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1902, be removed from the Public Service without first being required to resign. Bradshaw v Commonwealth (1925) 38 C L R 585 31 A L R 441.

Held by the High Court in the case of a South Australian transferred officer that the chance of promotion from one class to a higher class in the South Australian Civil Service at the time of his transfer, with his Department, to the Commonwealth, was not, having regard to the conditions contained in s 22 of the Civil Service Act 1874 (S.A.) an existing or accruing right of the officer within the meaning of this section. Held also that the fact that such an officer, who was retained in the Public Service of the Commonwealth and who was then receiving the maximum salary of his class had before his formal classification under the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1902 came into operation received from time to time increments to his salary, did not confer any right upon him to continue to receive the increased salary or preclude the Public Service Commissioner from allotting to him any salary so long as it was equal to or greater than that which he was receiving at the date of the transfer. Schedmah v Commonwealth, (1926) 38 C L R 518, 32 A L J 364.

Held by the High Court (Rich, Dixon, Evatt and McHugh JJ) reversing the decision of Starke J that in view of the provisions of this section as to the preservation by a transferred officer of his existing and accruing rights a South Australian transferred officer may not be retired from the service under ss. 20 and 29 of the Commonwealth Public Service Act 1902-1934 upon the ground that there was employed a greater number of officers of his particular classification than was necessary for the efficient working of that branch but only under s. 14 of the Civil Service Act 1874 (4 A.) or the ground that it was necessary to diminish the number of officers in the Department. Thomas v Commonwealth (1937) 54 C L R 319, 42 A L J 95.

(c) Held by the High Court that this paragraph relates only to officers in the Public Service of a State who at the time of their transfer to the Public Service of the Commonwealth had rights against the State based on continuous employment in the Public Service of the State from a date prior to the establishment of the Commonwealth. Fraser v Commonwealth (1933) 51 C L R 85.

(f) Held by the High Court (Rich, Starke, Dixon and Evatt JJ, McHugh J dissenting) that the words which would be permitted by the law of the State to refer to the law of the State in force at the time of the transfer and that an officer who was transferred to the Commonwealth was not entitled to the benefits conferred by a State law passed after his transfer. Trenchard v Commonwealth (1935) 49 C L R 392, 59 A L J 282.

(g) Held by the High Court that where a Department of the Public Service of a State has been transferred to the Commonwealth the savings to an officer of the law with which he has been connected in the service of the Commonwealth the right on retirement to a pension of the amount to which he had continued in the service of the State he would have been entitled under the law of the State at the time of his retirement and this must stand notwithstanding the transfer to the Commonwealth of State legislation. Finlay v Commonwealth (1937) 57 C L R 273, 63 A L J 11.

(f) Held (in the case of a New South Wales transferred officer retiring from the Commonwealth during the period while the method of a continuing salary was in force) that any gratuity payable to the officer under s. 60 (1) of the Civil Service Act 1933 is apportioned between the Commonwealth and the State under s. 84 of the Constitution the portion payable by the Commonwealth being thereafter chargeable against the State as expenditure incurred solely for the maintenance and continuance of the Department as at the time of transfer. New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 8 C L R 213.

85^(a) When any department of the public service of a State is transferred to the Commonwealth—

Transfer of property of State

- (i) All property of the State of any kind used exclusively in connexion with the department, shall become vested in the Commonwealth⁽¹⁾ but, in the case of the departments controlling customs and excise and bounties for such time only as the Governor General in Council may declare to be necessary
- (ii.) The Commonwealth may acquire any property of the State, of any kind used, but not exclusively used in connexion with the department the value thereof shall, if no agreement can be made, be ascertained in, as nearly as may be, the manner in which the value of land, or of an interest in land, taken by the State for public purposes is ascertained under the law of the State in force at the establishment of the Commonwealth
- (iii) The Commonwealth shall compensate the State for the value of any property passing to the Commonwealth under this section⁽²⁾, if no agreement can be made as to the mode of compensation, it shall be determined under laws to be made by the Parliament
- (iv.) The Commonwealth shall, at the date of the transfer, assume the current obligations⁽³⁾ of the State in respect of the department transferred

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Per Latham C J. This section does not confer on the Parliament of the Commonwealth power to legislate with respect to the subject-matter with which the transferred Department deals. R v Brislan. Ex parte Williams (1935) 54 C L R 262 at p. 276, 42 A L J 45 at p. 49.

(b) Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of New South Wales (Owen and G. R. Simpson, JJ., Macpherson, J., dissenting) that, even though under this section, the area upon which a post office is built is vested in the Commonwealth s. 52 of the Constitution does not have the effect of giving the Commonwealth exclusive power to make laws in respect of that area so as to negative the continued application to it of the Postage Act of the State. R v. Hanson (1901) 15 B. R. (N.S.W.) 337.

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Victoria that this section does not exempt a Commonwealth officer from the payment of State income tax on his official salary earned in any place acquired by the Commonwealth in pursuance of this section. In re Income Tax Act (No. 4), Wollaston's Case, (1902) 28 A. L. J. 157 at p. 191, 8 A. L. J. 188 at p. 198, 24 A. L. J. 61 at p. 71.

Per Griffith, C.J. The language of this section expresses accurately and unmistakably the change in constitutional ownership of the property to which the section applies. Municipal Council of Sydney v. Commonwealth, (1904) 1 C. L. R. 208, at p. 231, (see also per Barton J., at p. 236), 10 A. L. J. (C.N.) 29.

Held by the High Court (Knox C.J. Leaves and Strike JJ. and five) that he dissented as to the inclusion of royal metals. Higgins J. that all the lands to which this paragraph applied including the royal metals and other minerals therein vested in the Commonwealth freed and discharged from all reservations, rights, royalties and obligations of any kind whatsoever to the State, subject to compensation pursuant to paragraph (iii). Commonwealth v. New South Wales, (1923) 33 C. L. R. 1, 20 A. L. J. 401.

(c) See note on Commonwealth v. New South Wales, (1923) 33 C. L. R. 1, 20 A. L. J. 401 (in note (b) supra).

(d) As to whether obligations as to exemption from taxation or recoupment of taxation, which are imposed on a State under agreements made with a company before Federation are 'current obligations' within the meaning of this section see Eastern Federation of Firms and China Telegraph Co. Ltd. v. Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1943) 33 C. L. R. 420 at pp. 436-43, 447-9, 451, 30 A. L. J. 144, at pp. 146-8, 150-2.

86^(a) On the establishment of the Commonwealth, the collection and control of duties of customs and of excise^(b), and the control of the payment of bounties, shall pass to the Executive Government of the Commonwealth.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that in view of this section and ss. 52 (ii) and 90 the Customs Act 1901 was validly enacted and applies to goods imported by the Government of a State as well as to those imported by private persons. R v. Sullivan (1908) 1 C. L. R. 790, 14 A. L. J. 80.

(b) Held by the High Court that there is no excise under s. 71 of the Tobacco Act 1898 (N.S.W.) (No. 18 of 1898) or no duties of excise within the meaning of this section. Merchants of duties of excise discussed. Peter v. Sullivan (1904) 1 C. L. R. 49, 10 A. L. J. (C.N.) 6.

Held by the High Court that an Act, imposing a temporary duty of excise on certain manufactured goods with a proviso that the Act shall not apply to any such goods manufactured under satisfactory conditions of labour is not in substance an Act imposing duties of excise but an Act to regulate the conditions of manufacture of the goods. R v. Barker (Commonwealth v. McKay), (1908) 6 C. L. R. 41, 14 A. L. J. 173.

As to the meaning of 'duties of excise' see John Fairfax & Sons Ltd. and Smith & Newpapers Ltd. v. New South Wales (1927) 9 C. L. R. 133, 3 A. L. J. 84.

87 During a period of ten years after the establishment of the Commonwealth and thereafter until the Parliament otherwise provides^(c), of the net revenue of the Commonwealth from duties of customs and of excise not more than one fourth shall be applied annually by the Commonwealth towards its expenditure^(d).

The balance shall, in accordance with this Constitution, be paid to the several States, or applied towards the payment of interest^(e) on debts of the several States taken over by the Commonwealth.

GENERAL NOTES. (c) The Parliament otherwise provided in pursuance of this section, by the Surplus Revenue Act 1910 which provided (section 1) for the cess of s. 87 from and after 31st December, 1910 and (sections 4-6) for certain payments to the States.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Meaning of the expressions 'applied annually by the Commonwealth towards its expenditure' and 'applied towards the payment of interest' discussed by High Court. New South Wales v. Commonwealth (1908) 7 C. L. R. 170, at pp. 193-4, 197-202, 14 A. L. J. 826, at pp. 630, 631-633.

Uniform duties of customs

88 Uniform duties of customs shall be imposed within two years after the establishment of the Commonwealth⁽¹⁾ (a).

GENERAL NOTES.—(1) By the Customs Tariff 1902 (No. 11, 1902) the Parliament declared that the time of imposition of uniform duties of customs was 8th October, 1901.

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Question as to the true date of the imposition of uniform duties discussed by Full Court of the Supreme Court of Queensland Colonial Sugar Refining Co Ltd v Treng 1903 81 R Qd 261. See also decision of Privy Council on appeal Colonial Sugar Refining Co Ltd v Treng, 1906 A.C. 304.

Imposition of uniform duties of customs is from 8th October 1901 upheld by the High Court Tasmania v Commonwealth and Victoria (1904) 1 C.L.R. 129, 10 A.L.J. (C.N.) 41.

Scope of section discussed by High Court Elliot v Commonwealth (1906) 54 C.L.R. 457, at p. 467, 42 A.L.J. 174 at p. 176.

89. Until the imposition of uniform duties of customs —

(i.) The Commonwealth shall credit to each State the revenues collected therein by the Commonwealth^(a)

Payment to States before uniform duties.

(ii.) The Commonwealth shall debit to each State

(a) The expenditure^(b) therein of the Commonwealth incurred solely for the maintenance or continuance, as at the time of transfer, of any department transferred from the State to the Commonwealth^(c)

(b) The proportion of the State, according to the number of its people, in the other expenditure^(b) of the Commonwealth

(iii.) The Commonwealth shall pay to each State month by month the balance^(d) (if any) in favour of the State

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the High Court that the State of Tasmania was not entitled under the Constitution to be credited with duties of customs collected by the Commonwealth in the State of Victoria between 1st January 1901 and 8th October 1901 (the date of the imposition of uniform duties of customs) and passed on to the latter date thereafter into the State of Tasmania for consumption. Section 89 discussed by High Court Tasmania v Commonwealth and Victoria (1904) 1 C.L.R. 129, at pp. 331, 340-4, 346-8, 152-8, 300-1, 10 A.L.J. (C.N.) 11.

(b) Held by the High Court that money appropriated by Parliament out of the Consolidated Revenue for a specific purpose although not actually disbursed is expenditure within the meaning of this section New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 7 C.L.R. 179, 14 A.L.J. 6-8.

(c) Held by the High Court in the case of a New South Wales officer transferred with his Department to the Commonwealth and subsequently retired compulsorily that the State (attributable to the Commonwealth) of the gratuity payable to the officer under s. 60 (m) of the Public Service Act 1890 (N.S.W.) is during the operation of this section to be debited to the State under sub-paragraph (a) as being expenditure of the Commonwealth incurred solely for the maintenance or continuance of the Department as at the time of transfer New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 7 C.L.R. 214.

(d) Held by the High Court that this section does not require exact balances to be struck at the end of each month but that the monthly payments are to be of approximate amounts, having regard to the probable total financial operations of the year New South Wales v Commonwealth (1904) 7 C.L.R. 179, 14 A.L.J. 8-7.

90.^(a) On the imposition of uniform duties of customs the power of the Parliament to impose duties of customs^(b) and of excise^(c), and to grant bounties^(d) on the production or export of goods, shall become exclusive.^(e)

Exclusive power over customs, excise, and bounties.

On the imposition of uniform duties of customs all laws of the several States imposing duties of customs or of excise^(f) or offering bounties on the production or export of goods, shall cease to have effect, but any grant of or agreement for any such bounty lawfully made by or under the authority of the Government of any State shall be taken to be good if made before the thirtieth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, and not otherwise.

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Queensland and by the Privy Council that this section does not prohibit Parliament from imposing duties of excise until uniform duties of customs have been imposed Colonial Sugar Refining Co Ltd v Treng, 1903 81 R Qd 261, 1906 A.C. 300.

(c) Held by the Supreme Court of Tasmania (Clark J.) that the Income Tax Act 1902 (Tas.)—which, by paragraph (1) of s. 32 fixed a minimum taxable amount of the income of a company not having its head office or chief place of business in Tasmania—is not repugnant to this section. In re the Australasian Automatic Weighing Machine Co. (1909) 1 Tas. L.R. 112. Per Clark J. Before a tax can be regarded as a violation of this section it must be equivalent to a tax upon the importation or exportation of articles of commerce from one State to another or to a tax upon the passage of persons from one State to another or to a tax upon the transmission of information or messages from one State to another. Ibid.

Question as to when goods which have been the subject of interstate trade cease to be such discussed by Stephen J. (Supreme Court of New South Wales). Ex parte Booth, Re Phillips (1932) 48 W.N. (N.S.W.) 78.

Held by the High Court that a law of a State which for a licence authorizing the sale of wine manufactured from fruit grown in the State, requires a greater fee to be paid than for a licence authorizing the sale of wine manufactured from fruit grown in the State, is contrary to the provisions of this section and is therefore to the extent at least of the difference between the fees so required to be paid invalid. Torres v. Tobin (1908) 8 C.L.R. 115, 35 A.L.J. 112. Decision cited by Privy Council with approval. James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 113.

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Tasmania that a State has full authority to make law for the control of the sale of liquor whether to be supplied from outside that State or not, and that such authority is not affected by this section. C. v. O'Connell (1911) 7 Tas. L.R. 40.

Held by the High Court that s. 1 of the Infant of Criminals Act 1901 (N.S.W.) which provides in effect that any person who has been convicted for any offence of which he is liable to suffer disability to be employed for ever or for a term of years or to be confined in a gaol in New South Wales before the lapse of three years after the termination of any imprisonment suffered by him is invalid on the ground that it is an interference with freedom of intercourse within the meaning of this section. Ex parte Benson (1911) 11 C.L.R. 39, 39 A.L.J. 209. Decision cited by Privy Council with approval. James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 113.

Held by the High Court that the provisions of the Wharf Acquisition Act 1914 (N.S.W.) which gives the Government of New South Wales power to acquire wharves and wharfage and to transfer the rights and interests of persons in the wharf and wharfage for compensation and to make contracts for the sale of New South Wales wharves in New South Wales and certain contracts for the sale of wharves to be delivered after the expiry of 14 days after the date of this section and that the Act is contrary to the Parliament of the State. New South Wales v. Commonwealth (1915) 20 C.L.R. 31, 21 A.L.J. 128. Decision discussed by Privy Council in James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 39, 42 A.L.J. 113, but in James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 113.

Held by the High Court (Latham C.J. and Latham J.) and Rich J. (Gavan Duffy J. dissenting) that so far as s. 1 of the Meat Supply for Imperial Uses Act 1915 (N.S.W.) which declares that all stock and meat in any place in New South Wales and have become and shall remain subject to the Act and shall be held for the purposes of and shall be kept for the disposal of His Majesty's Imperial Government in aid of the supplies for His Majesty's troops in the war, purports to authorize the Government of New South Wales to prevent the export of stock by the owners thereof from that State to another State, it is an interference with interstate trade and commerce and therefore invalid as being in purport in aid of this section. Logg v. James & Co. Ltd v. New South Wales (1916) 21 C.L.R. 317, 22 A.L.J. 318. (By reason of the High Court in James v. Commonwealth (1916) 21 C.L.R. 317, 22 A.L.J. 318, but as a principle of law it is not in aid of this section.) McArthur & Co. Ltd v. Queensland (1920) 28 C.L.R. 530, 27 A.L.J. 130. Decision discussed by Privy Council in James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 113.

Held by the High Court (O'Connell C.J. and Higgins C.J.) and Higgins C.J., Powers and Rich J. (Barton and Isaacs J.J. dissenting) that the provisions of ss. 6 and 7 of the Meat Supply for Imperial Uses Act 1914 (Q.) which declare that all stock and meat in Queensland have become subject to the Act and are to be held for purposes of and kept for disposal of His Majesty's Imperial Government in aid of the supplies for His Majesty's troops in the war, and declare that the making of an order under the hand of the Chief Secretary the stock and meat shall become the property of His Majesty and the title of the owners shall be changed but a right to receive payment, and to hold any owner from dealing with stock or meat except on payment of the full value and order of the Chief Secretary, are not inconsistent with this section and therefore the Act is valid and its main object is to secure a certain local supply to the Imperial Government for His Majesty's troops in the war, and the effect in interstate trade is incidental and does not render the legislation invalid. James v. Queensland (1916) 22 C.L.R. 318, 22 A.L.J. 318. (Overruled by H. & A. McArthur Ltd v. Queensland (1920) 28 C.L.R. 530, 27 A.L.J. 130.) Decisions discussed by Privy Council in James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 113.

Per Barton and Isaacs J.J. dissenting: (1) The provisions in question are invalid inasmuch as while they do not transfer any fragment of ownership in the goods, they declare the owners' property inalienable as to any interest whatsoever except to the Imperial and Queenland Governments, if these Governments should ever desire to take the goods and also in the absence of that direct prohibition the owner from removing his goods into any other State without the permission of the Queensland Government. (2) The legislation is a contravention of s. 92 and (3) The absolute freedom of trade and commerce is not inconsistent with the power of the Commonwealth and State to enforce the ordinary duties of citizenship, i.e., to seize property for claims to pay debts, or to expropriate property. Duncan v. State of Queensland (1916) 22 C.L.R. 318, 22 A.L.J. 318. [Note: This case overruled Logg v. James & Co. Ltd v. New South Wales (1916) 21 C.L.R. 317, 22 A.L.J. 318, but as a principle of law it is not in aid of this section.] Decision discussed by Privy Council in James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 113.

Held by the High Court (Knox C.J. and Isaacs J.J., Higgins, Rich and Starke J.J., Gavan Duffy J., dissenting) that so far as the Profile and Pre-emption Act 1920 (Q.) which provides inter alia that it shall be unlawful for a trader whether as principal or agent to sell or offer to sell or offer for sale any commodity at a price higher than a price declared in the Queensland Government Gazette applied to sales by travellers of goods stipulated to come from Sydney to Queensland, the Act was invalid as being in contravention of this section. H. & A. McArthur Ltd v. Queensland (1920) 28 C.L.R. 530, 27 A.L.J. 130. Decision questioned by Privy Council in James v. Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 113.

Held by the High Court (Knox C.J., Isaacs, Rich and Starke J.J., Higgins and Gavan Duffy J.J., dissenting) that Duncan v. State of Queensland (supra) 22 C.L.R. 318, 22 A.L.J. 318, was wrongly decided, and Logg v. James & Co. Ltd v. New South Wales (supra) 21 C.L.R. 317, 22 A.L.J. 318, had been rightly decided. H. & A. McArthur Ltd v. State of Queensland (1920) 28 C.L.R. 530, 27 A.L.J. 130.

Question whether a State Act purporting to place restrictions on trade generally, without express words of distinction can be treated as effectively restricting interstate trade discussed by High Court in W & A McArthur Ltd v State of Queensland (1920) 28 CLR 630 at pp 559-574. 27 ALR 140, at pp 141-2. Held by the Privy Council that the word free does not necessarily connote the absence of discrimination between interstate and intrastate trade. Tanaka v Commonwealth 1936 AC 578-55 (CLR 1, 42 ALR 313).

As to whether § 7 of The Fruit Marketing Organization Act of 1923 (Q) which provides that the Committee of Direction of Fruit Marketing shall take control of the marketing of all fruit would if it conferred an exclusive power it will be invalid as contravening this section see Committee of Direction of Fruit Marketing v. United Fruit (1923) 36 C.T.R. 410 41 A.T.R. 322.

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Victoria that Regulations of the Melbourne Harbour Trust which impose different wharfage rates according to the goods so manufactured abroad or manufactured within Australia or arrive in the port of Melbourne from any port in Victoria within Port Phillip Heads, are not invalid as contravening this section, the effect (if any) of the Regulations upon interstate trade being to require to be met and supported in some way the operation of this section. *Melbourne Harbour Trust Corporation v. (181) by the High Court (Gwynn Duffy, Rich and Shute JJ. Issues 1, 2, 3 and Powers 1, 2, 3) that this section is in more than an inhibition addressed to the Parliament of the States preventing the Parliament from doing so as to interfere with the term as prescribed by that section and giving no right to the Officers of the Commonwealth the right to act and all access to procure the assistance of the public power in resisting such legislation; and consequently, that the High Court had no jurisdiction to interfere in such a claim complaining of a constitution, and claims of the plaintiff-diffracted after the Dried Fruits (1924 and 1925) (S.A.) had occurred to the plaintiff his use of action was founded upon his possessory rights and not upon the Constitution and because the defendants could not justify the acquisitions and takings by invoking the Constitution or any statute involving his interference of James v. Scott's Estate (1927) 40 C.L.R. 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607, 608, 609, 610, 611, 612, 613, 614, 615, 616, 617, 618, 619, 620, 621, 622, 623, 624, 625, 626, 627, 628, 629, 630, 631, 632, 633, 634, 635, 636, 637, 638, 639, 640, 641, 642, 643, 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 652, 653, 654, 655, 656, 657, 658, 659, 660, 661, 662, 663, 664, 665, 666, 667, 668, 669, 670, 671, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684, 685, 686, 687, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 695, 696, 697, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 703, 704, 705, 706, 707, 708, 709, 710, 711, 712, 713, 714, 715, 716, 717, 718, 719, 720, 721, 722, 723, 724, 725, 726, 727, 728, 729, 730, 731, 732, 733, 734, 735, 736, 737, 738, 739, 740, 741, 742, 743, 744, 745, 746, 747, 748, 749, 750, 751, 752, 753, 754, 755, 756, 757, 758, 759, 760, 761, 762, 763, 764, 765, 766, 767, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774, 775, 776, 777, 778, 779, 780, 781, 782, 783, 784, 785, 786, 787, 788, 789, 790, 791, 792, 793, 794, 795, 796, 797, 798, 799, 800, 801, 802, 803, 804, 805, 806, 807, 808, 809, 810, 811, 812, 813, 814, 815, 816, 817, 818, 819, 820, 821, 822, 823, 824, 825, 826, 827, 828, 829, 830, 831, 832, 833, 834, 835, 836, 837, 838, 839, 840, 841, 842, 843, 844, 845, 846, 847, 848, 849, 850, 851, 852, 853, 854, 855, 856, 857, 858, 859, 860, 861, 862, 863, 864, 865, 866, 867, 868, 869, 870, 871, 872, 873, 874, 875, 876, 877, 878, 879, 880, 881, 882, 883, 884, 885, 886, 887, 888, 889, 890, 891, 892, 893, 894, 895, 896, 897, 898, 899, 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, 906, 907, 908, 909, 910, 911, 912, 913, held by the High Court (knowing that it was in bad faith Powers and Sharke 11 Williams J dissenting) that s 186(3) of the Stock Act 1901 (NSW) which provided that if any resolution not when required give an improper allotment with respect to any unissued stock for the fittings or efforts he shall be liable to imprisonment does not violate the provision in this Statute in relation to commerce and intercourse among the States being absolutely true 1st part of s 90 (1) 1939 42 CLR 209 35 ALJR 21 As to the powers of a State after goods or stock have crossed the border see James v Commonwealth, 1936 AC 578 53 CLR 42 ALJR 113

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Indiana that ss. 48 and 49 of the Indiana Act 1925 (Tax) in their application to fishing vessels trading interstate do not contravene the provisions of this section as to the freedom of trade and commerce between the States. (Ballinger v. Hou (1929) 24 Fax 1, 32, 53.

2. Held by the High Court (Knox, C.J., Gavan Duffy and Ridd, JJ.) January 7, 1929, that a 28 of the Dried Fruits Act 1924 (227 (S.A.)) which provides that subject to s. 92 of the Constitution and for the purpose of the Dried Fruits Act in any instrument made by the Dried Fruits Board constituted under the Act, the Minister of Agriculture may, on behalf of His Majesty, purchase or acquire compulsorily any dried fruits in South Australia grown and dried in South Australia, authorizes the compulsory acquisition of such dried fruit, and does not violate the provisions of s. 92 of the Constitution as being an interference with the freedom of trade, commerce and inter-course among the States." James v. Cowan, (1930) 43 C.L.R. 388, 36 A.L.J. 122. On appeal held by the Privy Council that a 28 of the Dried Fruits Act 1924 (S.A.) is invalid as being contrary to the provisions of s. 92 of the Constitution, and that s. 28 (1) of the Dried Fruits Act 1924 (227 (S.A.)) does not authorize the Minister of Agriculture for South Australia to make orders for the compulsory acquisition of dried fruits in that State grown and dried therein for the purpose of forcing surplus dried fruit off the Australian market.

Held further that such orders not only contravene s. 92 of the Constitution, but also contravene s. 28 of the Dried Fruit Act itself in which the powers given to the Minister are expressly made subject to s. 92 of the Constitution. James v Council 1932 A.C. 542, 47 C.L.R. 380, 38 A.L.J. 334. Berkson in James v Council discussed by Privy Council in James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 333.

Held by the High Court (Gavan Duffy, C.J., Rich, Starke, Dixon and McTiernan, JJ., dissenting) that the provisions of the Primary Producers' Organization and Marketing Act 1926-1928 (Q.) which provide for the creation of a Board in which may be vested the property of growers in any commodity, contravened this section and that the Act and the Order in Council which purported to effectuate the divesting of the property were ineffectual to prevent growers of peanuts from disposing of them in interstate trade. Peanut Board v Rockhampton Harbour Board (1933) 48 C.L.R. 286, 39 A.L.J. 161. Decision cited with approval by Privy Council in James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 333.

Held by the High Court (Rich, Starke, Evatt and McTiernan, JJ., Dixon J. dissenting) that s. 4 of the Motor Car Act 1924-1930 (Vic.)—which requires every motor car to be registered and to have a separate identifying number—does not infringe s. 92 of the Constitution. Held therefore, that a carrier resident in New South Wales who was driving on a public highway in Victoria a motor truck registered in New South Wales but not in Victoria and was at the time carrying goods from a town in New South Wales to Melbourne, was rightly convicted of an offence against s. 4. Willard v Dawson (1933) 48 C.L.R. 316, 39 A.L.J. 209. Held by the High Court that the scheme of compulsory acquisition of milk under s. 20 of the Milk Act 1931 (N.S.W.) which provides for the compulsory acquisition of milk supplied for consumption or use within the metropolitan milk distributing district of New South Wales, does not contravene the provisions of this section as to the freedom of interstate trade. Cuthbert v Shell (1933) 49 C.L.R. 990.

Held by the High Court (Gavan Duffy, C.J., Rich, Evatt and McTiernan, JJ., Starke and Dixon, JJ. dissenting) that the provisions of the State Transport (Coordination) Act 1931 (N.S.W.) which make it an offence to operate in New South Wales a public motor vehicle which is either licensed by the Board nor exempt, did not contravene this section as interfering with the freedom of interstate trade, commerce and intercourse. A v Lillard, Ex parte Hill (1933) 50 C.L.R. 0, 40 A.L.J. 16. Held by the High Court (Rich, Dixon, Evatt and McTiernan, JJ., Starke J. dissenting) that the Motor Spirit Vendors Act 1933 (Q.) which by s. 3 provides that no person should in Queensland sell for delivery in Queensland any motor spirit which was at the time of sale situated in Queensland a diesel in was the holder of a licence under the Act and by s. 6 requires every holder of a licence to purchase and pay at a prescribed rate for a quantity of power alcohol manufactured in Australia (a quantity prescribed proportion to the quantity of motor spirit sold by him) contravenes this section and to the extent to which it does so is invalid. Vacuum Oil Co. Pty. Ltd. v Queensland (1934) 51 C.L.R. 108, 40 A.L.J. 164. Decision cited with approval by Privy Council in James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 333.

As to the effect of this section upon State laws which but for it might be continued in force under s. 107 of the Constitution see Vacuum Oil Co. Pty. Ltd. v Queensland (No. 2) (1935) 51 C.L.R. 677, at p. 691, 41 A.L.J. 114. See also James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 333.

s. 4 of the Vegetation and Vine Diseases Act 1928 (Vic.) empowers the Governor in Council of the State by proclamation to prohibit the importation, introduction or bringing into Victoria of any tree, plant or vegetable which is in the opinion of the Governor in Council likely to introduce any disease or insect into Victoria and at any time to alter or revoke such proclamation. Sub-section 3 makes it an offence to bring into Victoria any vegetable contrary to any prohibition contained in any proclamation. The Governor in Council, by a proclamation which recited that in his opinion the introduction of potatoes from Tasmania was likely to introduce disease into Victoria, prohibited the importation, introduction or bringing into Victoria of potatoes from Tasmania. The State of Tasmania and the Attorney-General thereof brought an action in the High Court against the State of Victoria and the Minister for Agriculture of that State for a declaration that the proclamation was invalid. The State of Tasmania did not itself trade in potatoes with Victoria. Held by the High Court as follows:—

- (1) By Gavan Duffy, C.J., Rich, Dixon, Evatt and McTiernan, JJ. that the proclamation was invalid because it contravened this section and by Gavan Duffy, C.J., Evatt and McTiernan, JJ., also because it was not authorized by s. 4 of the Vegetation and Vine Diseases Act, and
- (2) By Starke, J. that the Vegetation and Vine Diseases Act did not contravene s. 92 of the Constitution but that the proclamation was invalid because it was not authorized by the Act.

Tasmania v Victoria (1935) 52 C.L.R. 157, 41 A.L.J. 157. Decision as to State Act having contravened this section cited with approval by Privy Council in James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 55 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J. 333.

Goods belonging to a company were conveyed, in a motor vehicle owned by the company, from its warehouse in Melbourne, Victoria to its branch shops in certain towns in New South Wales, for the purposes of sale. The vehicle was not licensed under the State Transport (Co-ordination) Act 1931 (N.S.W.), nor had an exemption from the requirement of being licensed been granted. A charge calculated at the rate of threepence per ton of the weight of the vehicle loaded to capacity for each mile from the state border to the shop most distant therefrom was imposed upon the company by the Commissioner under s. 37 of the Act. The Act provided that it should be read and construed as if it were the legislative power of the State. Held by the High Court (Gibbs J. dissenting) that the provisions of the State Transport (Co-ordination) Act 1931 and the charge imposed under s. 37 did not contravene this section as interfering with the freedom of trade, commerce and intercourse among the States. Ogilpin Ltd v Commissioner for Road Transport and Trains (N.S.W.) (1935) 52 C.L.R. 189, 41 A.L.J. 148. Petition for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council in this case refused by Privy Council on 5th December 1935. Decision of High Court in Ogilpin case cited with approval by Privy Council in James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943.

Held by the High Court (Gibbs J. dissenting) that the provisions of the State Transport (Co-ordination) Act 1931 and the charge imposed under s. 37 did not contravene this section as interfering with the freedom of trade, commerce and intercourse among the States. Ogilpin Ltd v Commissioner for Road Transport and Trains (N.S.W.) (1935) 52 C.L.R. 189, 41 A.L.J. 148. Petition for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council in this case refused by Privy Council on 5th December 1935. Decision of High Court in Ogilpin case cited with approval by Privy Council in James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943.

A company transported goods for reward by motor lorry from a warehouse in Melbourne, Victoria to a consignee in a town in New South Wales situated more than 30 miles from the border. The town was served by a railway. The company held a licence in respect of the lorry under the State Transport (Co-ordination) Act 1931 (N.S.W.). Upon the licence was entered a Special Condition (Non-competitive licence). (1) The within-mentioned vehicle is authorized to operate as a goods motor vehicle on or in roads, roads, or in districts within New South Wales. (a) on a journey of more than a distance exceeding fifty miles is competitive with the railways or trams. (2) In respect of any journey which is wholly or partly competitive with the railways or trams, the licensee shall pay for the full competitive distance (in addition to any other sums payable under the Act) and this licence or other of them) threepence per ton of the weight of the vehicle loaded to capacity per mile travelled by the vehicle along a public street. (3) Provided that the terms, conditions and authorities of or attached to this licence are complied with the licence and the driver shall be exempt from the conditions mentioned in s. 18 (5) of the Act, and unless the Commissioner otherwise determines from the obligations imposed by regulations 9 and 10 under that Act in respect of any journey which is not for a distance exceeding fifty miles competitive with the railways or trams. Held by the High Court (Gibbs J. dissenting) that the provisions of this section of this section were not infringed by the State Transport (Co-ordination) Act or by the regulations thereunder or by the administration of the Act as disclosed by the evidence and the terms of the licence, and by Dixon J. that the decision of the majority of the Court in James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943, Ogilpin Ltd v Commissioner for Road Transport and Trains (N.S.W.) (1935) 52 C.L.R. 189, 41 A.L.J. 148, and James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943, completely covered the question of the validity of the licence in the form issued. Duncan and Grace Star Trading Co Ltd v James (1935) 53 C.L.R. 493. Petition for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council in these cases refused by Privy Council on 5th December 1935.

The Income Tax Act 1924 (Q.) after making provision that the taxable income of a company shall be the amount of the profits made by the company in the United Kingdom, provides by the second paragraph of s. 14 (1) (iv) that if such profits cannot be ascertained in the manner provided by the Commissioner, the taxable income of the company may be ascertained by the Commissioner of a sum which bears the same proportion to the total profits made by the company as the sales made in Queensland bear to the total sales made by the company or if there are no sales in the same proportion as the total income derived from Queensland bears to the total revenue derived by the company. Held by the High Court that the second paragraph of s. 14 (1) (iv) did not constitute an interference with trade and commerce among the States of the Commonwealth, and did not infringe the provisions of this section. Industrial Scale Company Ltd v Commissioner of Taxes (Q.) (1935) 53 C.L.R. 544, 41 A.L.J. 141.

Held by the Supreme Court of Victoria (Mann C.J.) that the Income Products Act 1933 (Vic.) and the declarations by the Minister thereunder were not invalid as involving a restriction upon interstate trade contrary to this section, no restriction upon interstate trade being in the opinion of the majority of the Commonwealth and the State being attributable to action by the Commonwealth and the provisions of this section not binding the Commonwealth. Schuy v F. C. Halpin Pty Ltd 1936 V.L.R. 42, 41 B.L.R. 138.

Per Latham C.J. and Starks J. It having been held that s. 92 does not bind the Commonwealth the regulations under the Transport Workers' Act 1924 1924 are not invalid as contravening that section. Lilwall v Commonwealth (1936) 54 C.L.R. 157, 42 A.L.J. 174.

Held by the High Court that the Dead Freight Act 1924 1924 is not invalid as contravening the provisions of this section, the section not binding the Commonwealth. James v Commonwealth (1935) 52 C.L.R. 570, 41 A.L.J. 27. But held by the Privy Council on appeal that the Act in question is invalid as contravening the provisions of this section and that this section binds the Commonwealth as well as the States. James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943.

Held by the Privy Council that the test whether an Act contravenes this section is whether there is interference with the freedom of passage from State to State. James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943.

Held by the Privy Council that the only limitation which can be placed on the word 'trade' in this section is that it means freedom of what is the crucial point in interstate trade that is, at the State barrier. Effect of use of word 'absolutely' discussed by Privy Council. James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943.

Held by the Privy Council that the following Commonwealth Acts are not invalid as interfering with the freedom of trade provided for by this section, namely: Post and Telegraph Act 1901-1923; Wireless Telegraphy Act 1905; Secret Communications Act 1905; Commerce (Trade Description) Act 1904; 1913 Australian Industries Preservation Act 1904-1910; Sea Carriage of Goods Act 1924; and Transport Workers Act 1924-1929, but that the Dairy Products Act 1933 1933 is invalid as so interfering. James v Commonwealth 1936 A.C. 578, 51 I.R. 1, 12 A.L.J. 943.

Held by the Privy Council that the following are classes of interferences with interstate trade which contravene this section:

- (a) customs duties, and border prohibitions and restrictions of every kind,
- (b) compulsory acquisition directed wholly or partially against interstate trade in goods, i.e. against selling them out of the State,
- (c) placing a special burden on goods in the State to which they have come simply because they have come from the other State,
- (d) general restriction on goods passing from State to State.

James v Commonwealth, 1936 A.C. 578; 55 C.L.R. 1; 42 A.L.J. 333.

Held also that this section operates to prohibit restrictions upon free passage whether in the State of origin of the goods or in that of destination Ibid

(d) Per Griffith C J The effect of this section would but for s 95 be to prevent the collection of duties on goods passing from other States to Western Australia upon the establishment of the Commonwealth Permyd & Co v Collector of Customs (1903) 1 C L R 22 at p 32

Paragraph considered by High Court in its bearing upon s 93 Tasmania v Commonwealth and Victoria (1904) 1 C L R 329 10 A L J R (C N) 41

Per Barton J The object of the enactment of this second paragraph was to prevent one State becoming the collecting ground for goods on a low protective tariff with the object of afterwards taking advantage in the other States of the uniform tariff Tasmania v Commonwealth and Victoria (1904) 1 C L R 329 at pp 331-332 See also per O'Connor J at p 362

(ii) Subject to the last subsection the Commonwealth shall credit revenue debit expenditure^(h) and pay balances to the several States as prescribed for the period preceding the imposition of uniform duties of customs

GENERAL NOTE (1) The Parliament otherwise provided by means of the Surplus Revenue Act 1905 which commenced on 13th June 1905

(c) Held by the High Court that paragraph (i) of this section applies only to goods imported, produced or manufactured after the imposition of uniform duties Tasmania v Commonwealth and Victoria (1904) 1 C L R 329 10 A L J R (C N) 41

(d) As to whether duties of customs are imposed on the goods themselves or only in respect of goods see Attorney General of New South Wales v Collector of Customs for New South Wales (1904) 5 C L R 818, at pp 829-847 14 A L J R 516 at pp 519, 526

(f) As to the meaning of the words "duties of excise" see cases noted under s 90 Fact that in this section the expression is used in the narrower sense and not as including all kinds of inland revenue imports as in the case in some English Statutes pointed out by Griffith C J in Petersfeld v Bartley (1906) 1 C L R 487 at p 500 10 A L J R (C N) 63 See also John Lauffer and Sons Ltd and Smith's Newspapers Ltd v New South Wales (1927) 30 C L R 139 at p 145 33 A L J R 51 at p 86

(g) Held by the High Court that in the case of a New South Wales officer transferred with his department to the Commonwealth and subsequently retired compulsorily the share (attributable to the Commonwealth) of the gratuity payable to him under section 60 (ii) of the Public Service Act 1895 (N.S.W.) is, during the operation of this section to be debited to the State as expenditure New South Wales v Commonwealth (1908) 6 C L R 2144

surplus

94.^(a) After five years from the imposition of uniform duties of customs, the Parliament may provide, on such basis as it deems fair, for the monthly payment to the several States of all surplus revenue^(b) of the Commonwealth.⁽¹⁾

GENERAL NOTES (1) The following provision has been made by the Parliament in pursuance of this section —

By the Surplus Revenue Act 1910 provision was made for a per capita payment of 2s. per annum to the States for a period of ten years and thereafter until the Parliament should otherwise provide.

The sections of the Surplus Revenue Act 1910 providing for this per capita payment were repealed by the States Grants Act 1927, as from the 30th Jan. 1927. The lattermentioned Act provided, subject to the terms of any agreement made between the Commonwealth and all the States, for certain monthly payments to each State for one year commencing on 1st July 1927. An agreement was made on 12th December, 1927, between the Commonwealth and all the States, providing for the adjustment of the Commonwealth and State financial relations. This agreement is contained in the Schedule to the Financial Agreement Act 1928 and the Financial Agreement Validation Act 1929 and appears in this Volume, Appendix C infra p. 167.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Per Barton J. The form of this section suggests that the financial arrangements laid down by the preceding sections of the Constitution as the arrangements to be followed during the early period of Federation were the arrangements suggested by the framers of the Constitution as being fair. Tasmania v. Commonwealth and Victoria (1904) 1 C.L.R. 321 at p. 333; 10 A.L.J. (18) 41.

(b) Held by the High Court that the words "surplus revenue" in this section denote the same sum as the aggregate amount of the balances in June 1 by s. 83 to be paid monthly to the States. New South Wales v. Commonwealth (1905) 7 C.L.R. 17; 14 A.L.J. 12.

Held by the High Court that moneys appropriated by the Parliament for any public purpose, even though not yet actually disbursed, cannot form part of the surplus revenue distributable among the States under this section, and the actual disbursement of it for that purpose is a condition precedent or no longer thought necessary by the Government. Ibid.

95^(a) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the Parliament of the State of Western Australia if that State be an Original State, may, during the first five years after the imposition of uniform duties of customs, impose duties of customs⁽¹⁾ on goods passing into that State and not originally imported from beyond the limits of the Commonwealth⁽²⁾, and such duties shall be collected by the Commonwealth.

Customs duties of Western Australia

But any duty so imposed on any goods shall not exceed during the first of such years the duty chargeable⁽³⁾ on the goods under the law of Western Australia in force at the imposition of uniform duties, and shall not exceed during the second, third, fourth, and fifth of such years respectively, four-fifths, three-fifths, two-fifths and one-fifth of such latter duty, and all duties imposed under this section shall cease at the expiration of the fifth year after the imposition of uniform duties.

If at any time during the five years the duty on any goods under this section is higher than the duty imposed by the Commonwealth on the importation of the like goods⁽⁴⁾, then such higher duty shall be collected on the goods when imported into Western Australia from beyond the limits of the Commonwealth.⁽⁵⁾

GENERAL NOTES (1) In pursuance of the power conferred by this section the Parliament of Western Australia passed two Acts imposing customs duties, namely, Act 64 Vic. No. 14, and 1 Edw. VII No. 3.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that under this section the power of the Parliament of Western Australia to tax goods by way of customs duties is an unfettered one so far as regards the description of goods to be taxed, as it was before the establishment of the Commonwealth, but the duties as prescribed by that Parliament do not attach by virtue of the Western Australian Tariff Act 1911 to goods which are imported from beyond the limits of the Commonwealth. Murray and Co. v. Collector of Customs, (1903) 1 C.L.R. 25.

(b) As to whether duties of customs are imposed on the goods themselves or only in respect of goods, see Murray General of New South Wales v. Collector of Customs for New South Wales (1908) 8 C.L.R. 818, at pp. 820, 847, 14 A.L.J. 511 at pp. 519, 520.

(c) As to the meaning of "chargeable," see Tasmania v. Commonwealth and Victoria (1904) 1 C.L.R. 320, at p. 344, 10 A.L.J. (18) 41.

(d) Held by the High Court that the expression "like goods" is merely a term of comparison, it includes such goods of non-Australian origin as are of the same description as the goods mentioned in the Western Australian Tariff, and is not limited to goods of a class which is presently of Australian origin. Murray and Co. v. Collector of Customs, (1903) 1 C.L.R. 25.

(e) Held by the High Court that the imposition of duties on foreign goods is within the exclusive authority of the Parliament of the Commonwealth, and that this paragraph is to be read as a governing enactment qualifying the construction of every Federal Tariff. Its effect is that if the rates imposed by the Western Australian tariff on any goods of Australian origin are higher than the rates prescribed by the Federal tariff upon the importation of like goods, that tariff is to prevail in Western Australia as if the higher rate were prescribed by it. The taxation of foreign goods is therefore the act of the Parliament of the Commonwealth and not of the Parliament of Western Australia. Murray and Co v Collector of Customs, (1903) 1 C L R 25.

Financial assistance to States.

96^(a) During a period of ten years after the establishment of the Commonwealth and thereafter until the Parliament otherwise provides, the Parliament may grant financial assistance to any State on such terms and conditions as the Parliament thinks fit.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that the Federal Aid Roads Act 1926 is a valid exercise of the power conferred upon the Parliament of the Commonwealth by this section to grant financial assistance to any State on such terms and conditions as the Parliament thinks fit. Victoria v Commonwealth (1926) 38 C L R 399.

Art. 2,

97 Until the Parliament otherwise provides⁽¹⁾ the laws in force in any Colony which has become or becomes a State with respect to the receipt of revenue and the expenditure of money on account of the Government of the Colony, and the review and audit of such receipt and expenditure shall apply to the receipt of revenue and the expenditure of money on account of the Commonwealth in the State in the same manner as if the Commonwealth or the Government or an officer of the Commonwealth were mentioned whenever the Colony, or the Government or an officer of the Colony, is mentioned.

GENERAL NOTES. (1) The Parliament has otherwise provided by means of various Audit Acts the first of which was passed in 1901.

Trade and commerce
includes navigation and
State railways

✓ 98. The power of the Parliament to make laws with respect to trade and commerce extends to navigation and shipping^(a), and to railways the property of any State^(b).

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Held by the High Court that the effect of s. 51 (1) and s. 98 of the Constitution is to endow the Parliament not with a substantive power to deal with navigation and shipping at large, but only with power to deal with that subject so far as it is relevant to inter State and foreign trade and commerce. Held therefore that the provisions of the Navigation Act 1912 and the schedules thereto and of the regulations made thereunder as to the manning of and accommodation on ships, to the extent that they purport to prescribe the rules of conduct to be observed in respect of ships engaged solely in the domestic trade and commerce of a State are beyond the power of the Parliament of the Commonwealth, and are to that extent invalid. Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Co Ltd v Attorney General for the Commonwealth (1921) 29 C L R 357, 27 A L R 73. See also decision of High Court in R v Burgess ex parte Henry (delivered 10th November 1936).

As to whether an intra State navigation is used for the purposes of inter State or foreign trade although it may carry goods only between ports in the same State. See Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Co Ltd v Attorney General for the Commonwealth, (1921) 29 C L R 357 at p. 366, 27 A L R 379 at p. 376.

As to whether this section, coupled with s. 51 (1), excludes the operation of the Colonial Laws Validity Act laws made by the Commonwealth Parliament with respect to navigation and shipping, and exempts the Commonwealth Parliament from the restrictions on colonial legislation imposed by ss. 735 and 736 of the Merchant Shipping Act 1894. See Union Steamship Co of New Zealand Ltd v Commonwealth, (1925) 36 C L R 130, 31 A L J 269.

As to whether paragraph (1) of s. 51, coupled with this section, empowers the Parliament of the Commonwealth to confer on a Court of Marine Inquiry jurisdiction to inquire into a collision occurring between two steamships engaged in intra State trade, when the collision occurred at a place a short distance outside the course ordinarily used by ships engaged in trade and commerce with other countries or among the States (the two steamships having traversed part of that course shortly before the collision took place), see R v Turner, ex parte Marine Board of Hobart Tasmania v Commonwealth (1927) 39 C L R. 474; 33 A L J. 174.

Question whether inclusion in this section of the reference to State railways indicates that the generally of idatum (xxx) of s 71 should be cut down so as to exclude State railways as discussed by the High Court in Australian Railways Union v Victorian Railways Commissioners (1930) 41 L.J.R. 319, 37 A.L.J. 17.

Commonwealth
not to give preference

4. Commonwealth, (1983) 54 A L J 89, 11 A L J 470
Held by the High Court (Latham v R) that Rich v Clarke and Mollerum // Dixon and Lytt, JJ dissenting that the Regulations under the Transport Workers Act 1923/1924 which applied to the engagement of seamen at certain ports in four States only did not contravene this section as giving a preference to those States. Elliot v Commonwealth (1976) 54 A L J 87, 42 A L J 174

Not abridge
right to use
water.

100. The Commonwealth shall not, by any law or regulation of trade or commerce, abridge the right of a State^(a) or of the residents^(b) therein to the reasonable use of the waters of rivers for conservation or irrigation.

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Reference to States in this section cited in support of the view that when the Constitution means that the powers conferred on the Parliament of the Commonwealth shall not be applied to State operations the Constitution expressly says so. Merchant Service Guild of Australasia v Commonwealth Steamship Owners Association (No 2), (1920) 28 C L R 436, at p 451, 27 A L R 161, at p 164.

(b) As to whether the word 'residents' in this section includes artificial persons or corporations as well as natural persons see Australasian Life Insurance and General Mutual Life Assurance Society Ltd v Howe (1922) 31 C L R 230 at pp 299, 321, 334 s, 29 A L R 46 at pp 101, 51, 64 s.

Inter-State
Commission

101.^(a) There shall be an Inter-State Commission,^(c) with such powers of adjudication^(b) and administration as the Parliament deems necessary for the execution and maintenance, within the Commonwealth, of the provisions of this Constitution relating to trade and commerce,^(c) and of all laws made thereunder.

GENERAL NOTES.—(c) By the Inter State Commission Act 1915 provision was made for the establishment of the Inter State Commission. It was to consist of a Chairman and two other members. The Chairman to receive a salary of £2,000 per annum and each of the other members £2,000 per annum.

The first three members were appointed for a term of seven years from 11th August 1915. Upon the expiration of the period of the term of any members no further appointments were made and no further appointments have since been made up to the date of the publication of this volume.

(b) Held by the High Court (with dissenting judgments) that the section does not authorize the Parliament of the Commonwealth to constitute the Inter State Commission a court. New South Wales v Commonwealth (1915) 20 C L R 54, 21 A L R 128. Held that here that the Inter State Commission has no power to issue an injunction. Ibid. Meaning of expression 'powers of adjudication' discussed. Ibid.

(c) Held by the High Court that the English authorized by the Indian Industries Protection Act 1906 1907 s 15B, is not within the scope of the maintenance of the provision of the Constitution relating to trade and commerce within the meaning of this section and need not be entrusted to the Inter State Commission. Huddart Parker & Co Pty Ltd v Moorehead (1908) 8 C L R 430, 15 A L R 241.

Parliament
may forbid preferences by State

102. The Parliament may by any law with respect to trade or commerce forbid, as to railways,^(a) any preference or discrimination by any State,^(b) or by any authority constituted under a State, if such preference or discrimination is undue and unreasonable, or unjust to any State; due regard being had to the financial responsibilities incurred by any State in connexion with the construction and maintenance of its railways. But no preference or discrimination shall, within the meaning of this section, be taken to be undue and unreasonable, or unjust to any State, unless so adjudged by the Inter-State Commission.^(c)

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Question whether inclusion in this section of the reference to 'railways' indicates that the generality of phraseology of s 51 should be cut down so as to exclude State railways, discussed by High Court. Federal Amalgamated & Association v New South Wales Railway Traffic Employees' Association, (1909) 4 C L R 485, 13 A L R 273. Australian Railways Union v Victorian Railways Commissioners (1930) 44 C L R 319, 37 A L R 37.

(b) Reference to States in this section cited in support of the view that when the Constitution means that the powers conferred on the Parliament of the Commonwealth shall not be applied to State operations the Constitution expressly says so. Merchant Service Guild of Australasia v Commonwealth Steamship Owners Association (No 2), (1920) 28 C L R 436 at p 451, 27 A L R 161 at p 164.

(c) As to whether this section should be read as an exception from or as a supplement to the provisions of s. 73 of the Constitution, see New South Wales v Commonwealth, (1915) 20 C L R 54, at p 62, 21 A L R 128, at p 129.

103.⁽¹⁾ The members of the Inter-State Commission—

Commissioners' appointments, tenure, and remuneration

- (i.) Shall be appointed by the Governor-General in Council :
- (ii.) Shall hold office for seven years,^(a) but may be removed within that time by the Governor-General in Council, on an address from both Houses of the Parliament in the same session praying for such removal on the ground of proved misbehaviour or incapacity^(b) .
- (iii.) Shall receive such remuneration as the Parliament may fix ; but such remuneration shall not be diminished during their continuance in office

GENERAL NOTES. (1) See General Notes to section 101 supra

NOTES OF CASES. (a) As to whether the limited tenure of the office of Inter State Commissioners renders it impossible for them to be a Federal Court within the meaning of s. 72, see New South Wales v Commonwealth, (1915) 20 C L R 54 at pp 67, 70, 108. 21 A L R 128 at pp 133, 138 & 151.

(b) As to whether the fixed tenure of office given by this section indicates that it was intended that the execution and maintenance of the trade and commerce laws should not be entrusted to ordinary members of the Public Service see Edwards v Foster & Co, 1911 11 A L J 111 & Moore ad, (1909) 8 C L R 60 at p 159. 11 A L R 241 at p 251.

104 Nothing in this Constitution shall render unlawful any rate for the carriage of goods upon a railway, the property of a State,^(a) if the rate is deemed by the Inter State Commission^(b) to be necessary for the development of the territory of the State and if the rate applies equally to goods within the State and to goods passing into the State from other States

Saving of certain rates.

NOTES OF CASES. (a) Question whether inclusion in this section of the reference to State railways indicates that the generality of plaintiffs' claim should be cut down so as to exclude State railways, discussed by High Court. Federal Transport & General Workers' Association v New South Wales Railway Traffic Employees' Association, (1900) 4 C L R 488. 13 A L R 241. Australian Railways Union v Victorian Railways Commissioners, (1930) 44 C L R 319, 37 A L J 37.

105 The Parliament may take over from the States their public debts as existing at the establishment of the Commonwealth,⁽¹⁾ or a proportion thereof according to the respective numbers of their people as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, and may convert, renew, or consolidate such debts, or any part thereof, and the States shall indemnify the Commonwealth in respect of the debts taken over, and thereafter the interest payable in respect of the debts shall be deducted and retained from the portions of the surplus revenue of the Commonwealth payable to the several States, or if such surplus is insufficient, or if there is no surplus, then the deficiency or the whole amount shall be paid by the several States.

Held by the High Court (Rich, Starke, Dixon and McTiernan JJ., Gavan Duffy, C.J., and Evatt, J. dissenting) that s. 1 of the Financial Agreements Enforcement Act 1912—which requires the chief executive officer of a bank to furnish in turn of the amount of the balance standing to the credit of a State and to pay the amount of the balance to an authorized person—constitutes a valid exercise of the power conferred upon the Commonwealth by this section. New South Wales v Commonwealth (No. 3) (1932) 48 C.L.R. 246.

Saving of power of State Parliaments

NOTES OF CASES (a) As to the effect which the inclusion of this section in the Commonwealth Constitution has upon the application of s. 51 (1) to the Constitution of the State, see Dillon v Peffer (1904) 1 C.I.R. 91, 10 A.L.J. 11, 10 A.L.R. 11, 30 Municipal Council of Sydney v Commonwealth (1904) 1 C.I.R. 208, 10 A.L.J. 11, 10 A.L.R. 11.

Held by the High Court that nothing in this section empowers a State to tax a person entering the State under the direction of a paramount sovereign. But if such a power existed it was if it would interfere with federal agencies withdrawn from the State by this section. Dakin v Webb, Tune v Webb, (1904) 1 C.I.R. 585, 10 A.L.J. 247 (Note - the case of Dakin v Webb and Tune v Webb, in so far as they decide that the taxation in a State of money received by a federal officer as salary from the Commonwealth is invalid as being no interference with a federal institutionality, was overruled by Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd (1920) 28 C.L.R. 129, 26 A.L.J. 327).

As to the effect of the inclusion of this section and s. 106 upon the question of implied prohibitions, see Webb v Outtrim 1907 A.C. 81 at p. 89, 4 C.I.R. 336 at p. 333, 11 A.L.J. 111, 11 A.L.R. 119 at p. 113, Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd (1920) 28 C.I.R. 129, 26 A.L.J. 327.

As to the effect of this section with s. 51 (1) in forbidding to the Commonwealth the regulation of domestic trade and commerce, see R v Barker, Commonwealth v McKay (1908) 1 C.I.R. 41 at p. 57, 14 A.L.J. 374 at p. 376.

Held by the High Court that in view of the fact that s. 51 (1) of the Constitution implies that the power of Parliament does not extend to trade and commerce within a State, the power to legislate as to internal trade and commerce is reserved to the States by this section to the exclusion of the Commonwealth. Attorney-General for New South Wales v Brewery Employees Union of New South Wales (1908) 1 C.I.R. 469, 14 A.L.J. 565, Huddart Parker & Co Pty Ltd v Moorhead (1908) 1 C.I.R. 310, at p. 350, 15 A.L.J. 241 at pp. 217-218, 252, 253, 254.

Question whether this section preserves the police powers of the States for the preservation of the health, morals and safety of the people, discussed by High Court. R v Smithers, Ex parte Benson, (1928) 28 O.L.R. 90, at pp. 100-7, 110, 114-5, 118, 19 A.L.J. 269 at pp. 210-1, 212, 213-4, 215.

As to the effect of this section upon the validity of the Royal Commissions Act 1902-1912, which purports to enable a Royal Commission to compel answers generally to questions or to order the production of documents or otherwise to enforce compliance by the members of the public with its requisition, see Attorney-General for the Commonwealth v. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. 1914 A.C. 237, 17 C.L.R. 644, 20 A.L.J.R. 22.

As to the obligation imposed by this section on those who allege that a power previously possessed by the States is now exercisable by the Commonwealth, see Attorney-General for the Commonwealth v. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. 1914 A.C. 237 at pp. 254-5, 17 C.L.R. 644 at p. 657, 20 A.L.J.R. 22 at pp. 26-7, Waterhouse v. Deputy Federal Commissioner of Land Tax 1 (1914) 17 C.L.R. 665, at pp. 671-2, 20 A.L.J.R. 15, at pp. 167-8.

As to whether this section has any effect in determining the extent of the Commonwealth legislative power, see Australian Steamships Limited v. Malcolm (1914) 19 C.L.R. 205 at pp. 110, 130, 21 A.L.J.R. 37 at pp. 38-48.

As to the continuance, by virtue of this section, of the general power of expropriation possessed by the States, see New South Wales v. Commonwealth (1915) 20 C.L.R. 34 at pp. 68-7, 78-10, 21 A.L.J.R. 128 at pp. 144-5, 149-150.

Section cited by majority of High Court in upholding validity of Meat Supply for Imperial Forces Act 1914 of the State of Queensland, the validity of which had been attacked as being an infringement of s. 92 of the Constitution. Queensland v. State of Queensland (1916) 22 C.L.R. 336, 22 A.L.J.R. 48.

That that this section preserves not reserves powers to States pointed out by Isaacs J. Stemp v. Australian Glass Manufacturers Co. Ltd. (1917) 23 C.L.R. 326 at p. 232, 23 A.L.J.R. 27 at p. 279.

As to the royal prerogative, is to war being exercisable by the Governor-General and his Federal Ministers, and not by State Ministers, see Joseph v. Colonial Treasurer (N.S.W.) (1918) 23 C.L.R. 32 at p. 51, 24 A.L.J.R. 185 at p. 193.

Held by the High Court that this section continues the previously existing powers of the Parliaments of the States to legislate with respect to State exclusive powers and State powers which are concurrent with Commonwealth powers, but does not reserve any power from the Commonwealth which falls fairly within the explicit terms of an express grant in s. 51, as that grant is not to be construed unless that reservation is as explicitly stated. Amalgamated Society of Engineers v. Adelaide Steamship Co. Ltd. (1920) 28 C.L.R. 129, 26 A.L.J.R. 317.

As to reading this section with s. 92, see Haughley v. New South Wales, Ex parte James (1928) 42 C.L.R. 162 at p. 133, 35 A.L.J.R. 1 at p. 11, Ex parte Nelson (No. 1) (1928) 42 C.L.R. 201 at pp. 251, 254, 35 A.L.J.R. 1 at pp. 36-7.

Section cited in support of the view that the power of the Commonwealth to legislate with respect to inter-state trade and commerce is not exclusive of that of the States. Ex parte James (1928) 42 C.L.R. 162 at pp. 98-101, 30 A.L.J.R. 16 at pp. 35-40. See also James v. Commonwealth 1930 A.C. 578, 33 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J.R. 31.

As to whether any conflict exists between this section and s. 92, see James v. Commonwealth 1930 A.C. 578, 33 C.L.R. 1, 42 A.L.J.R. 31.

As to whether this section imports all State powers in fully as if they were specifically set out, see ibid.

(b) Per Isaacs and Starke JJ. Exclusively vested in this section means vested in the Parliament of the Commonwealth to the exclusion of State Parliaments, exclusive as opposed to concurrent. Woolf Broes & Co. Ltd. v. Barkley (1925) 36 C.L.R. 20 at p. 29, 31 A.L.J.R. 256 at p. 260.

Per Isaacs J. The exclusive vesting referred to in this section must be found in the language of the Constitution, and not in what were once regarded as implied prohibitions of part from any language of the instrument. Clude Engineering Co. Ltd. v. Couburn, Witters & Co. Ltd. v. Peterboro, Ill v. Peard, (1926) 37 C.L.R. 466 at p. 488, 32 A.L.J.R. 214 at p. 222.

(c) As to the exclusion from the general scope of this section of matters which are under the exclusive control of the Parliament under s. 57, see Parry v. McFarlane (1925) 40 C.L.R. 170 at pp. 185, 192, 199, 31 A.L.J.R. 30 at pp. 31-37, 370.

Words, unless it is exclusively vested in the Parliament of the Commonwealth or withdrawn from the Parliament of the State, are to be construed in accordance with the validity of the Ta Moko (Motor Spirit Vendors) Act 1925 (N.S.W.) on the ground that it is a duty of customs or of excise. Commonwealth v. Commonwealth Oil Refiners Ltd. v. South Australia (1926) 38 C.L.R. 408, 35 A.L.J.R. 40.

As to whether the power to pass the Navigations Act 1901 (N.S.W.) has been exclusively vested in the Parliament of the Commonwealth or withdrawn from the Parliament of the State, see judgment of Higgins J. (dissenting) in James v. Turner (1928) 38 C.L.R. 441 at p. 384, 31 A.L.J.R. 66 at p. 72.

Scope of section in relation to exclusive vesting or withdrawal from State discussed by High Court. Haughley v. New South Wales, Ex parte James (1928) 42 C.L.R. 162 at pp. 133-4, 199, 37 A.L.J.R. 1, at pp. 11-13.

As to whether the power of the State to protect its people or stock from infectious or contagious diseases has been withdrawn within the meaning of this section, see Ex parte Nelson (No. 1) (1928) 42 C.L.R. 209, 35 A.L.J.R. 21.

(d) See note (c) supra.

(e) As to whether this section continues in force the competency of the Parliaments of the States to enact general penal Statutes notwithstanding the power conferred by the Constitution on the Parliament of the Commonwealth of creating and punishing offences relating to departments the control of which is by the Constitution transferred to the Executive Government of the Commonwealth, see R v. McDonald (1908) 8 W.A.L.R. 140.

Held by the High Court (Barton J.) that this section cannot be construed as "continuing" the power to tax property of the Commonwealth, meaning that no such property existed before. Federation Municipal Council of Sydney v. Commonwealth (1904) 1 C.L.R. 208 at p. 235, 10 A.L.J.R. (C.V.) 29.

As to the effect of s. 92 upon State laws which but for that section would have continued in force by virtue of this section, see Federation Oil Co. Pty. Ltd. v. Queensland (No. 2) (1935) 51 C.L.R. 477, at p. 691, 61 A.L.J.R. 114, at p. 118.

108.^(a) Every law in force in a Colony which has become or becomes a State, and relating to any matter within the powers of the Parliament of the Commonwealth,^(b) shall, subject to this Constitution,^(c) continue in force in the State^(d); and, until provision is made in that behalf by the Parliament of the Commonwealth, the Parliament of the State shall have such powers of alteration and of repeal in respect of any such law as the Parliament of the Colony had until the Colony became a State.

NOTES OF CASES—(a) Section applied by the Supreme Court of New South Wales in Banco in upholding conviction of a person for an offence committed against the Customs Regulation Act 1879 (N.S.W.) on 2nd October, 1901 two days before the Customs Act 1901 (Commonwealth) came into operation. Ex parte Schuck (1902) 23 C.L.R. 120.

Held by the Supreme Court of New South Wales in Banco that notwithstanding the enactment of the Customs Act 1901 (Commonwealth) the Customs Regulation Act 1879 (N.S.W.) remains in force in the virtue of this section for the punishment of offences committed against it prior to the enactment of the Customs Act 1901. Ex parte Schuck (1902) 23 C.L.R. 120.

Inconsistency of laws

NOTES OF CASES—(a) Held by the Supreme Court of New South Wales in Banco that there is nothing inconsistent within the meaning of this section in applying the Customs Regulation Act 1879 (N.S.W.) to the prosecution of an offence committed against that Act notwithstanding that before the laying of the information the Customs Act 1901 (Commonwealth) had been enacted. Ex parte Schuck (1902) 23 C.L.R. 120.

As to whether a law of a State imposing income tax is in its application to the annual salary of an officer of the Commonwealth inconsistent with the laws by which the salary of the officer is fixed see In re Income Tax Act (No. 4) Holliston v. C. (1902) 28 A.L.J. 357 at pp. 377, 8, 392, 3, 8 A.L.J. 188, at pp. 193, 198, 24 A.L.J. 63 at pp. 67, 72.

Held by the High Court that the attaching by State law to the transfer to the Commonwealth of land acquired by the Commonwealth for public purposes in pursuance of the Transfer of Public Land Act 1901, of a condition that the Commonwealth should pay compensation in the transfer creates an inconsistency between the State law and that of the Commonwealth. Commonwealth v. New South Wales (1906) 3 C.L.R. 807 at pp. 815, 8, 12 A.L.J. 511 at pp. 542, 547.

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Western Australia that the provision of the Criminal Code of that State prohibiting the uttering of a false document is not inconsistent with the provision of the Post and Telegraph Act 1901 (Commonwealth) prohibiting the uttering of a false telegram, and a person may be convicted of an offence against the former provision even though his act amounted also to a contravention of the latter provision. R. v. McDonald (1906) 8 W.A.L.J. 340. See also R. v. Thomson, 1913 W.A.L.J. 246.

(1907) 4 C.L.R. 1087 at p. 1129, 13 A.L.J. 111 at p. 330 (but see Amalgamated Society of Engineers v. Adelaide Steamship Co. Ltd. cited hereunder).

Effect of this section in relation to the question whether the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration has power to make an award inconsistent with a State law considered by High Court Federated Sawmill, &c., Employees of Australasia v James Moore & Son Pty Ltd. (1909) 8 C.L.R. 465, 15 A.L.R. 374. Held by the High Court that an award of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration is not inconsistent with a State law if compliance with the award is consistent with obedience to the State law. Test of inconsistency discussed. Australian Road Transport Employees Federation v Whybrou & Co (1910) 10 C.L.R. 266, 16 A.L.J. 185. (But see Byth Engineering Co Ltd v Coeburn; Metter Ltd and Larr Brown v Puckard infra p. 89.)

Section cited by High Court in upholding s. 14 of the Commonwealth Electoral (Hartree) Act 1917 which prohibits the holding of a vote or referendum of the electors under the law of a State on a day appointed as polling day for the Senate or the House of Representatives, and holding invalid a vote taken on that day under the Factor Act of 1912 (Q) as amended by the Factor 1st Amendment Act of 1914 (Q). R v Brisbane Licensing Court; Ex parte Danahill (1920) 28 C.T.R. 21, 26 A.L.J. 105.

Held by the High Court that this section gives supremacy to every Commonwealth Act over every State Act, whether the latter be passed under a concurrent power or under an exclusive power. If any provision in the two conflict. Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd. (1920) 28 C.T.R. 129 at p. 155, 26 A.L.J. 337 at p. 314.

Held also that the rule laid down in Dillon v Pedler 1 C.L.R. 91 at p. 111 that "when a State attempts to give to its legislative or executive authority an operation which it is held would fetter, control or interfere with the free exercise of the legislative or executive power of the Commonwealth, the attempt unless expressly authorized by the Constitution is to that extent invalid and inoperative" is on the basis of the supremacy of Commonwealth legislation created by this section. Ibid.

Section applied by Knox, C.J. and Starke, J. in upholding s. 16 of the Landes Legislation Act 1906 as conferring on the Commonwealth a statutory title to land reserved by the Commonwealth paramount to any title dependent on a law of the State. Commonwealth v New South Wales (1923) 33 C.L.R. 1, at p. 27, 29 A.L.J. 401 at p. 408.

Held by the High Court (Gavan Duffy, C.J., Starke, Evatt and McTiernan JJ. Held by the High Court that it has never been ascertained in accordance with the rules of construction laid down by the Privy Council in Ex parte O'Connell (1907) 4 C.L.R. 340, 13 A.L.J. (C.N.) 1 and Attorney-General for Commonwealth v. Colonial Sugar Refining Co. (1914) 1 C.L.R. 217, 37 C.L.J. 644, 20 A.L.J. 142, is the rule to be applied in construing the Constitution that a power has been conferred on the Parliament of the Commonwealth by the Constitution to impede or prohibit a prohibition against the exercise of that power can thus not be a possible abuse of the power within its limits. Amalgamated Society of Engineers v. Adelaide Steamship Co. Ltd (1920) 28 C.L.R. 149, 36 A.L.J. 337.

(f) Held by the High Court that to levy a municipal rate upon Commonwealth property is to impose a tax within the meaning of this section. Municipal Council of Sydney v. Commonwealth (1904) 1 C.L.R. 208, 10 A.L.J. (C.N.) 29.

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Queensland that the lessee of land leased by a private individual from the Commonwealth of Australia the owner of the land is not rateable under The City of Brisbane Act of 1924 the land itself not being rateable land within the meaning of that Act. *Case of Municipal Council of Sydney v. (i) Held by the High Court that the provisions of s. 26 of the Land Tax Assessment Act 1910 do not amount to a tax on property of the State within the meaning of this section. Osborne v Commonwealth (1911) 12 C.L.R. 321, 17 A.L.J. 242.

Held by the High Court that the Land Tax Assessment Act 1910 1911, in so far as it purports by s. 29 to impose land tax upon household estates in Crown lands, is not invalid under this section as imposing a tax upon property belonging to a State. Attorney General for Queensland v Attorney General for the Commonwealth (1911) 20 C.L.R. 148, 21 A.L.J. 221. Rights of residents in States

NOTES OF CASES.—(a) Held by the High Court that the real ground of the discrimination prescribed by the Administration Act 1903 (W.A.) s. 86 was domicile, and not residence, and that therefore the enactment was not void under this section as setting up a discrimination between the residents of different States. Dwyer v Jones v Western Australia (1901) 2 C.L.R. 28, 11 A.L.J. 73.

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Queensland that notwithstanding anything contained in the Income Tax Acts (Q) it is the duty of the Magistrates Court to give full effect to this section, and that the protection afforded by this section is absolute and cannot be fettered, controlled or interfered with by the legislation of a State. Commissioner of Land v Q.L. v Parks (1933) 54 R.Qd. 106; 3 A.T.D. 349.

In addition, the Commonwealth has a mandate (known as a Class C mandate) for the government of the Territories and Islands formerly constituting German New Guinea, and has by the New Guinea Act 1920 1935, made provision for the government of those Territories and Islands. By s. 4 of that Act the Commonwealth has defined the Territories and Islands in question to be a Territory under the authority of the Commonwealth by the name of the Territory of New Guinea.

None of the other Territories referred to in Note (1), supra, had at the date of the preparation of this volume any representation in either House of the Parliament.

CHAPTER VIII ALTERATION OF THE CONSTITUTION

CHAPTER VIII
CONSTITUTION

✓ 128.^(a) This Constitution shall not be altered^b except in the following manner —

Mode of altering the
Constitution

The proposed law for the alteration thereof must be passed by an absolute majority of each House of the Parliament and not less than two nor more than six months after its passage through both Houses the proposed law shall be submitted in each State to the electors qualified to vote for the election of members of the House of Representatives

But if either House passes any such proposed law by an absolute majority, and the other House rejects or fails to pass it or passes it with any amendment to which the first mentioned House will not agree and if after an interval of three months the first mentioned House in the same or the next session again passes the proposed law by an absolute majority with or without any amendment which has been made or agreed to by the other House, and such other House rejects or fails to pass it or passes it with any amendment to which the first mentioned House will not agree, the Governor General may submit^(c) the proposed law as last proposed by the first mentioned House and either with or without any amendments subsequently agreed to by both Houses to the electors in each State qualified to vote for the election of the House of Representatives

When a proposed law is submitted to the electors the vote shall be taken in such manner as the Parliament prescribes But until the qualification of electors of members of the House of Representatives becomes uniform throughout the Commonwealth, only one half the electors voting for and against the proposed law shall be counted in any State in which adult suffrage prevails

And if in a majority of the States a majority of the electors voting approve the proposed law, and if a majority of all the electors voting also approve the proposed law, it shall be presented to the Governor General for the Queen's assent

No alteration diminishing the proportionate representation of any State in either House of the Parliament, or the minimum number of representatives of a State in the House of Representatives, or increasing, diminishing, or otherwise altering the limits of the State, or in any manner affecting the provisions of the Constitution in relation thereto, shall become law unless the majority of the electors voting in that State approve the proposed law

GENERAL NOTE. —⁽¹⁾ The following are the only laws altering the Constitution which have been passed by the Parliament and approved by the requisite majority of electors prior to the date of the preparation of this volume

Constitution Alteration (Senate Elections) 1908 (No. 1 1907)

Constitution Alteration (State Debt) 1909 (No. 3 1909)

Constitution Alteration (State Debt) 1928 (No. 1 1929)

Copies of these laws are reprinted herein infra pp. 114 116 and in so far as they alter the Constitution textually, have been incorporated in this copy of the Constitution (see sections 13, 165, and 165A)

For copies of all Bills which have been introduced into the Parliament of the Commonwealth from 1901 to 1935 for the alteration of the Constitution and the Parliamentary history of each Bill, and (where admitted to the electors) the voting thereon, see Appendix D infra, pp 197-272.

(*) The only occasion upon which one House twice passed Bills to alter the Constitution (the interval required by this section having elapsed between the first and the second passage of the Bills), and the other House twice failed to pass the Bills was in 1914 when six Bills which had been passed by the Senate in 1911 and not passed by the House of Representatives were again passed by the Senate. Upon the House of Representatives again failing to pass the Bills the Senate resolved that an Address should be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General requesting that His Excellency be pleased to submit the proposed laws to the Electors. The Address was presented to His Excellency but the request was refused. The proposed laws in question are contained in Appendix D to this volume see Bills Nos 26 to 31 inclusive and footnote to Bill No 26.

NOTES OF CASES. ✓ Immunity of Instrumentalities and Implied Prohibition

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Victoria (in a case relating to the liability of a Commonwealth public servant to pay State income tax upon his official salary earned within the State) that in view of the fact that in Australia the Crown has power to disallow Commonwealth and State Acts whereas in the United States no such power exists, and that in the Commonwealth section 128 of the Constitution provides a much easier mode of amending the Constitution than that which prevails in the United States, the United States doctrine of implied prohibitions is not applicable in the interpretation of the Commonwealth Constitution. In the Income Tax Acts (No 4) Holtzman's case (1902) 28 V.L.R. 357, 8 A.L.J. 188, 24 A.L.J. 61.

Held by the High Court that when a State attempts to give to its legislative or executive authority an operation which it did would interfere with the free exercise of the legislative or executive power of the Commonwealth, the attempt, unless expressly authorized by the Constitution, is to that extent invalid and inoperative. Dundas v. Fadder (1904) 1 C.L.R. 93, 10 A.L.J. 80. Held also that where the United States Constitution and the Constitution of the Commonwealth are similar, the construction put upon the former by the Supreme Court of the United States may well be regarded by the High Court in construing the Constitution of the Commonwealth, not as an infallible guide, but as a most valuable aid and assistance. Ibid.

Held also that the fact that in the Commonwealth the Crown has the power of veto with respect to legislation does not render the principles of interpretation adopted in the case of United States McCulloch v. Maryland (1819) 4 Wheat. 316 inapplicable in the interpretation of the Commonwealth Constitution. Ibid.

Held by the High Court that the transfer of the Commonwealth by a member of Parliament required by the Commonwealth for public purposes is an instrumentality of the Commonwealth and therefore exempted from State taxation under the rule laid down in Dundas v. Fadder. Commonwealth v. New South Wales (1909) 11 C.L.R. 807, 12 A.L.J. 141.

Held by the Full Court of the Supreme Court of Victoria (in a case relating to the liability of a Commonwealth Minister of the Crown to pay State income tax upon his official salary and Parliamentary allowances earned within the State) that while the Full Court quiesced in the conclusion of the High Court in Dundas v. Fadder supra, they were not bound by the reasoning of the High Court in that case. In re the Income Tax Acts (No 4), Deakin and Lyne v. Webb (1904) 29 V.L.R. 748, 10 A.L.J. 103, 25 A.L.J. 245. Held also that the judgment in Holtzman's case was entirely consistent with the actual decision in Dundas v. Fadder, and that the decision in Holtzman's case should be followed. Ibid.

On appeal to the High Court in reversing the decision of the Full Court reversed, and principles laid down in Dundas v. Fadder affirmed. Deakin v. Webb, Lyne v. Webb (1904) 1 C.L.R. 585, 10 A.L.J. 237.

Application to the High Court for a certificate under s. 74 of the Constitution that the question in this case was one which ought to be determined by the King in Council, refused by the High Court on the ground that it was not satisfied that there was any special reason why the certificate should be granted. Deakin v. Webb, Lyne v. Webb (1904) 1 C.L.R. 282, 11 A.L.J. 619, 10 A.L.J. 258.

Held by the Supreme Court of Victoria (Hodges, J.) in a further case relating to the liability of a Commonwealth public servant to pay State income tax upon his official salary earned within the State) that the Court was bound by the decision of the High Court in Deakin v. Webb, Lyne v. Webb, and the officer was the person liable to pay State income tax. Leave, however, granted by the Supreme Court to Webb, State Commissioner of Taxes, to appeal direct to the Privy Council. In re the Income Tax Acts, Outtrim's case, 1907 V.L.R. 163, 11 A.L.J. 117, 26 A.L.J. 195.

Held by the Privy Council in reversing the decision of the Supreme Court of Victoria in Outtrim's case that the fact that Acts of the Victorian Parliament required the assent of the Crown disavowed the analogy claimed by the High Court to exist between the American and Australian systems of jurisprudence. Held also by the Privy Council that the provisions of the Constitution of sections 106 and 107 did not seem to leave any room for implied prohibition, and that the application to the Commonwealth Constitution of the principles of the American case of McCulloch v. Maryland should be rejected. Webb v. Outtrim 1907 A.C. 81, 4 C.L.R. 356, 13 A.L.J. 1.

Another case relating to the liability of a Commonwealth public servant to pay State income tax on his official salary earned within the State having been brought before Murray D.C.J. of New South Wales, it was held by the District Court following the decision of the Privy Council in Webb v. Outtrim, that the Commonwealth public servant was liable to pay the tax. Upon appeal to the High Court from this decision, it was held by the High Court (per Griffith, J., Barton and O'Connor JJ.) that that Court was, by the Constitution, the ultimate arbiter upon any question as to the limits of the exercise of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of any State or States in as to the limits under as of the constitutional powers of any two or more States, unless it was of opinion that the question at issue in any particular case was one upon which it should submit itself to the guidance of the Privy Council. Baxter v Commissioners of Taxation (N.S.W.) (1907) 1 C.L.R. 1087, 15 A.L.J. 313.

If it be shown (per the same Justices) that the High Court was not bound to follow the decision of the Privy Council in Hobby v O'Brien it should follow its own considered decision in Dunkley v Webb, Lyne v Webb unless upon reconsideration of the question for whatever reason it should come to a different conclusion. Held also that assuming the fact that the Privy Council had given a decision directly conflict with the High Court on the same point to be a sufficient reason for a reconsideration of the whole matter by the High Court, there was nothing in the reasons of the Judicial Committee to throw any new light on the question involved, either with regard to the necessity for the application of the rule of implied prohibition laid down in McCulloch v Macdonald and adopted in Dunkley v Webb or as to the applicability of the rule to the particular question. The rule in Dunkley v Webb was accordingly reaffirmed. Ibid.

Held (per Justices 3) that apart from any consideration of its history, the words of s. 74 are clear and strong enough to bind to the decision that it is binding coming within the section the decision of the High Court was final and therefore the Court had a right to uphold its flow from the decision of the Privy Council upon any such question, but the effect and weight due to the judgment of the Privy Council made it the duty of the High Court under the circumstances to consider the question decided in Dunkley v Webb (C.L.R. 985). Further consideration in the light of the decision in Hobby v O'Brien (1907) A.C. 51 leaves the authority of Dunkley v Webb (C.L.R. 985) unimpaired, but the Land and Income Taxation of New South Wales enacted apart from authority cannot be regarded as an infringement of the rule of non-interference laid down in the latter case. Ibid.

Held (per Justices 3) that the only dimension of the prerogative right of the King in Council to enforce the laws from all Courts within the colonies and dependencies is that necessary to give effect to the laws as enacted in s. 74, when the High Court by given a decision there is to be no appeal from the High Court except by leave of the High Court, and there is nothing in the Constitution to make the High Court the final authority on any kind of law. The Act should not be extended by implication in the direction of enlarging the prerogative rights of the Crown. The King in Council has therefore still the appellate Court from the High Court, and the High Court itself in which appeals are brought to the King in Council it is the duty of the High Court to accept the decision of the King in Council as the final statement of the law. The Land and Income Taxation of New South Wales is not an interference with federal instrumentalities. Ibid.

Decision of Murray, D.C. reversed by the High Court (Smith C.J., Barton and O'Connor JJ., Isaacs and Higgins JJ. dissenting). Ibid. Decision of Privy Council in the case of Hobby v O'Brien (1907 A.C. 51) 1 C.L.R. 1086, 15 A.L.J. 311 not followed. Ibid.

Appeals were made to the High Court for certiorari that this case was one which ought to be determined by the Privy Council, the main ground being that it was impossible within the Commonwealth to obtain a final and uniform settlement of the law on the questions:

- (a) whether the principle laid down in McCulloch v Macdonald applied to the Australian Constitution;
- (b) whether the Victorian Income Tax Acts, in so far as they applied to Commonwealth officers, were an interference with that principle; and
- (c) whether the Victorian income tax laws affected latter the salaries were paid was an interference with federal instrumentalities.

It was stated by the majority in the certificate that the granting of the writs etc. was the only mode of putting in question the validity of the laws in the above interpretation of the Constitution on defining validity and to come finally from an appeal. In a dissent was unanimously refused by the High Court, some of the Justices pointing out that the difficulty arising out of the conflicting decisions of two Courts of Appeal on this question could be met by the Federal Parliament legislating in two directions:

- (1) by making the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court exclusive of the appellate jurisdiction of the State Supreme Courts, and
- (2) by making the grants to Commonwealth public servants subject to the right of the States to tax them.

By legislation passed by the Commonwealth Parliament, two s. 122 States. By the Salarys Act 1907 it made the jurisdiction of the High Court exclusive of that of the Supreme Courts of the States in all questions as to the limits of powers of the constitutional powers of the Commonwealth and those of any State or States or as to the limits of powers of the constitutional powers of any two or more States by providing for the automatic removal to the High Court of any case pending in the Supreme Court of any State in which there had arisen any such question. By the Commonwealth Salaries Act 1907 provision was made permitting the taxation by a State, under certain conditions of the official salaries of officers of the Commonwealth residing in that State and of the allowances of Commonwealth Ministers and Members of Parliament residing in that State. (Validity of Commonwealth Salaries Act 1907 upheld in Chaplin v Commissioner of Taxes for South Australia (1911) 12 C.L.R. 375, 17 A.L.J. 422.)

All the passages of this legislation in application was made to the Privy Council for leave to appeal to the Privy Council and the judgment of the High Court in the case of Baxter v Commissioners of Taxation (N.S.W.) and the leave was refused. The Privy Council holding that the amount at stake was inconsiderable and that the controversy had been closed by the passage of the Commonwealth Salaries Act 1907 referred to above. Commissioners of Taxation (N.S.W.) v Baxter and Webb v Flint, 1908 A.C. 214, 5 C.L.R. 598.

Question as to whether a local authority had power to make by laws levying on Commonwealth, discussed by High Court but decided on grounds not involving the interpretation of the Constitutional Roberts v Abern (1911) 1 C.L.R. 106, 10 A.L.J. 182.

As to whether the Tasmanian Hith Association is an instrumentality of the Commonwealth, and as to whether a bequest to it is liable to taxation by the State see Re Gardner, (1919) 15 L.R. 78.

Held by the High Court (Smith C.J., Barton and O'Connor JJ.) that the rule of non-interference by States with the Commonwealth was reciprocal, and applied to prevent attempted interference by the Commonwealth with State instrumentalities. Federated Amalgamated Government Railway and Tramway Workers Association v New South Wales Railway Traffic Employers Association, (1906) 4 C.L.R. 488, 13 A.L.J. 274.

In the same case the Court overruled the cases of Deakin v Webb and Rafter v Commissioner of Taxation (55 L J (supra)) in so far as they decided that the taxation by a State of money received by a Federal officer as salary from the Commonwealth is invalid on being an interference with a Federal instrumentality. In addition the Court overruled the case of Federal Amalgamated Government Railway and Tramway Service Association v New South Wales Railway Employees Association (supra) and Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd reported in (1920) 28 C L R 120, 26 A L J R 317.

An application was made to the High Court on behalf of the Minister for Trading Concerns, Western Australia for a writ under s 74 of the Constitution that the matter in issue in this case was one which ought to be determined by the Privy Council but the application was refused by the High Court. Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd (1921) 29 C L R 406.

The Minister for Trading Concerns, Western Australia and the Attorney General for Tasmania subsequently petitioned the Privy Council to grant special leave to appeal from the decision of the High Court but leave was not granted. Minister for Trading Concerns v Amalgamated Society of Engineers (1923) A C 170.

In the Engineers case (supra) the High Court laid it down that it is the chief and special duty of this Court faithfully to expound and give effect to the Constitution according to its own terms, finding the intention from the words of the concept and upholding it throughout just as it is framed. (28 C L R at p 112, 26 A L J R at p 391).

It decided further that for the proper construction of the Australian Constitution it is essential to bear in mind two cardinal features of our political system which are interwoven in its texture—namely, the common sovereignty of all parts of the British Empire and the principle of responsible government. (29 C L R at p 146, 28 A L J R at p 117).

The Court cited with approval certain observations of Lord Hoffman, L C, in Fischer & Sons Ltd v London Society of Compositors (1913) A C 107 at p 113, to the effect that 'in endeavouring to place the proper interpretation on the sections of the Statute, I propose therefore to exclude consideration of everything excepting the state of the law as it was when the statute was passed, and the light to be got by reading it as a whole before attempting to construe any particular section. Subject to this consideration I think that the only sure course is to read the language of the statute in what seems to be its natural use.' (28 C L R at p 119, 26 A L J R at p 342). Also the principle stated by Lord Salmon in McKays v Turchie 1 App Cas 549 at pp 904-905, that the established courts of justice when a question arises whether the prerogative powers of a legislative power have been exceeded must of necessity determine that question and the only way in which they can properly do so is by looking to the terms of the instrument by which administratively the legislative power was created and by which negatively they are restricted. (28 C L R at p 134, 26 A L J R at p 42).

In the Engineers case Amalgamated Society of Engineers v Adelaide Steamship Co Ltd was at the date of the preparation of this volume the leading case upon the subject of the principles of interpretation of the Constitution, but subsequently to the decision of that case the following further cases were decided, dealing with the application of Commonwealth laws and awards to State instrumentalities or the application of State laws to Commonwealth instrumentalities—Merchant Seamen's Guild of Australasia v Commonwealth Seamen's Association (1923) 28 C L R 436, 27 A L J R 161; Duncan v Federal Commissioner of Taxation (1923) 29 A L J R 129; Petrie v Morris (1925) 36 C L R 170, 31 A L J R 18; Australian Railways Employees' Federation v Commonwealth (1930) 141 C L R 919, 37 A L J R 17; and Stuart Roberts v Hay (1912) 47 C L R 482, 38 A L J R 309, 3 A B C 267.

The following cases are on general principles of interpretation also of all mention.

Applicability of United States and Canadian decisions

Meaning of Act how ascertained

Meaning of terms in Constitution that in 1900

Held by the High Court that the meaning of terms used in the Constitution must be ascertained by their significance in 1900. Attorney-General v New South Wales v Gregory Employees Union of New South Wales, (1908) 11 C.L.R. 109, 14 A.L.J. 265. Per Griffith C.J. Parliament has to be satisfied by Constitution

Per Griffith C.J. Barton v Commonwealth. The rule that in construing a Statute regard must be had to the existing laws which it modified by it and that in construing a Constitution regard must be had to the facts and circumstances existing at the date of the enactment applicable in the construction of such a Constitution is the Commonwealth Constitution which not only is the Act of the Imperial Parliament but embodies a compact between the six Australian States. Ex parte Ingleton (Theatrical and Amusement Employees Association) (1925) 35 C.L.R. 528 at p. 531, 31 A.L.J. 27 at p. 271.

Words to be given their plain and natural meaning

Per Knox C.J. and Griffith C.J. The rule of construction is that words used by the Legislature should be given their plain and natural meaning unless it is manifest from the general scope and intention of the Statute that must be read disjunctively with it and from so construing them Australian Imperial Manufacturing and General Mutual Life Assurance Society Ltd v Howe (1922) 31 C.L.R. 290 at p. 294, 20 A.L.J. 46 at p. 48.

Regard to be had to substance rather than to form

Held by the High Court that in determining whether a particular act is or is not within the power of the Commonwealth Parliament to enact regard must be had to its substance rather than to its formal form. Peterswald v Bartley (1904) 1 C.L.R. 497 at p. 511, 10 A.L.J. Intent of effect and nature of Act irrelevant

Held by the High Court that the circumstances that an indirect effect may be produced by the exercise of an admitted power of legislation is irrelevant to the question whether the Legislature is competent to produce the same effect by direct law. Since the motive which actuated the Legislature and the ultimate end desired to be attained. R v Burgess. Commonwealth v McKay (1908) 6 C.L.R. 41, 14 A.L.J. 374. Reference to draft Constitution Bills

Held by the High Court that as matter of history of legislation the draft Constitution Bills which were prepared under the authority of the Parliaments of the several States may be referred to. Tasmania v Commonwealth and Victoria, (1904) 1 C.L.R. 329 at p. 351.

Maxims applicable in interpretation of Constitution

Held by the High Court that the maxims expressum facit cessare tacitum and expressio unius est exclusio alterius are applicable to the Constitution in a greater rather than in a lesser degree than in the construction of ordinary contracts or ordinary Statutes. Ex parte Amalgamated Government Railway and Tramway Services Association v New South Wales Railway Staff Employees Association (1908) 4 C.L.R. 488 at p. 534; 15 A.L.J. 277, at p. 279. It was stated by the Prime Minister, when announcing in Parliament the acceptance of this offer that the Premier of Western Australia had telegraphed his typical offer subject to the position in which he then found himself in consequence of the Government's withdrawal. The Premier of Queensland had also agreed to the offer subject to the same condition, but he had not yet received the reply. At the end of the year no provision had been made for the purchase of the land, and the Government had to withdraw the offer.

Don't let the world tell you how to live.

Johnston, a well-known Progressive, had introduced his "Economic Assembly" in 1917. In September 1914, Senator Johnston moved on "but" after 111 and agreed to by 77 votes on 22 July 1914. Johnston had been on a 111 and a 111 vote majority of votes in the Speaker (the Hon. Sir John Macdonald) and Johnston's bill had been carried in accordance with the majority vote of the Committee of the State of Victoria. A Motion (Johnston) with the majority of 111 votes was moved on 10 December 1914, but was defeated by 23 votes to 111. The Bill had been passed.

Queenland (Commonwealth Powers) Bill introduced in the Legislative Assembly and passed through all stages in that House on 11th November 1915.

bill introduced into the Legislature passed on 18th November 1975 and read a first time. Motion that Bill be now read a second time was taken. Since this Bill is referred by 19 s. 6 to 5 Motion was moved on 25th January 1976, but on table by House to read "That the Bill be read a second time this day six months" and is continued until 6th March 1976. This resolution thus delayed the Bill.

South Australia (Commonwealth) Bill introduced into the House of Assembly on 10th November 1911. Second reading moved on 11th November 1911 and agreed to on 18th November, 1911. Third reading moved and agreed to on 2nd December 1911.

At the Premiers' Conference held in Addis Ababa May 1918 the Conference reaffirmed the desirableness of giving effect to the agreement above referred to (the Premiers of Vichy and Casablanca dissenting). Thereafter the following further action was taken in the unadorned States:

Queen's Bill re-introduced into the Legislative Assembly on 7th September 1918. Second reading moved and agreed to on 12th September 1918. Third reading moved and agreed to on 14th September 1918.

Bill introduced into the Legislative Council on 14th September 1916. Second reading moved on 20th September 1916. Motion that debate be adjourned until 'to-morrow' agreed by omitting 'to-morrow' and substituting this day to-night. Second reading further discussed on 21st October 1916. An amendment to second reading that Bill be read a second time this day six months later for certain reasons stated in the Amendment—moved and carried on 21st November, 1916. This amendment finally disposed of the Bill.

South Australia Bill re-introduced into the House of Assembly on 28th July, 1916. Second reading not moved.

3 AUSTRALIAN LOAN COUNCIL

(a) There shall be an Australian Loan Council which shall consist of one Minister of State of the Commonwealth to be appointed in writing from time to time by the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth to represent the Commonwealth and one Minister of State of each State to be appointed in writing from time to time by the Premier of that State to represent that State. Provided that if in the opinion of the Prime Minister or of any Premier of a State, special circumstances exist at any time which make it desirable so to do, a person who is not a Minister may instead of a Minister be appointed by the Prime Minister or the Premier as the case may be to represent the Commonwealth or a State as a member of the Loan Council. The name of each person appointed to represent a State shall be notified in writing by the Premier of that State to the Prime Minister.*

(b) The member representing the Commonwealth on the Loan Council shall hold office during the pleasure of the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth and a member representing a State shall hold office during the pleasure of the Premier of the State which the member was appointed to represent.

(c) A decision in which all the members for the time being of the Loan Council concur shall be a unanimous decision of the Loan Council notwithstanding any vacancy then existing in its membership.

(d) A meeting of the Loan Council may at any time be convened by the member representing the Commonwealth, and shall be so convened upon the request of at least three members representing States.

(e) A majority of the members of the Loan Council shall constitute a quorum of the Loan Council for the exercise of its powers at any meeting. Provided that

- (i) a member may at any time appoint in writing a deputy to act in his absence and any deputy so appointed may in the absence of the member exercise all the powers and functions of the member and his presence shall be deemed the presence of the member; and
- (ii) an absent member who has not appointed a deputy may vote by letter or by telegram, and in such case that member shall be counted as being present in relation only to the questions on which he has voted.

(f) The Loan Council may make rules of procedure including rules relating to places, times, and notices of meetings, and conduct of business at meetings, and from time to time may alter such rules.

(g) The Commonwealth and each State will from time to time while Part II of this Agreement is in force, and while Part III of this Agreement is in force, submit to the Loan Council a programme setting forth the amount it desires to raise by loans for each financial year for the purposes other than the conversion, renewal or redemption of existing loans or temporary purposes. Each programme shall state the estimated total amount of such loan expenditure for the year, and the estimated amount of repayments which will be available towards meeting that expenditure. Any revenue deficit to be funded shall be included in such loan programme, and the amount of such deficit shall be set out. Loans for Defence purposes approved by the Parliament of the Commonwealth shall not be included in the Commonwealth's loan programme or be otherwise subject to this agreement.

(h) If the Loan Council decides that the total amount of the loan programme for the year cannot be borrowed at reasonable rates and conditions it shall decide the amount to be borrowed for the year and may by unanimous decision allocate such amount between the Commonwealth and the States.

(i) If the members of the Loan Council fail to arrive at a unanimous decision under the last preceding sub-clause allocating the amount to be borrowed for any year, the amount to be borrowed for that year shall be allocated as follows:

(1) The Commonwealth shall, if it so desires, be entitled to have one fifth or any less proportion of such amount allocated to the Commonwealth and

(2) Each State shall be entitled to have allocated to it a sum (being a portion of the balance of such amount) bearing to the balance of such amount the same proportion which the net loan expenditure of that State in the preceding five years bears to the net loan expenditure of all the States during the same period. Provided that any State may, if it so desires, have allocated to it a sum less than the sum to which it is entitled under this sub-clause or no sum, and that when a less sum or no sum has been allocated to any State or States in manner aforesaid the amount then remaining available for allocation shall be allocated to the other States in the proportion which the net loan expenditure of each of such other States in the preceding five years bears to the net loan expenditure of all such other States during the same period. For the purposes of this sub-clause net loan expenditure does not include expenditure for the conversion, renewal or redemption of loans, but means the gross other loan expenditure of a State less any amounts of such expenditure repaid to the State other than moneys repaid to the State in manner stated in Part II clause 4 (e) or Part III clause 3 (i), of this Agreement.

(j) If the total amount to be borrowed as aforesaid for any year is to be borrowed by means of more than one loan, the Loan Council may by unanimous decision apportion between the Commonwealth and the States the amount to be borrowed by each such loan other than the loan by means of which the balance of the total amount to be borrowed as aforesaid for the year is borrowed.

(k) If the members of the Loan Council fail to arrive at a unanimous decision under the last preceding sub-clause apportioning the amount to be borrowed as aforesaid by any loan the amount to be borrowed by that loan shall be apportioned between the Commonwealth and the States in proportion to the amount then to be borrowed as aforesaid for the Commonwealth and for each State for the year.

(l) The Commonwealth and each State will also from time to time while Part II of this Agreement is in force and while Part III of this Agreement is in force, submit to the Loan Council a statement setting out the amount it requires for each financial year for the conversion, renewal or redemption of existing loans.

(m) If the members of the Loan Council fail to arrive at a unanimous decision on any matter other than the matters referred to in sub-clauses (h) and (j) of clause 3 and sub-clause (b) of clause 4 of this part of this Agreement, the matter shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members.

On every question for decision by the Loan Council the member representing the Commonwealth shall have two votes and a casting vote and each member representing a State shall have one vote.

(n) A decision of the Loan Council in respect of a matter which the Loan Council is by this Agreement empowered to decide shall be final and binding on all parties to this Agreement.

(o) In this clause the expressions "Prime Minister" and "Premier" include the persons for the time being respectively acting as such.

4 FUTURE BORROWINGS OF COMMONWEALTH AND STATES

(a) Except in cases where the Loan Council has decided under sub-clause (b) of this clause that moneys shall be borrowed by a State, the Commonwealth, while Part II or Part III of this Agreement is in force, shall, subject to the decisions of the Loan Council and subject also to clauses 5 and 6 of this Part of this Agreement, arrange for all borrowings for or on behalf of the Commonwealth or any State, and for all conversions, renewals, redemptions, and consolidations of the Public Debts of the Commonwealth and of the States.

(b) If at any time the Loan Council by unanimous decision so decides a State may in accordance with the terms of the decision borrow moneys outside Australia in the name of the State, and issue securities for the moneys so borrowed. The Commonwealth shall guarantee that the State will perform all its obligations to bondholders in respect of the moneys so borrowed. For all the purposes of this Agreement, including the making of sinking fund contributions, the moneys so borrowed shall be deemed to be moneys borrowed by the Commonwealth for and on behalf of that State.

(c) If any State after the 30th June 1927 and before this Agreement has been approved by the Parliaments of the Commonwealth and of the State, has borrowed moneys in the name of the State and issued securities for the moneys so borrowed, such moneys shall for all the purposes of this Agreement, including the making of sinking fund contributions, be deemed to be moneys borrowed by the Commonwealth for and on behalf of that State.

(d) While Part II or Part III of this Agreement is in force, moneys shall not be borrowed by the Commonwealth or any State otherwise than in accordance with this Agreement.

Borrowing by States

For any purpose (including the redemption of securities given or issued at any time for moneys previously borrowed or used in manner stated in this clause) a State may while Part II or Part III of this Agreement is in force:

(a) Subject to any maximum limits decided upon by the Loan Council from time to time for interest, brokerage, discount and other charges, borrow moneys within the State from authorities, bodies, funds or institutions (including Savings banks) constituted or established under Commonwealth or State law or practice and from the public by open market sales of securities; and

(b) use any public moneys of the State which are available under the laws of the State.

Any securities that are issued for moneys borrowed or used shall be Commonwealth securities, to be provided by the Commonwealth upon terms approved by the Loan Council.

Where any such borrowing or use is solely for temporary purposes the provisions of this Agreement, other than this clause, shall not apply.

Where any such borrowing or use is not solely for temporary purposes, and Commonwealth securities are issued in respect thereof, the moneys borrowed or used shall be deemed to be moneys borrowed by the Commonwealth for and on behalf of the State, and may be retained by the State. A State may convert securities given or issued at any time by that State for moneys previously borrowed or used in manner stated in this clause. New securities issued on any such conversion shall be Commonwealth securities to be provided by the Commonwealth upon terms approved by the Loan Council. The amount for which such new securities are issued shall be deemed to be moneys borrowed by the Commonwealth for and on behalf of the State.

If the moneys deemed under this clause to be moneys borrowed by the Commonwealth on behalf of a State, together with the amounts raised by the Commonwealth for and on behalf of the State exceed the total amount of loan moneys decided upon by the Loan Council as the moneys to be raised for and on behalf of the State for the financial year in which the money is deemed to be borrowed, the excess shall, unless the Loan Council otherwise decides, be deemed to be moneys received by the State in the following year on account of its loan programme for that year.

For the purposes of this clause counter sales of securities shall be deemed to mean sales of securities made at the offices of the State Treasury, and at such other places as may be decided upon by the Loan Council.

The Commonwealth shall not be under any obligation to make sinking fund contributions in respect of moneys borrowed or used pursuant to this clause to meet a revenue deficit of a State, but the provisions of clause 4 (d) of Part II and of clause 3 (j) of Part III of this Agreement shall apply respectively to all moneys borrowed or used for that purpose.

Except in cases where the Loan Council has otherwise decided under sub clause (b) of clause 4 of Part I of this Agreement a State shall not have the right to invite loan subscriptions by the issue of a public prospectus.

Notwithstanding anything contained in this Agreement, any State may use for temporary purposes any public moneys of the State which are available under the laws of the State, or may, subject to maximum limits (if any) decided upon by the Loan Council from time to time for interest, brokerage, discount, and other charges, borrow money for temporary purposes by way of overdraft, or fixed, special, or other deposits, and the provisions of this Agreement other than this paragraph shall not apply to such moneys

6 BORROWING BY COMMONWEALTH

For any purpose (including the redemption of securities given or issued at any time for moneys previously borrowed or used in manner stated in this clause) the Commonwealth may—while Part II or Part III of this Agreement is in force—

- (a) Subject to any maximum limits decided upon by the Loan Council from time to time for interest, brokerage, discount and other charges, borrow money^a within the Commonwealth from authorities, bodies, funds or institutions^b (including Savings Banks) constituted or established under Commonwealth or State law or practice and from the public by counter sales of securities, and
- (b) use any public moneys of the Commonwealth which are available under the laws of the Commonwealth

Any securities that are issued for moneys so borrowed or used shall be Commonwealth securities, to be provided by the Commonwealth upon terms approved by the Loan Council

Where any such borrowing or use is solely for temporary purposes, the provisions of this Agreement, other than this clause, shall not apply

Where any such borrowing or use is not solely for temporary purposes, and Commonwealth securities are issued in respect thereof, the moneys borrowed or used may be retained by the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth may convert securities given or issued at any time by the Commonwealth for moneys previously borrowed or used in manner stated in this clause. New securities issued on any such conversion shall be Commonwealth securities to be provided by the Commonwealth upon terms approved by the Loan Council

If the moneys so borrowed or used are not borrowed or used solely for temporary purposes and Commonwealth securities are issued in respect thereof, and such moneys, together with other moneys borrowed by the Commonwealth for and on behalf of the Commonwealth as part of the total amount of loan moneys decided upon by the Loan Council as the money to be raised for and on behalf of the Commonwealth for the financial year in which the securities are issued, exceed such total amount the excess shall unless the Loan Council otherwise decides be deemed to be moneys received by the Commonwealth in the following year on account of its loan programme for that year.

For the purposes of this clause counter sales of securities shall be deemed to mean sales of securities made at the offices of the Commonwealth Treasury, and at such other places as may be decided upon by the Loan Council

Notwithstanding anything contained in this Agreement, the Commonwealth may use for temporary purposes any public moneys of the Commonwealth which are available under the laws of the Commonwealth or may, subject to maximum limits (if any) decided upon by the Loan Council from time to time for interest, brokerage, discount, and other charges, borrow money for temporary purposes by way of overdraft, or fixed, special or other deposit, and the provisions of this Agreement other than this paragraph shall not apply to such moneys

7 PAYMENT OF INTEREST AND SINKING FUNDS.

In the event of Part III of this Agreement not coming into force each State shall in respect of all moneys borrowed by the Commonwealth for and on behalf of that State during the period commencing on the 1st July, 1927, and ending on the 30th June, 1929—

- (a) pay to the Commonwealth interest at the full rate of interest payable by the Commonwealth in respect of the loan by which such moneys were borrowed or such other rate of interest as may be payable by that State to the Commonwealth under any agreement made or to be made between the Commonwealth and that State in respect of such moneys. Such interest shall be payable for the full term of that loan and be paid to the Commonwealth on the respective days upon which interest is payable by the Commonwealth in respect of that loan, and
- (b) make sinking fund contributions to the National Debt Commission in respect of the loan by which such moneys were borrowed at the full rate, and for the portion unexpired on the 30th June, 1929 of the full period, provided for in the conditions under which the public were invited to subscribe to that loan; and

For the purposes of this sub-clause such contributions shall be deemed to accumulate at the rate of $4\frac{1}{2}$ per centum per annum compounded.

PART II

1. This part of this Agreement shall be in force only during and in respect of the period of two years, commencing on 1st July, 1927, and ending on 30th June 1929

(m) Where the conditions relating to sinking funds, redemption funds and funds of a like nature as aforesaid held by a State in trust or by trustees under statutory or contractual obligations preclude the transfer of those funds to the National Debt Commission, such funds shall remain under the control of the State or those trustees, and the National Debt Commission will either directly or through the State concerned make all future payments to the State or to those trustees from the sinking fund.

(n) The sinking funds to be established under this Agreement shall be controlled by the National Debt Commission. The National Debt Commission may arrange with any State to act as its agent in connection with payments due to bondholders.

(o) Sinking fund contributions made under this Agreement in respect of the debts of a State and funds of that State transferred to the National Debt Commission under sub-clause (l) of this clause will not be accumulated but (subject to sub-clauses (m) and (p) of this clause) will be applied to the redemption of the public debts of that State and of loans raised by the Commonwealth for or on behalf of that State or to the purchase of securities issued in respect thereof.

(p) If at any time it is deemed expedient by the National Debt Commission to apply sinking funds in the manner set forth in sub-clause (o) of this clause, such funds may be temporarily invested in any securities in which the National Debt Commission is from time to time by law authorized to invest moneys.

The actual text of these Bills has therefore not been included in this volume. The second reading of each Bill was moved on 15th December, 1916, but the motion for the second reading was ruled out of order by the President on the ground that as Bills exactly similar in terms were before the Senate and had been passed during that session, the motion was in contravention of Standing Order No. 133, which provided that during any session no question should be again submitted to the Senate which was the same in substance as one already agreed to during that session.

An Act to give effect to certain resolutions passed by Imperial Conferences held in the years 1926 and 1930.

[11th December, 1931.]

WHEREAS the delegates of His Majesty's Governments in the United Kingdom, the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State and Newfoundland, at Imperial Conferences holden at Westminster in the years of our Lord nineteen hundred and twenty-six and nineteen hundred and thirty did concur in making the declarations and resolutions set forth in the Reports of the said Conferences :

And whereas it is meet and proper to set out by way of preamble to this Act that, inasmuch as the Crown is the symbol of the free association of the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and as they are united by a common allegiance to the Crown, it would be in accord with the established constitutional position of all the members of the Commonwealth in relation to one another that any alteration in the law touching the Succession to the Throne or the Royal Style and Titles shall hereafter require the assent as well of the Parliaments of all the Dominions as of the Parliament of the United Kingdom :

And whereas it is in accord with the established constitutional position that no law hereafter made by the Parliament of the United Kingdom shall extend to any of the said Dominions as part of the law of that Dominion otherwise than at the request and with the consent of that Dominion :

And whereas it is necessary for the ratifying, confirming and establishing of certain of the said declarations and resolutions of the said Conferences that a law be made and enacted in due form by authority of the Parliament of the United Kingdom :

And whereas the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State and Newfoundland have severally requested and consented to the submission of a measure to the Parliament of the United Kingdom for making such provision with regard to the matters aforesaid as is hereafter in this Act contained :

25 and 26 Vict.
c. 22.

6. Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provisions of this Act, section four of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890 (which requires certain laws to be reserved for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure or to contain a suspending clause), and so much of section seven of that Act as requires the approval of His Majesty in Council to any rules of Court for regulating the practice and procedure of a Colonial Court of Admiralty, shall cease to have effect in any Dominion as from the commencement of this Act.

8. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to confer any power to repeal or alter the Constitution or the Constitution Act of the Commonwealth of Australia or the Constitution Act of the Dominion of New Zealand otherwise than in accordance with the law existing before the commencement of this Act.

Saving for Constitution Acts of Australia and New Zealand.

9.—(1.) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to authorise the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia to make laws on any matter within the authority of the States of Australia, not being a matter within the authority of the Parliament or Government of the Commonwealth of Australia.

Saving with respect to States of Australia.

* Sections 4 and 7 of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890, are as follows—

Reservation of Colonial law for Her Majesty's assent.

7.—(1.) Rules of court for regulating the procedure and practice (including fees and costs) in a court in a British possession in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, whether original or appellate, may be made by the same authority and in the same manner as rules touching the practice, procedure, fees, and costs in the said court in the exercise of its ordinary civil jurisdiction respectively are made.

(2.) It shall be lawful for Her Majesty in Council, in approving rules made under this section, to declare that the rules so made with respect to any matters which appear to Her Majesty to be matters of detail or of local concern may be revoked, varied, or added to without the approval required by this section.

(3.) Such rules may provide for the exercise of any jurisdiction conferred by this Act by the said court, or by any judge or judges thereof, and subject to any rules, where the ordinary civil jurisdiction of the court can in any case be exercised by a single judge, any jurisdiction conferred by this Act may in the like case be exercised by a single judge.

(2.) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to require the concurrence of the Parliament or Government of the Commonwealth of Australia in any law made by the Parliament of the United Kingdom with respect to any matter within the authority of the States of Australia, not being a matter within the authority of the Parliament or Government of the Commonwealth of Australia, in any case where it would have been in accordance with the constitutional practice existing before the commencement of this Act that the Parliament of the United Kingdom should make that law without such concurrence.

(3.) In the application of this Act to the Commonwealth of Australia the request and consent referred to in section four shall mean the request and consent of the Parliament and Government of the Commonwealth.

Certain sections of Act not to apply to Australia, New Zealand or Newfoundland unless adopted.
